This report was written by Lukas Gahleitner-Gertz, asylkoordination österreich, and was edited by ECRE.

This report draws on information provided by the Ministry of Interior and the Ministry of Justice in responses to information requests, publicly available reports and responses to parliamentary questions, jurisprudence of Austrian courts, news items, and observations from the practice of asylkoordination and other civil society organisations, including Diakonie, Caritas and Red Cross among others.

The information in this report is up-to-date as of 31 December 2024, unless otherwise stated.

The Asylum Information Database (AIDA)

The Asylum Information Database (AIDA) is managed by the European Council on Refugees and Exiles (ECRE). It aims to provide up-to date information which is accessible to researchers, advocates, legal practitioners and the general public through the dedicated website www.asylumineurope.org. It covers 24 countries, including 19 EU Member States (AT, BE, BG, CY, DE, ES, FR, GR, HR, HU, IE, IT, MT, NL, PL, PT, RO, SE, and SI) and 5 non-EU countries (Serbia, Switzerland, Türkiye, Ukraine and the United Kingdom). The database also seeks to promote the implementation and transposition of EU asylum legislation reflecting the highest possible standards of protection in line with international refugee and human rights law and based on best practice.

This report is part of the Asylum Information Database (AIDA), funded by the European Union's Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF) and ECRE. The contents of this report are the sole responsibility of ECRE and can in no way be taken to reflect the views of the European Commission.

Statistics

Overview of statistical practice (1)

Asylum statistics are published on a monthly basis by the Ministry of Interior, providing information on asylum applicants and main nationalities. As of 2016, these monthly reports also provide decisions at first and second instance.¹ The Federal Agency for Immigration and Asylum (BFA) also publishes short annual statistical overviews (Jahresbilanzen).²

Note 1: statistics on applicants and pending concern people, including children and dependents. The rest of the columns concern number of decisions as that is usually the (only) data available.

Note 2: "Applicants in year" refers to the total number of applicants, and not only to first-time applicants.

Note 3: Statistics on decisions cover the decisions taken throughout the year, regardless of whether they concern applications lodged that year or in previous years. This number also includes formal decisions. Please note that in Austria, asylum (refugee status) and subsidiary protection decisions are counted separately.

Note 4: this includes especially formal decisions taken on discontinued cases due to onward travel to other countries.

² BFA, Statistics, available in German at: <http://bit.ly/1XKnnSy>. These have been published since 2014.

Note 5: these include all negative decisions on refugee status only, as the data on negative decisions on humanitarian protection are not differentiated between those who had previously applied for asylum and those who applied for humanitarian status independently of any asylum procedure.

Note 6: If the application for asylum and subsidiary protection are rejected, the authority has to examine whether a return decision is to be issued. In this examination the authority has to evaluate whether a return decision would disproportionately infringe upon the person's the right to private and family life (Art 8 ECHR). If the interest of the applicant outweighs the interest of the state to uphold the asylum and aliens' law system, the state has to issue a status called "Aufenthaltstitel aus Gründen des Art 8 EMRK" (Art 55 AsylG – residence permit on reasons based on Art 8 ECHR). The authority also has to examine whether the applicant has the right to get a status "Aufenthaltsberechtigung besonderer Schutz" (Art 57 AsylG – residence right special protection). This is to be issued in case the applicant e.g. was a witness or victim of human trafficking.

Source of the percentages: calculated by the author based on the raw data available from the authorities.

Note 1: These are calculated against total decisions, including formal decisions taken on discontinued cases, due to onward travel to other countries.

Note 2: these include all decisions taken in protection cases that are neither rejection decisions nor protection decisions, and especially include formal decisions taken on discontinued cases, due to onward travel to other countries.

Note 3: In merit decisions; these are calculated excluding formal decisions taken in discontinued cases.

Note 4: These rates include humanitarian protection.

Rejections vs returns

Rejection only refers to negative decisions concerning asylum (refugee status). This does not lead to the conclusion that in all rejected cases a return decision was issued or that no other status was issued, as illustrated below. Please note that return decisions concern all third country nationals, not only rejected asylum applicants, and may concern rejected asylum applicants of previous years.

It should be noted that, during the same year, the first instance and appeal authorities handle different caseloads. Thus, the decisions below do not concern the same applicants.

Note 1: In every asylum procedure the authority has to examine whether a return decision can be issued in case of a negative decision concerning asylum and subsidiary protection. In this examination it has to evaluate whether a return decision would infringe the right to private and family life guaranteed by Art 8 ECHR in a disproportionate manner. In case of an excessive infringement the authority will issue a decision that a return decision is not permitted and a status of humanitarian protection. It is examined automatically, no application is needed.

Note 2: Rejection only refers to negative decisions concerning refugee status. This does not lead to the conclusion that in all rejected cases a return decision was issued or that no other status was issued.

Note 3: Negative decisions based on 'formal reasons' include decisions in Dublin cases and cases in which there is no examination on merits because of protection granted by another EU Member State or because of adjudicated case (res judicata).

Overview of the main changes since the previous report update

The previous update of the report was published in June 2024.

International protection

Asylum procedure

- ❖ Key asylum statistics: 25,360 applications were lodged in 2024, a decrease of more than 50% compared to 2023 (59,000). The structure of asylum applications changed substantially: 41% (2023: 73%) of all applications were first time applications on the territory while first time applications via family reunifications went up from 4% in 2022 (4,181) to 30% in 2024 (7,652). The top three countries of origins of applicants in 2024 were Syria (55%), Afghanistan (13%) and Türkiye (4%). In 25,260 cases an international protection or humanitarian status were granted. In 6,761 cases, no status was granted, resulting in a protection rate in cases decided on merits of 79%. (see Statistics).
- ❖ Access to the territory: Austria maintained internal border controls at the borders with Czechia and Slovakia, Slovenia and Hungary throughout 2024. Moreover, the Austrian police continued joint police cooperation with the Hungarian police under “Operation Fox”, which also operates directly on Hungarian territory. The police operation is controversial since there have been reports of pushbacks conducted by the Hungarian police especially on the Serbo-Hungarian border. On the other hand, Germany maintained internal border controls with Austria. In an internal protocol in February 2025, the Ministry of Interior stated that there are indications of unlawful rejections conducted by the German police at the German-Austrian border (see Access to the territory and push backs).
- ❖ Secondary movement and discontinued cases: The number of discontinued cases decreased substantially in 2024. In 2022 and 2023, more than 70,000 cases (both years combined) were discontinued as applicants left the country mostly right after registration. As applications dropped in 2024, Austria was no longer the EU member state with the most discontinued cases: only 3,255 cases were discontinued (see Registration of the asylum application).
- ❖ Length of procedures and pending cases: In 2024 the average duration of the asylum procedure at first instance increased again to 7.8 months, compared to 5.5. in 2023, 3.5 months in 2022 and 3.2 months in 2021. This was also reflected in the number of complaints lodged before the Austrian Ombudsperson on the matter: in 2024, 1,000 persons lodged a complaint against the asylum authority (BFA), out of which 929 were about the length of a procedure under the asylum act (Asylgesetz). 771 complaints regarding the length of a procedure were deemed justified. At the end of 2024, 29,366 (2023: 38,053) cases were pending, out of which 17,254 (2023: 29,636) at first instance and 12,112 (2023: 8,417) at second instance. The second instance backlog increased by 43% in comparison to 2023 (see Regular procedure).
- ❖ Legal counselling: In 2023, the Austrian Constitutional Court partially annulled the Federal Agency for Care and Support Services Act (BBU-G) on constitutional grounds, prompting a necessary legislative amendment. As a result of this revision, several key functions of the Federal Agency for Care and Support Services (BBU), particularly concerning its independence in providing legal counselling, were explicitly enshrined in law in 2024. While these changes undoubtedly represent improvements, fundamental concerns persist regarding the structural contradiction of a state-run legal advisory body assisting refugees in challenging decisions made by the very authority to which it is institutionally subordinate (see Legal assistance).
- ❖ Dublin procedures: 7,186 incoming Dublin requests and 1,511 transfers by other member states to Austria were registered in 2024. 59% of transfers came from Germany, 11% from Switzerland and 11% from France. In the same timeframe, 4,898 outgoing Dublin requests were sent to other states by Austria and 1,184 persons were transferred. The main recipient countries were Germany (25%), Croatia (24%) and Bulgaria (11%) (see Dublin).

- ❖ CJEU judgment on international protection status for Afghan women: The CJEU judgement C-608/22 of October 2024 concerning Afghan women – ruling that Afghan women are persecuted by the Taliban on account of their gender and are therefore at a general risk of persecution – did not have a significant impact on the practice of Austrian authorities. The Austrian authorities announced that they would keep on examining the circumstances in individual cases. The decision has not led to more arrivals of Afghan women in Austria, but has led to a higher number of subsequent applications at the end of the year (see Differential treatment of specific nationalities in the procedure)

Reception conditions

- ❖ Reception centres: At the end of 2024, only 10 (compared to 21 in 2023) Federal Basic Care facilities with a maximum capacity of 3,831 were in use. In the whole Basic Care system around 68,000 people were accommodated, of which more than half were refugees from Ukraine under the TPD regime. The rest of them were decommissioned, rather than closed, to open them back up more easily in case of an increase in applications. At the end of 2024, only 14,000 asylum applicants were accommodated in the Basic Care System with around 10% (1,430) in Federal Basic Care facilities, mainly in Traiskirchen (785). This is the lowest number of applicants in the Basic Care System in the last 10 years in Austria (see Types of accommodation).
- ❖ Distribution across the country: The distribution of asylum applicants in the Basic Care System among the provinces remained unbalanced in 2024. While Vienna overfulfilled its quota by 207%, other provinces such as Carinthia or Salzburg only reached 50% of their quota (see Freedom of movement).
- ❖ Increase in maximum cost rates for vulnerable groups: In September 2023, there was a conference of the regional refugee councils where it was decided to increase the maximum cost rates for vulnerable groups. An agreement with the Ministry of the Interior was reached in June 2024, and so, in July 2024, the increase was finally implemented. Publication in the Federal Law Gazette took place in January 2025. A retroactive increase is possible from 1 January 2024, the exact implementation and date from when the retroactive increase takes effect depends on the respective federal state (see Reception Conditions).
- ❖ Benefits-in-kind card (Sachleistungskarte): the benefits-in-kind card, to replace cash, started being introduced in 2024, first in Upper Austria. Applicants assigned to a federal BBU facility in Upper Austria received a benefits card on which their pocket money is paid. They took it with them whenever they were assigned to basic care facilities of the province of Upper Austria, and received further financial benefits on it via the accommodation provider. Cash withdrawals are possible up to a maximum amount of € 40, as well as payment in supermarkets, pharmacies, etc. In June 2024, Lower Austria introduced its own ‘payment card’ project with Pluxee. No cash withdrawals are possible with this model; instead, asylum applicants receive €40/month in cash per person at the beginning of the month. The food allowance is charged to the Pluxee card. The project involves a high administrative effort, as cash payment continues and the Pluxee card is used as well. The Pluxee card is not a debit card, so purchases in pharmacies, at ÖBB vending machines, in social markets (discount stores for people with proven low income), at markets in general or in second-hand shops are not possible. The pluxee card was rolled out to the entire province of Lower Austria from September 2024 (see Forms and levels of material reception conditions).
- ❖ Extension of the scope of activities for charitable work available to asylum applicants: The ordinance on the utilisation of asylum seekers and certain other foreigners for charitable aid activities came into force on 15 July 2024. It extends the scope of activities considered for charitable work, which is welcomed in principle by NGOs. Asylum applicants are not only able to carry out charitable aid work in municipalities, but also in other non-profit organisations (e.g. NGOs, nursing homes, etc.). In the exchange meetings, representatives of the NGOs reported that the payment for non-profit work varies. In federal organisations it is € 1.60 / hour, in the federal states it varies between € 3-5 Euros (see Access to the labour market)

- ❖ Additional grounds for reduction of allowance while in Federal Basic Care: however, this extension, in federal institutions, was linked to an obligation to carry out these charitable work activities at least 10 hours per month. Exceptions have been foreseen, e.g. for people physical infirmity or proven illnesses, etc. All other asylum seekers who do not fulfil this obligation will only receive half of the pocket money allowance. Moreover, in June 2024, mandatory basic courses (focused on democracy, the rule of law and freedoms, equal rights, culture and manners, rights and duties as well as sensitisation to forms of antisemitism) were introduced for asylum seekers in federal accommodation centres. Anyone who refuses to take part in these courses will only receive half of the € 40 pocket money instead. Stakeholders dispute the legality of both of these obligations as according to the 15a Basic welfare support agreement, on the one hand charitable work is only possible with the consent of the asylum applicant, and on the other hand nothing is foreseen regarding the mandatory basic courses. In both cases an amendment to the house rules for federal accommodation was made to provide for the possibility to reduce the allowance (see Reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions).

Detention of asylum seekers

- ❖ Detention statistics: A total of 3,591 people were detained on immigration-related grounds throughout 2024 but there is no public data available on how many of them were asylum seekers or how many persons applied for asylum during detention. During 2024, 4 unaccompanied minors were held in detention. In 2024, in 295 cases alternatives to detention were applied (see Detention of Asylum Seekers).
- ❖ Detention in view of Dublin transfer to Italy despite the lack of transfers since end of 2022: In 2024 397 take charge and 327 take back requests were sent to Italy. In a letter from December 2022, Italy announced that due to technical reasons no Dublin returnees would be taken back from other countries. This did not change in 2024 and no Dublin returns were completed. Decisions on transfers were however still being made by the authorities, but could not be implemented. As of December 2024, applicants with Dublin decisions towards Italy were kept in detention as the BFA assumed that Italy would change its policy of not taking back Dublin returnees. In 2024, like in 2023, they were released after a short time as Italy did not change its policy in 2024 (see Grounds for detention).
- ❖ Deportations: Like in the previous years, around 70% of the 5,800 deported persons were nationals of EU member states and had no connection with the asylum system. In 2024, two UAM were deported to Türkiye.

Content of international protection

- ❖ Withdrawal of status: After the fall of the Assad regime in December, all asylum procedures of Syrian nationals were suspended. The ministry of Interior announced that it would start planning deportation programs, which sparked fear among BIPs. Until the end of 2024, more than 500 withdrawal procedures were initiated because of alleged improvement of the situation in Syria. By end of March, there were more than 6,000 withdrawal procedures pending at first instance, most of them concerning Syrian nationals (see Cessation and review of protection status).
- ❖ Family reunification: In 2023 and 2024, approx. 7,000-9,000 applicants respectively arrived in Austria through family reunification. In January 2024 the number of applications for family reunification peaked with more than 700 applications per week. In the spring of 2024, the Ministry of Interior announced that it would scale up DNA tests and that all entry visas would be revoked and re-checked.

Family reunifications that had already been approved were cancelled and were re-examined. Many families were affected, including some where the flight tickets had already been purchased. Granting of visas for family reunification resumed from August/September 2024. This policy led to a sharp decrease in people entering the country through family reunification and increased the average procedural time massively. In 2025, the average time between application for visa at the embassy and actual entry into Austria was more than 16 months. Upon request the Ministry could not present data as to how many cases led to a different result in re-examination than the original examination. In parallel, due to a change in caselaw on Syria and the fall of the Assad regime, family reunification dropped significantly at the end of 2024. Visas that had already been issued for families of BIPs from Syrian were revoked by the authorities and all cases of family reunification re-examined yet again. Moreover, the BFA started to initiate withdrawal procedures for Syrian BIPs in Austria (the mere initiation of such a procedure entails a refusal of any family reunification application related to the BIP). In March 2025, the government announced the implementation of a temporary suspension of all family reunifications, arguing that there is an emergency situation for public order or national security (Art 72). Several NGOs criticised this move as unlawful under EU law, counterproductive to integration efforts, and a clear violation of the rights of refugees (see Family reunification).

- ❖ Access to education and the labour market for youth: access to education for asylum applicants older than 15 may be difficult due to a variety of factors. In 2024, the labour market service launched the youth college together with the city of Vienna. This is an educational opportunity for young people and young adults aged 15-25 and is primarily intended to support those who are no longer subject to compulsory schooling. It also has the effect that this educational measure provides a daily structure and gives prospects for future jobs or studies (see Access to education).

Temporary protection

The information given hereafter constitute a short summary of the 2024 Report on Temporary Protection, for further information, see Annex on Temporary Protection.

Temporary protection procedure

- ❖ Key temporary protection statistics: Since 2022, around 125,000 persons have registered as beneficiaries of temporary protection in Austria. As of January 2025, around 78,000 Ukrainian nationals (2024: 70,000) that entered Austria after the start of the Russian invasion were registered in the Central Register of Residence. 37,000 (2024: 40,000) received support via Basic care. Throughout the whole year 2024, between 1,000-1,600 new Ukrainian nationals arrived per month in Austria.

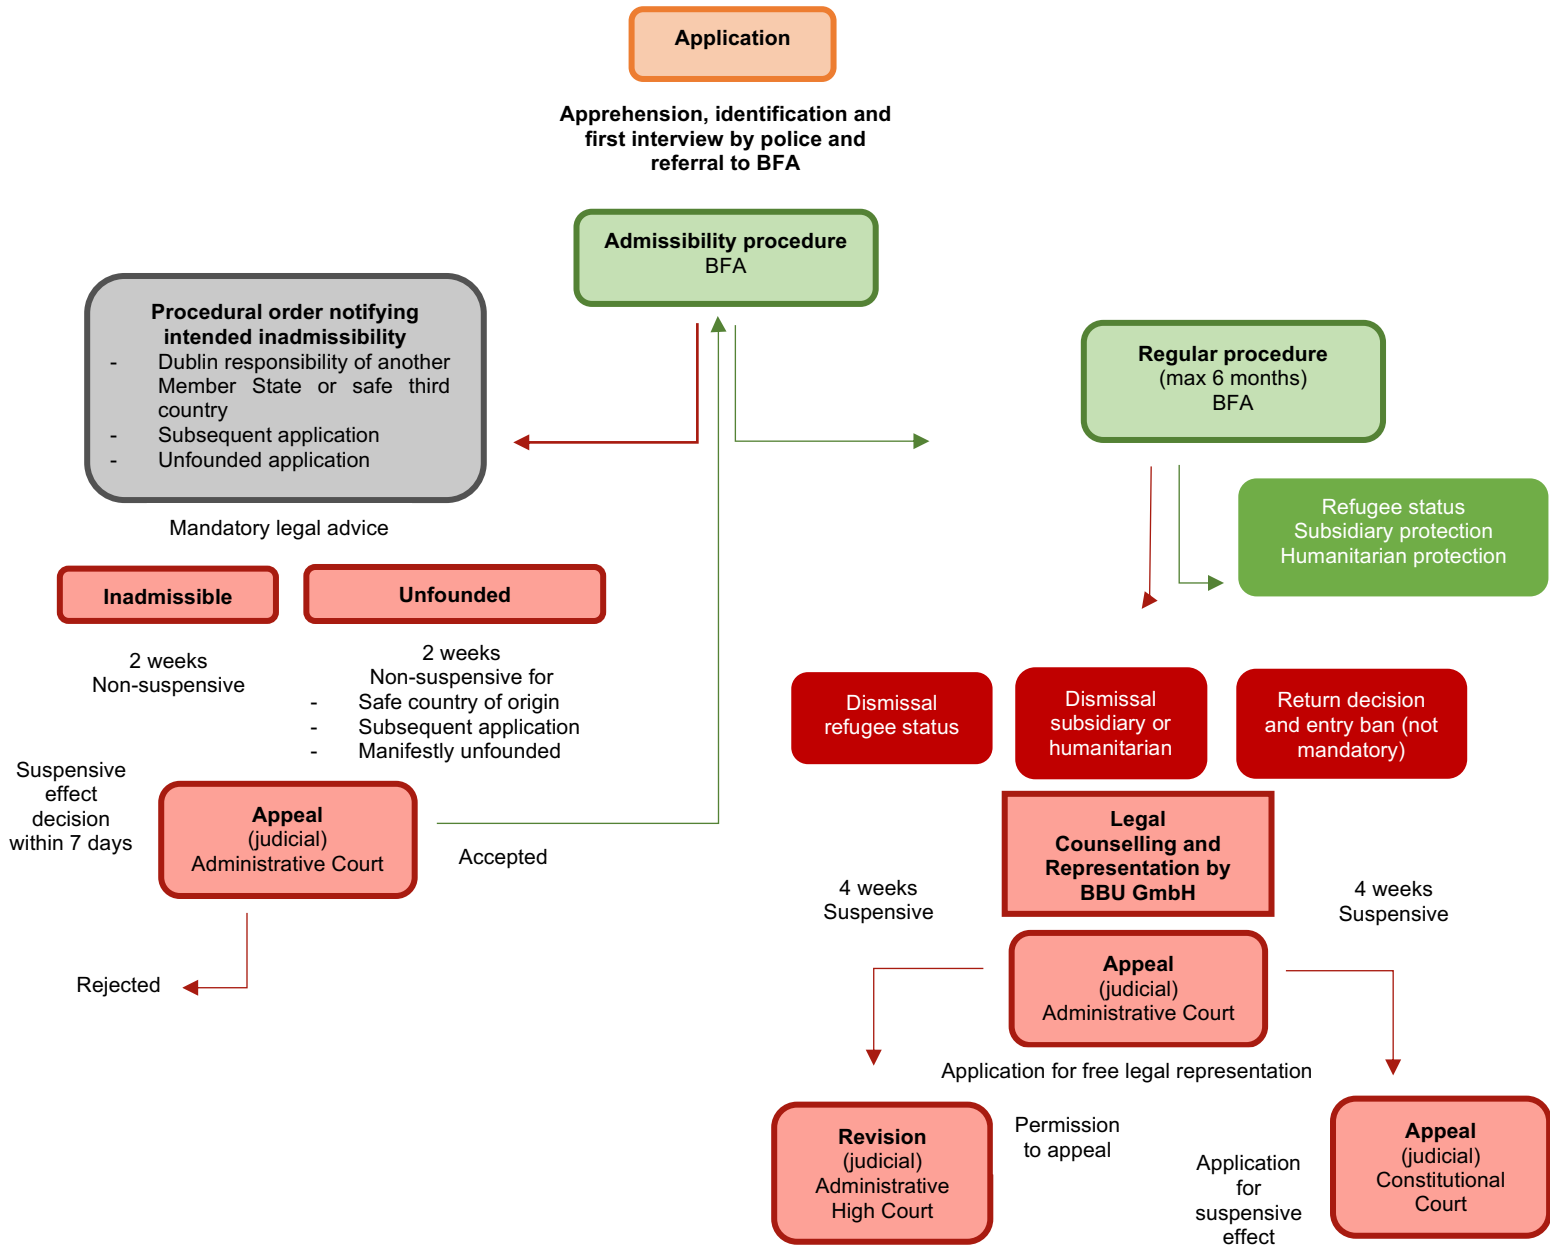

Content of temporary protection

- ❖ Residence prospect for displaced persons: Since October 2024 beneficiaries of temporary protection can apply for the residence status Red-White-Red-Card-Plus. Due to the conditions (income threshold) to be fulfilled, only a very small number of persons can benefit from this possibility. As of January 2025, around 1,000 beneficiaries have been granted the residence status.
- ❖ Social benefits – family allowance and childcare subsidies: access to family allowance and childcare subsidies was extended for a half year until October 2025 only. It is not certain whether it will be extended any further.
- ❖ Social benefits – Basic care: access to full basic care was restricted by the administrative authorities. Notably, the practice whereby Ukrainian beneficiaries could receive basic care assistance while owning a car is no longer applied. In 2024, the authorities took Ukrainian pension benefits received by beneficiaries into full account, resulting in a deduction in basic care payments in Austria and repayment claims.

The BFA is the determining authority responsible for examining applications for international protection and competent to take decisions at first instance as well as for residence permits on exceptional humanitarian grounds and certain Aliens' Police proceedings. It is also the first instance authority responsible for withdrawal and cessation procedures. It is an administrative body falling under the responsibility of the Ministry of Interior. The BFA has its headquarters in Vienna and one regional directorate in each of the provinces. Further organisational units of the BFA are the initial reception centres (EAST). Additional field offices of the regional directorates may be established in the provinces.⁶

⁵ Labelled as "accelerated procedure" in national law. See Article 31(8) recast Asylum Procedures Directive.

As of December 2024, the BFA had 1,065 staff members, compared to 1,014 in September 2023. However, all staff of the BFA are not caseworkers, i.e. the personnel of the determining authority responsible for examining and assessing an application for international protection. Out of the 1,014 officials of the BFA, 454 were caseworkers (compared to 441 in 2023). The majority of these caseworkers were permanent staff.⁷

The BFA has developed its own internal guidelines which are used by caseworkers on a daily basis to examine and decide on applications for international protection. However, these are not publicly available and civil society organisations do not have access to them. Country of origin information (COI) reports that are produced by the BFA are published on its website.⁸ However, most of the published material is outdated.

As regards quality assurance and control, the BFA has established both quality assurance and quality control mechanisms, with quality assessors (Qualitätssicherer) specifically dedicated to that end. The quality assessors of the BFA are responsible for double-checking decisions, providing support and guidance to caseworkers and contributing to their development.⁹ They are present in all offices of the BFA and meet every three months in the form of a networking event. However, the results of quality assurance and control is not published nor accessible to external entities. The results are only shared with management staff and quality assessors, who subsequently discuss the results with caseworkers.

It should be noted that there is an ongoing cooperation with UNHCR to develop specific assessment methods for the evaluation of asylum procedures. UNHCR selects the focus point for the assessment of the decisions and provides samples of interviews and decisions to train quality assessors of the BFA accordingly.¹⁰ UNHCR can further be consulted in specific procedures, such as the airport procedure.

5. Short overview of the asylum procedure

Asylum and aliens law procedures are administrative procedures. For these procedures, the General Administrative Procedures Act (AVG) and the BFA Procedures Act (BFA-VG) apply. The Asylum Act (AsylG) and the Aliens Police Act (FPG) however, contain several special procedural rules which regulate asylum and aliens law proceedings.

The procedure before the Federal Administrative Court (Bundesverwaltungsgericht, BVwG) is regulated by the Asylum Act, the BFA Procedures Act (BFA-VG), by the General Administrative Procedures Act and the Federal Administrative Court Act (VwGVG) (see Overview of the Legal Framework).

The Asylum Act contains norms on the granting of international protection, expulsion procedures in connection with the rejection or dismissal of applications, provisions on the rejection of applications due to the existence of a “safe third country” or to the responsibility of another state according to the Dublin Regulation, norms on family reunification procedures and on airport procedures. In 2016, “special provisions to maintain public order during border checks” were added to the Asylum Act. It allows the Ministry of Interior to issue a decree that would enable the authorities not to examine asylum applications on the merits. This raised a big public debate about the potential introduction of a 'quota' of asylum claims per year, which would trigger the issuance of a decree once it is reached. However, no consensus was found on the matter and the decree was never issued. Moreover, the law does not foresee a limit of asylum applications that would trigger such a decree. In the coalition program presented in March 2025, the introduction of a similar law allowing the government to suspend family reunification procedures in case of a threat to public security via regulation was announced. The government already announced that it would also issue a regulation after the law enters into force in April 2025.¹¹

First instance procedure: The Asylum Act provides for a single procedure for applications for international protection. If such an application is lodged, the authorities decide whether the application should be rejected on account of safety in a third country or the responsibility of another state. In the first stage of the procedure – called admissibility procedure – the authorities decide on the admissibility of the application. If the application is declared admissible, the authorities decide whether the person should be granted refugee status. In case of rejection of the asylum claim on the merits, the authorities assess the need of subsidiary protection. National law does not foresee a separate application for subsidiary protection. In case of rejection of the subsidiary protection claim the authorities assess whether a return decision is admissible. All three examinations are done in one procedure. There is also an accelerated procedure for certain claims.

Appeal: Appeals to the Federal Administrative Court are possible against a decision rejecting the asylum application as inadmissible and against a decision dismissing the application on the merits. The BFA Procedures Act (BGA-VG) regulates the appeal and its effects. Appeals against the decision rejecting the asylum application on the merits must be submitted within four weeks and have suspensive effect, unless the BFA does not allow for the appeal to have suspensive effect. In the past, there were several legislative attempts to shorten the appeal period of four weeks to two weeks in all cases. The last legislative attempt was annulled by a ruling of the Constitutional Court in 2017.¹² Following the reform, in cases in which the appeal is rejected on formal or inadmissibility reasons and the decision is connected to a measure terminating residence, or when a return decision has already been issued, the appeal lasts only two weeks and does not have suspensive effect. Suspensive effect may be granted by the Court to an appeal against an expulsion order issued together with a decision rejecting the asylum application as inadmissible.¹³

Moreover, Article 18(1) BFA-VG provides several grounds for depriving suspensive effect. These include, inter alia, the applicant's attempt to deceive the BFA concerning their true identity or nationality or the authenticity of their documents, the lack of reasons for persecution, if the allegations made by the asylum applicant concerning the danger they face are manifestly unfounded or if an enforceable deportation order and an enforceable entry ban was issued against the asylum applicant prior to the lodging of the application for international protection.

However, the Court may grant suspensive effect if there would otherwise be a risk of violation of the non-refoulement principle. The Court has to grant suspensive effect if an appeal is lodged against an expulsion order issued together with a decision rejecting the asylum application as inadmissible, if it can be assumed that the decision to refuse entry to the alien at the border and forcible return or deportation to the country to which the expulsion order applies would constitute a real risk of violation of the principle of non-refoulement according to Austria's international obligations, or would represent a serious threat to their life or person by reason of indiscriminate violence in situations of international or internal conflict. The reasons must be set out in the appeal decision.

¹³ § 16 BFA-VG.

Together with the decision to reject the application for international protection, an expulsion order must be issued, unless reasons related to the right to family and private life according to Article 8 ECHR prevail over public interest and order, or where residence is permitted for other humanitarian reasons.

The evidential requirements are the same for refugee and subsidiary protection status. In appeal procedures before the Court, new facts and evidence may only be submitted in the following cases: if the grounds on which the first instance negative decision was based have undergone any material change; if the first instance procedure was irregular (e.g. if the right to be heard about the findings of the BFA was not respected, or if outdated country of origin information was used or evidence is missing to substantiate the reasoning of the BFA); if such new facts and evidence were not accessible earlier or if the asylum applicant had been unable to submit such new facts and evidence.¹⁴ Decisions of the Court are issued in the form of judgments and all other decisions, such as those allowing the appeal to have suspensive effect, the rejection of an appeal because it was lodged too late, or on the continuation of an asylum procedures that was discontinued (i.e. decisions on procedural issues), are issued in the form of resolutions.

Onward appeal: The BVwG may decide that the rejection of the application can be revised before the Administrative High Court (Verwaltungsgerichtshof, VfGH). This possibility is foreseen if a decision on the case depends on a leading decision, e.g. if the Administrative Court's decision is not based on a previous decision of the Administrative High Court. If the BVwG declares the ordinary revision inadmissible, the asylum applicant may bring in an extraordinary revision.¹⁵ The BFA can also file a revision with the VfGH to challenge decisions issued by the BVwG.

Appeals to the Federal Constitutional Court (Verfassungsgerichtshof, VfGH) may be lodged in instances where the applicant claims a violation of a right guaranteed by constitutional law.

Return: At every stage of the procedure, asylum applicants are informed about the possibility of support for voluntary return. The BFA can also order a mandatory consultation on return. In these cases, the applicant has to get in contact with the return counselling department of the state owned BBU GmbH. When an asylum applicant leaves the country – no matter if in the context of voluntary repatriation to their country of origin or if the person is not reachable for the authorities – the asylum proceedings are filed as discontinued. Upon return to Austria, an application to reopen the procedure must be made.

Any application for international protection which is deemed inadmissible or rejected on the merits is automatically connected to a decision assessing whether a return to the country of origin is possible or if the right to private and family life of the applicant prevail.¹⁶ The return decision is issued together with the negative decision concerning the asylum application by the BFA in first instance. Similarly, a return decision is also issued in the case of a withdrawal of international protection.

¹⁴ Article 20 BFA-VG.

¹⁵ The BVwG can decide to declare the ordinary revision as admissible - which means that it considers that there is a fundamental legal question at stake - or as inadmissible – which means that the applicant and their lawyer must demonstrate themselves that there is fundamental legal question at stake so as to initiate an extraordinary revision. The main difference is that, in the case of an ordinary/regular revision, the applicant does not have to explain what fundamental legal question is at stake and that, in cases where the regular revision is declared as admissible, it is more probable that government sponsored legal aid will be granted (which is not a task of the BBU but of the bar association in case of appeals in front of the High Court).

¹⁶ § 10 AsylG.

B. Access to the procedure and registration

1. Access to the territory and push backs

Indicators: Access to the Territory

1. Are there any reports (NGO reports, media, testimonies, etc.) of people refused entry at the border and returned without examination of their protection needs? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Is there a border monitoring system in place? ☐ Yes ☒ No
3. If so, who is responsible for border monitoring? ☐ National authorities ☐ NGOs ☐ Other
4. How often is border monitoring carried out? ☐ Frequently ☐ Rarely ☐ Never

In July 2021, the Regional Administrative Court of Styria issued a landmark decision concerning a case of a Moroccan national living in Bosnia. Despite having asked for asylum in September 2020 after crossing the green border from Slovenia to Austria along with a group of other asylum seekers, he was handed over to the Slovenian police based on a readmission agreement who also ignored his claim. He was subsequently returned to Croatia and pushed-back to Bosnia.¹⁷ The Court concluded that the policemen “overheard” the asylum application, i.e. they did not carry out a proper interview; the body search resulted in inhuman treatment and the rejection to Slovenia was unlawful. In the statement of facts, the Court stated that pushbacks are “partly applied as a method in Austria.”¹⁸ The Ministry of Interior denied the fact that an application for international protection had been made and brought in a legal remedy to the High Administrative Court.

In 2020, 514 persons from 48 different countries were handed over to Slovenian authorities based on this ad hoc agreement.¹⁹ This agreement originally focused on the uncomplicated return of Slovenian citizens to Slovenia when crossing the border. No formal procedure is known: when a person identified to be returned on the basis of the agreement the police forces of the two countries interact and organise the transfer. There is no legal remedy foreseen in the process. Persons having applied for asylum cannot be returned on the basis of this agreement.

In July 2021, a Somali minor was also unlawfully returned to Slovenia on the basis of that readmission agreement, despite the fact that he had articulated the words “asylum” various times when talking to police officers. In February 2022, the Regional Administrative Court of Styria decided that the police measures taken were unlawful and resulted in an illegal push back.²⁰ In Slovenia, the asylum request was meanwhile accepted, and an asylum status had already been granted.²¹

In both cases, the revision requested by the Regional Police Directorate Styria to the High Administrative Court were rejected in May 2022.²² As a consequence, the Ministry of Interior by non-public internal Decree GZ: 2022-0.344.927, “Awareness with regard to rejections”, 11 May 2022, regulated on how to proceed with foreigners that apply for asylum when apprehended by the police. The decree explicitly states that, just because the person does not mention the word “asylum”, that does not mean they are not applying for international protection, as the application can be brought in by “conclusive action”. The police officer should thus also come to the conclusion that the person is applying for international protection through their behaviour, actions, etc and should in such cases take appropriate action. mandatory e-learning tool was developed and is available for all officers that are on duty close to border regions.

As a response to the allegations of illegal push backs and unlawful returns taking place at the Southern border to Slovenia and the fact that the number of persons affected by readmissions to Slovenia almost doubled from 81 to 174 in 2020,²³ the initiative “Push back alarm” was founded by activists. Similar to “Alarm phone”, the initiative offers a phone number where persons who crossed the border can request a follow up with the police and ask whether their asylum application is being accepted.²⁴ In 2024, the number of persons returned to Slovenia based on the bilateral readmission agreement was 70 (compared to 62 in 2023 and 58 in 2022). Nationalities of the persons returned are not indicated.²⁵ According to the AIDA report on Slovenia, persons who have been summarily returned back from Austria to Slovenia in 2020 were mostly expelled to Croatia by the Slovenian authorities. After the second judgement concerning pushbacks by Regional Administrative Court of Styria, according to the NGO Push Back Alarm Austria there were no more reports of pushbacks on Austrian territory throughout 2022, 2023 and 2024.

Since December 2022, the Austrian police have entered a joint police cooperation with Hungarian police called “Operation Fox.” The goal of the joint operation which first lasted until May and then was prolonged until mid-2024 is “combatting illegal migration” and transnational criminal activities such as human smuggling. As of June 2024, there were 32 Austrian police officers deployed to this unit that also operates on Hungarian soil.²⁶ As there have been reports of pushbacks conducted by the Hungarian police especially on the Serbo-Hungarian border, the police operation is controversial. The Ministry of Interior states that on the basis of the Prüm Decision,²⁷ Austrian officers can apply coercive power on Hungarian territory.²⁸

1.1. Refusals of entry

Following the German announcement of the prolongation of border controls in October 2019, the Austrian Minister of Interior also prolonged the temporary border controls with Slovenia and Hungary until 14 May 2020.²⁹ The argumentation of the Austrian Government had slightly changed, however: while it initially argued that the situation was not sufficiently stable, the Minister of Interior argued that “border controls in the heart of Europe have led to a positive effect on migration movements”.³⁰ These border controls were further prolonged on 11 May 2021, based on the “continuing migration pressure” and “the tense situation resulting from Covid-19”.³¹ Border controls with Hungary and Slovenia are currently prolonged until November 2025.³² The coalition government formed in early 2025 has already informally agreed on prolonging the controls for yet another 6 months. Furthermore, since September 2023 border controls to Slovakia and Czech Republic have been regularly prolonged every six months, currently until October 2025.³³ More information on the German-Austrian border controls can be found in the AIDA report on Germany.³⁴

Slovenia has reaffirmed its opposition as regards Austrian border controls in recent years. The Slovenian Ministry of the Interior considers border controls unjustified and disproportionate and has stressed that there were no statistics demonstrating a risk of secondary migration nor a threat to Austria's internal security. In 2019 it added that the border controls are "unnecessary and cause great economic damage".³⁵ In 2023, the President of Slovenia complained that Austria has no reason to continue border controls with the country.³⁶ Slovenia itself however also prolonged its own border controls with Croatia and Hungary until June 2025.³⁷ As of 21 December 2023, 384 persons coming from Slovenia had been denied entry in 2023.³⁸ There is no data available for 2024.

Germany refused entry to 1,981 persons from January to April 2024 (2023 total: 11,461) at the Austrian border.³⁹ In the first four months of 2024, 191 persons were transferred from Germany to Austria via the bilateral return agreement (2023 total: 1,319). Following the ECJ judgement C-143/22 regarding refusals of entry at internal borders where controls have been reintroduced, Austrian officials discussed the situation at the borders with German officials: Germany assured that asylum seekers reaching Germany will not be denied entry or be rejected at the border.⁴⁰ After the German election plans became public, whereby German politicians wanted to reject asylum applicants at its land borders, the Austrian Government quickly reacted and rejected the plans. It announced that it would not take back asylum applicants from Germany at the border.⁴¹ In an internal protocol in February 2025, the Ministry of Interior stated that there are indications of unlawful rejections conducted by the German police at the German-Austrian border.⁴²

Hungary and Austria engage in a bilateral police cooperation on Hungarian territory in the so-called "Operation Fox". Since September 2021, Austria deploys police officers to the Hungarian-Serbian and Hungarian-Serbian-Romanian border. At the end of 2023, 40 Austrian police officers supported the Hungarian police. In December 2023, the Ministry announced that this number should increase to 60 police officers.⁴³ However, in practice by June 2024 only 32 officers were deployed to the police mission.⁴⁴ The Ministry of Interior stated that the Austrian police is directly using force, but rather just supporting the Hungarian police in their tasks. The operation costed more than 2 million euros in 2023.⁴⁵ Operation Fox was extended until end of 2025 and is likely to be extended also to the Romanian-Hungarian border.⁴⁶ 180 alleged smugglers were apprehended. In May 2023 the fact that Hungary released hundreds of convicted smugglers due to high costs and lack of detention space caused an uproar in Austria. The Hungarian ambassador was called for a consultation by the Austrian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.⁴⁷ Until 2023, 194 persons were denied entry by Austria at the Hungarian border.⁴⁸ There is not data available for 2024.

As there are no border controls from Austria at the borders with Germany, Switzerland, Italy and Liechtenstein, no rejections were made in 2022 at these borders.

1.2. Special provisions to maintain public order during border checks

With a legal amendment, which entered into force on 1 June 2016, “special provisions to maintain public order during border checks” were added to the Asylum Act.⁴⁹

The provision (discussed publicly as “emergency provision”), which can be activated through a decree of the federal government, foresees that asylum seekers have no longer access to the asylum procedure in Austria when a maximum number, i.e. a ‘quota’, of asylum applications to be examined on the merits, is reached. For 2016 this number was set at 37,500 applications and was not reached.⁵⁰ For the year 2019, the maximum was set at 25,000 asylum applications. However, the decree of the federal government was never activated. Even though more than 112,000 applications were registered in Austria in 2022, no public discussion concerning triggering the ‘emergency provision’ arose. The number of asylum applications decreased to almost 25,000 in 2024 and the backlog of pending cases decreased to 29,000 cases at the end of 2024.⁵¹ There was no discussion about triggering the existing emergency provisions. Due to the relatively high numbers of family reunification applications at one point, a discussion arose whether emergency provisions should be introduced concerning family reunification applications⁵² (see Family reunification).

The possibility of rejection at the border relies on the distinction between “making” and “lodging” an asylum application as per Article 6 of the recast Asylum Procedures Directive. After an application is made before a police officer at the border, or in a registration centre (Registrierstelle) if the person is found to be irregularly on the territory, the Aliens Police will be able to reject the person at the border or to issue a return decision before the initial interview (Erstbefragung).⁵³

Refusal to register an application is not possible where return would be incompatible with the principle of non-refoulement under Articles 2 and 3 ECHR, or with Article 8 ECHR.⁵⁴

An asylum seeker is not issued a decision ordering return and cannot appeal against the refusal to have their claim examined. In such a case, the asylum seeker has no right to remain on the territory.⁵⁵ Therefore, an appeal to the State Administrative Court (LVwG) does not have suspensive effect.⁵⁶

Although it has not been activated yet, the amendment has been criticised by UNHCR and civil society organisations,⁵⁷ as it enables police authorities rather than the BFA to deny a person access to the asylum procedure, without procedural guarantees or legal assistance, while an appeal can only be made after the expulsion has been carried out. The activation of the emergency provision also suspends the application of the Dublin Regulation.

1.3. Border monitoring

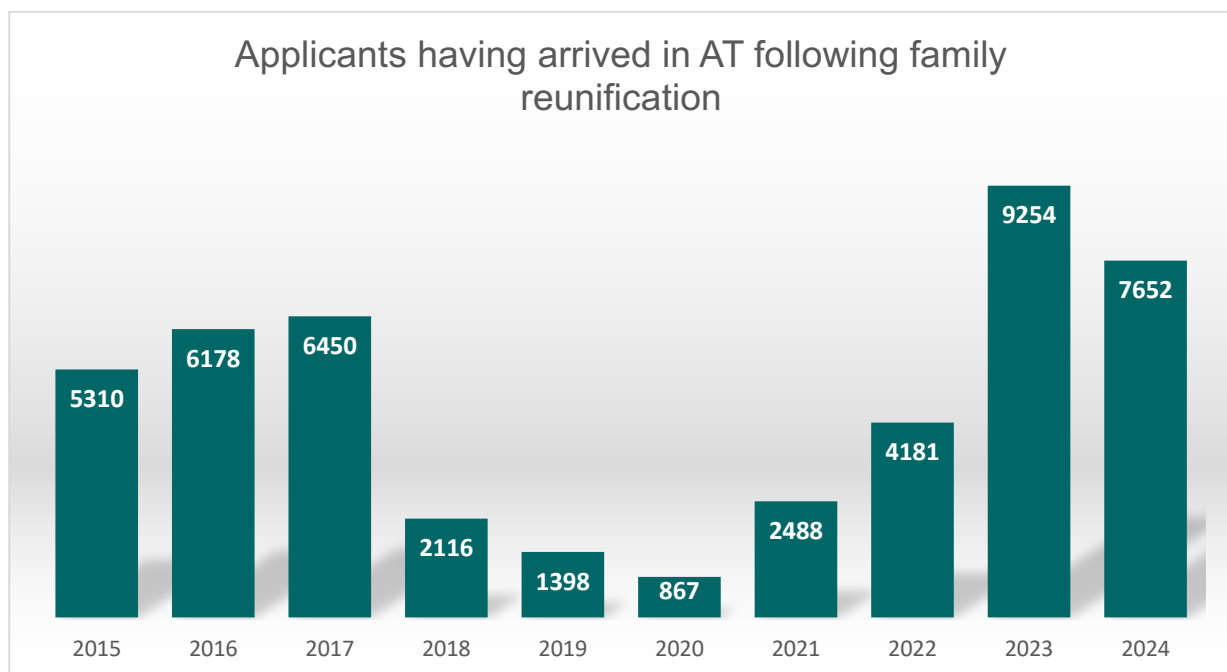

There is no border monitoring mechanism in Austria.

1.4. Legal access to the territory

In 2024 there was no resettlement program in place in Austria. The last resettlement program ended in 2019. There are no plans to implement another resettlement program.

Austria did not participate in refugee evacuation programmes from Afghanistan after the takeover of the Taliban regime in August 2021. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs supported Austrian nationals and persons with Austrian residency status to get out of Afghanistan (mainly to Pakistan). In one publicly known case, the Austrian embassy in Islamabad confirmed to an Afghan national that it would issue a visa for Austria, but the embassy then refused to issue it when the latter arrived in Pakistan. The woman was instead issued a visa by Germany.⁵⁸

In 2024, 29% of all applicants (7,652) arrived in Austria via family reunification procedure. This is a decrease compared 2023 (9,254).

2. Preliminary checks of third country nationals upon arrival

Indicators: Preliminary checks at the arrival point

1. Are there any checks that are applied systematically or regularly at the point of entry when a person enters the territory? ☐ Yes ☒ No
2. Is the person considered under law to have entered the territory during these checks? ☒ Yes ☐ No

In Austria, national legislation does not foresee general preliminary checks for all third-country nationals at the point of entry. Instead, such checks are only carried out within the framework of the asylum procedure. These preliminary measures consist primarily of identification procedures, particularly the collection of fingerprints, and health checks, most notably lung examinations (see Reception conditions – Health care). However, there are no specific procedures aimed at identifying vulnerabilities that are not already apparent.

The responsible authority for carrying out these checks is the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum (BFA), with medical examinations conducted by doctors acting on behalf of the BFA. These assessments take place in designated initial reception centers, the most prominent of which is located in Traiskirchen. There is no legal maximum time limit within which these checks must be completed.

While these procedures do not necessarily entail detention, restrictions on freedom of movement may apply. In practice, applicants may be required to remain within a specific administrative district during the admissibility procedure, particularly under the Dublin Regulation.

The purpose of these checks is primarily to gather personal and medical data; they do not result in a formal decision or outcome that can be legally challenged. Importantly, individuals subject to these checks will have already lodged an application for asylum prior to their initiation. Therefore, the checks do not affect the initiation of the asylum process, nor do they alter the legal obligations of the authorities in this regard.

3. Registration of the asylum application

An application for international protection can be made before an agent of the public security service or a security authority on Austrian territory.⁵⁹ The asylum application is registered as soon as asylum is requested. There has been no possibility to apply for asylum at Austrian embassies or consulates abroad since 2001. A first interview has to be conducted by the public security service.⁶⁰ All documents have to be sent to the BFA to obtain guidelines on the next steps to be taken. This includes sharing the minutes of the first interrogation as well as a report showing the time, place and circumstances of the application, information on identity and the travel route, in particular the place where the border was crossed, as well as the result of the identity screening.

In 2023, the police reverted back to the old registrations system directly at the border as the numbers of applications decreased sharply at the end of the year. The extraordinary measure was not necessary anymore as the registration capacity of the Regional Police Directorate in Burgenland (region close to the border) could cope with the number of arrivals. In January 2022, 2.261 persons were apprehended in the province of Burgenland. In January 2023, the number of apprehended persons decreased to 100.⁶¹

⁶⁰ Article 17 (2) AsylG.

⁶¹ Kurier, Asylrouten ändern sich: Weniger Aufgriffe, Anträge gehen zurück, 26 February 2024, here.

Applications for international protection are to be forwarded to the BFA without delay.

Based on the information submitted by the police, the BFA orders the transfer of the applicant to an EAST or regional directorate of the BFA. The BFA can also order the applicant to go to the EAST or regional directorate on their own, and transfer costs will be covered.⁶² Through this instruction on the next steps to be followed, the application is officially lodged.⁶³

Persons legally staying in Austria (i.e. through a residence permit) must submit their asylum application at the public security service too. The BFA orders applicants to appear before the branch office within 14 calendar days.⁶⁴ Otherwise, the application will be terminated as being no longer relevant.

Asylum applicants parents of children born in Austria are obliged to inform the BFA within two weeks of the birth of the child. Upon receipt of this information, the application is automatically registered and lodged for the child.⁶⁵

In 2023, a total of 58,686 applications for international protection were lodged in Austria. This marks a 48% decrease compared to 2022, where 112,000 applications were lodged. Despite this, the number of asylum applications in 2023 was the fourth highest since the ratification of the Geneva Refugee Convention. In 2021, after three years of very low numbers in the context of the pandemic, the numbers of applications almost reached 2016 levels (42,285). The even higher increase in 2022 was however accompanied by a record number of discontinued cases (42,549), most likely due to onward movement of the applicants to other countries. This trend continued in 2023, as almost 30,000 discontinued cases were registered. The number of discontinued or suspended cases dropped significantly from 31,066 in 2023 to only 3,411 in 2024 (a decrease of 89%).

Each member of a family has to submit a separate application for international protection. During the interview, they are asked whether they have individual reasons to apply for protection or whether they want to rely on the reasons of one of their family members. Accompanied children are represented in the procedure by their parents, who are requested to submit the reasons on behalf of their children.

C. Procedures

The regular asylum procedure is regulated in the AsylG (predominantly material law) and AVG and BFA-VG (predominantly procedural law).

⁶⁷ BFA, Detail-Statistik – Kennzahlen BFA 2024 – 1.-4. Quartal, January 2025, available in German here.

As already mentioned, the BFA is a specific department of the Ministry of interior, dealing with asylum matters. In 2014, the tasks of the BAF were further extended to cover some immigration law procedures.

According to the General Administrative Procedures Act (AVG), decisions have to be taken within 6 months after the application for international protection has been lodged.⁶⁸ Within 20 calendar days, the BFA has to decide whether it intends to reject the application as inadmissible due to the responsibility of another Member State under the Dublin Regulation, the application of the safe third country concept or in case of subsequent asylum applications, or to dismiss the application for other reasons.⁶⁹ Since 2018, the admissibility procedure may be prolonged by lifting the 20 days deadline in manifestly unfounded cases.⁷⁰ However, if no information about the intention to reject the application is issued within 20 calendar days, the application is automatically admitted into the regular procedure. Thus, the asylum-applicant should receive the preliminary residence permit as asylum applicant and be allocated to the reception system of a federal province.⁷¹ On the contrary, if the asylum application is deemed inadmissible the asylum-applicant receives legal assistance and has to be heard in presence of their lawyer. There is no legal remedy against this procedural order.

If no procedural order is notified to the asylum applicant within 20 days, the asylum application is admitted to the regular procedure – except in Dublin cases if requests to other Member States to take charge or take back the asylum applicant are made within this time frame.

In case of delay from the BFA, the asylum applicant may request that the case be referred to the Federal Administrative Court for a decision (Säumnisbeschwerde).⁷² However, in practice asylum applicants do not frequently make such requests, as they miss a chance of receiving a positive decision at first instance (by the BFA). In case of delay from the Federal Administrative Court, a request for the establishment of a deadline may be addressed to the Administrative High Court.

In 2024 the average duration of the asylum procedure at first instance was 7.8 months,⁷³ compared to 5.5. in 2023, 3.5 months in 2022 and 3.2 months in 2021.⁷⁴

In 2024 the number of decisions taken in the fast-track procedure decreased drastically compared to the record number of 2022 and continued the downwards trend from 2023. 1,389 decisions were taken in the fast-track procedures (compared to 8,121 in 2023 and 22,109 in 2022). The average length of the fast-track procedure in the first half of 2023 was 32,5days (2023: 34.5 days).⁷⁵ There were no accelerated procedures in 2024 (2023: 300).

The decisions in fast-track procedures mainly concerned applicants from countries listed as safe countries of origin and manifestly ill-founded applications from applicants from India. In fast-track procedures in 2024, 35% concerned Moroccan applicants, 15% applicants from Türkiye and 15% from Tunisia.⁷⁶

In recent years, the Austrian Ombudsman has received numerous complaints on the length of asylum procedures at first instance. After a decrease in the number of complaints over several years, there was a significant increase in the summer of 2022. 418 persons lodged a complaint concerning the length of the procedure, of which 284 were decided by the Ombudsperson. In 195 cases, the complaints were justified; in 95 cases the BFA decided after the complaint was lodged.⁷⁷ In 2023, 771 persons lodged a complaint concerning the BFA, and 489 complaints were deemed justified. In 2024 the upwards trend continued: 1,000 persons lodged a complaint against the asylum authority (BFA), out of which 929 were about the length of a procedure under the asylum act (Asylgesetz).⁷⁸ 771 complaints regarding the length of a procedure were deemed justified.

At the end of 2024, 29,366 (2023: 38,053) cases were pending, out of which 17,254 (2023: 29,636) at first instance and 12,112 (2023: 8,417) at second instance.⁷⁹ The second instance backlog increased by 43% in comparison to 2023. The number of pending cases at first instance decreased by 42% compared to 2023.⁸⁰ The number of discontinued or suspended cases has dropped significantly from 31,066 in 2023 to only 3,411 in 2024 (a decrease of 89%). The main reason to discontinue a case is when an applicant leaves Austria before a final decision upon their asylum application is issued. The BFA files a case as discontinued three months after not being able to reach the applicant.

It should be recalled that after the fall of the Assad regime in December 2024, all asylum procedures of Syrian nationals were suspended.

1.2. Prioritised examination and fast-track processing

The time limit for decisions for the BFA and the Federal Administrative Court are reduced to 3 months in case the asylum applicant is detained pending deportation.⁸¹ The same maximum time limit applies to the 'procedure for the initiation of a measure terminating residence' (see Accelerated Procedure).

In 2023 and 2024, the practice of fast-track processing focused on applicants coming from countries listed as "safe countries of origin" and on manifestly ill-founded applications. In second instance, there is also a focus on applicants who have already been sentenced by a criminal court. The great majority of fast-track processing deals with cases from applicants originating from so called safe countries of origin (see Safe Country of Origin). This was also due to the high number of applications from Morocco at the start of 2023. Also in 2024, most fast-track procedures concerned applications for international protection by Moroccan nationals, but the percentages of cases from Morocco decreased in comparison to 2023.

1.3. Personal interview

Indicators: Regular Procedure: Personal Interview

1. Is a personal interview of the asylum applicant in most cases conducted in practice in the regular procedure? ☒ Yes ☐ No
❖ If so, are interpreters available in practice, for interviews? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. In the regular procedure, is the interview conducted by the authority responsible for taking the decision?⁸² ☒ Yes ☐ No
3. Are interviews conducted through video conferencing? ☐ Frequently ☐ Rarely ☒ Never
4. Can the asylum applicant request the interviewer and the interpreter to be of a specific gender? ☐ Yes ☒ No⁸³
❖ If so, is this applied in practice, for interviews? ☐ Yes ☐ No

All asylum applicants must undergo a personal interview, provided that they have legal capacity to do so. At the start of each interview, asylum applicants are asked whether they feel physically and psychologically fit for the interview. If not, the interview will be postponed. In practice, a postponement is not requested by the applicants. The interviews are conducted individually (this also applies to family members who are applying for asylum together). There is no specific age limit at which the authorities begin to question underage applicants.

Asylum applicants are further subject to an interrogation by security services (police personnel) shortly after lodging the application for the purposes of the Dublin and Admissibility Procedure.⁸⁴ These interrogations are carried out with a view to establish the identity and the travel route of the asylum applicant. They should not, however, refer to the merits of the application such as specific reasons for fleeing and lodging an asylum application. Despite the fact that the first interrogation is conducted by the police and not by caseworkers of the BFA,⁸⁵ the statements made by the asylum applicant at this stage of the admissibility procedure have an important impact on the asylum procedure as they are accorded particular importance by the BFA.⁸⁶ The Constitutional Court confirmed in a judgement of 2012 that

⁸² However, the official conducting the interview is no longer responsible for the decision.

⁸³ Article 20 (1) AsylG foresees that an asylum applicant whose fear of persecution is founded on violations of sexual self-determination is to be questioned by an officer of the same sex unless the asylum applicant requests the opposite. In general, requests can be made but there is no legal right to get an interviewer and interpreter of a specific gender. The requests in other cases than Article 20 (1) are usually not respected by the BFA.

⁸⁴ Article 19 AsylG.

⁸⁵ Article 19 AsylG.

reasons for applying for international protection shall not be in the focus of the first interview conducted by police services.⁸⁷

Asylum applicants may be accompanied by a person they trust (i.e. person of confidence) and unaccompanied children cannot be interviewed without the presence of their legal representative.⁸⁸

The law further provides for a choice of interviewer according to gender considerations in cases where the asylum applicant's fear of persecution is related to sexual self-determination.⁸⁹ The authorities must demonstrate that they have informed the asylum applicant of the possibility to be interviewed by an official of the same sex.⁹⁰ In practice, however, this is not consistently applied with regard to interpreters.⁹¹ In the appeal procedure, infringements of the right to sexual self-determination have to be expressed in the written appeal in order to have the hearing at the Court held by a judge of the same sex. The Constitutional Court ruled that UNHCR guidelines have to be applied to male asylum applicants accordingly.⁹²

1.3.1. Interpretation

Interpreters are provided by the BFA and cover most of the languages, but interviews may also be conducted in a language the asylum applicant is deemed to understand sufficiently.⁹³ The provision of interpreters has been reported as not satisfactory with regard to certain languages, even in cases where a significant number of asylum applicants may be concerned (e.g. Chechen refugees are often interviewed in Russian).⁹⁴ Asylum applicants are asked at the beginning of the interview if they understand the interpreter. There are no standards for the qualification of interpreters in asylum procedures. Interpretation is often not done by accredited interpreters; usually persons with the requested language knowledge are contracted on a case-by-case basis. UNHCR has published a training manual for interpreters in asylum procedures.⁹⁵

As of 1 January 2021, according to the Federal Law on the Establishment of the Federal Agency for Care and Support Services Limited Liability Company (BBU-G) passed in June 2019, a federal agency annexed to the Ministry of Interior is responsible for the provision of interpreters for the purpose of asylum procedures. This includes the provision of interpreters both at first and second instance, but also in case of oral hearings in front of the BVwG as well as in procedures concerning basic support. The law lists a wide range of areas in which interpreters should be provided by the federal agency, inter alia for interviews related to the making of an application for international protection; for measures relating to the termination of the right to stay as well as for the granting or limitation of basic services. As of May 2025, ten interpreters (7,64 full time equivalent) were employed by the BBU GmbH.⁹⁶ In practice, the service provided by internal interpreters were not of great relevance but is to be seen as a test phase for a possible expansion of the department in future. The state-run agency took over the existing system established by the NGOs. In most cases, external interpreters were hired throughout 2024.

Video conferencing was introduced in 2018. The BFA in Burgenland held interviews to assist the BFA in Vienna and in Vorarlberg in this context.⁹⁷ This new practice is based on Art. 51a of the General Administrative Act, which allows the use of technical facilities for word and image transmission - unless a personal interview is necessary for economical or personal reasons.

There are concerns about the practice of conducting interviews through video conferencing as there is no standard procedure to handle these new tools and they raise issues of confidentiality and procedural rights. Lawyers reported an increase in videoconferencing by the BFA and BVwG during 2020. In most cases, it is up to the applicant and the legal representative to arrange the necessary technical equipment. Issues reported in certain cases include: a judge turning off the video during a court session; the impossibility to see the translator on video; the fact that in certain cases the judges did not allow the legal representative to sit in the room as the applicant; or the fact that in certain cases a protocol was sent without encryption.

It should be noted that, as part of its BRIDGE project, UNHCR Austria has produced a checklist “Self-check for interviews and negotiations using technical equipment for word and image transmission in the asylum procedure” for videoconferences in asylum procedures.⁹⁸

The transcript is more or less verbatim. Its content may depend on the caseworkers' and interpreter's summarising the answers, choosing expressions that fit the transcript or translating each sentence of the asylum applicant.⁹⁹ Immediately after the interview, the transcript is translated by the same interpreter in a language the asylum applicant understands, and the asylum applicant has the possibility to ask for corrections and completion immediately after the interview. The interviewer (judge or official of the authority) may refrain from producing a copy of the interview transcript even without a waiver of the applicant. In this case, the persons consulted may request that a copy be delivered by the end of the interview and may raise objections due to alleged incompleteness or inaccuracy of the minutes within two weeks of delivery.¹⁰⁰ By signing the transcript, they agree with its content. If asylum applicants find something incorrect in the transcript after having signed it at the end of the interview, they should send a written statement to the BFA as soon as possible. In practice, asylum applicants do not frequently ask immediately after the interview for correction of the report. Some asylum applicants explain that they were too tired to be able to follow the translation of the transcript.¹⁰¹ The OHCHR stated in its report on the mission to Austria from October 2018 that many caseworkers of the BFA are not adequately trained in using techniques that fit the needs of asylum applicants. In a number of cases monitored by the OHCHR, negative decisions of the BFA were based on personal views and involved biased questioning during interviews as well as stereotypes on gender and race.¹⁰²

1.4. Appeal

Indicators: Regular Procedure: Appeal

1. Does the law provide for an appeal against the first instance decision in the regular procedure?

❖ If yes, is it

❖ If yes, is it suspensive

☒ Judicial ☐ Administrative

☒ Yes ☐ Some grounds ☐ No
2. Average processing time for the appeal body to make a decision: Not available

1.4.1. Appeal before the BVwG

Appeals against a negative first instance decision generally have to be submitted within 4 weeks of the receipt of the decision and the whole asylum file is forwarded by the BFA to the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG).¹⁰³ However, following an amendment which came into effect on 1 September 2018, the time limit has been set at 2 weeks for appeals in inadmissibility procedures and in cases of refugee status withdrawals that were initiated along with a return decision regarding people with in accelerated procedures (due to criminal convictions or ongoing criminal investigations).¹⁰⁴

Within 2 months following the lodging of an appeal, the BFA may decide to modify the decision that is being challenged.¹⁰⁵ This means that it can decide either to annul, reject or change its initial decision. However, where the BFA refrains from modifying its decision, it forwards the appeal to the Court. In practice, there are almost no cases in which the BFA decides to modify its own decision.

In case refugee status or subsidiary protection status is not granted by the BFA, the asylum applicant will be assigned a free legal adviser provided by the state at the time of notification of the first instance decision. Since January 2021, legal assistance is provided by a new federal agency (see Legal Assistance).

Article 18(1) BFA-VG provides that the suspensive effect of the appeal may be withdrawn by the BFA where the application is manifestly unfounded, i.e. where:

- (1) The applicant comes from a safe country of origin;
- (2) Has already been resident in Austria for at least 3 months prior to the lodging of the application;
- (3) The applicant has attempted to deceive the BFA concerning their true identity or nationality or the authenticity of their documents;
- (4) The asylum applicant has not adduced any reasons for persecution;
- (5) The allegations made by the asylum applicant concerning the danger they face clearly do not correspond with reality;
- (6) An enforceable deportation order or an enforceable entry ban was issued against the asylum seeker prior to the lodging of the application for international protection; or
- (7) The asylum seeker refuses to give fingerprints.

The BFA uses this possibility to withdraw the suspensive effect especially when there is an enforceable deportation order or when there are no reasons for persecution stated, NGO counselling organisations told asylkoordination.

Moreover, the BFA must withdraw the suspensive effect of an appeal against a return decision where:¹⁰⁶

- (1) The immediate departure of the third-country national is required for reasons of public policy or public security;
- (2) The third-country national has violated an entry ban and has returned to Austrian territory; or
- (3) There is a risk of absconding.

¹⁰⁵ Article 14(1) Administrative Court Procedures Act (VwG-VG).

¹⁰⁶ Article 18(2) BFA-VG.

The BVwG must grant automatic suspensive effect within 1 week from the lodging of the appeal, where it assumes that return would expose the concerned person to a real risk of a violation of Articles 2, 3, 8 and 13 ECHR or Protocols 6; or to a serious threat to life or person by reason of indiscriminate violence in situations of conflict in line with Article 15(c) of the recast Qualification Directive.¹⁰⁷ The reasons must be set out in the main complaint. In cases where there is an enforceable deportation order and no reason for persecution stated, the BVwG does not grant suspensive effect.¹⁰⁸ However, the VwGH has recognised the relevant case law of the ECJ on the (necessary) suspensive effect of appeals against return decisions.¹⁰⁹

Appeals against the rejection of an application with suspensive effect must be ruled by the Court within 8 weeks.¹¹⁰ The asylum appeal has suspensive effect as long as the case is pending in court.

The BVwG is organised in chambers, each of which is responsible for certain groups of countries. In recent years, the Court processed appeals on asylum cases as follows:

Following the increase of appeals and backlog of cases at second instance, judges from different fields of law have gradually been assigned to decide upon asylum procedures since 2017; despite their lack of expertise on asylum-related matters. In 2022, the BVwG concluded 13,300 procedures in which 20,500 decisions were taken. 9,700 decisions of the BFA were cancelled/annulled or amended by the BVwG, while 7,900 decisions of the BFA were confirmed.¹¹¹ 6,500 court hearings were conducted in 2022 and 4,550 in the first half of 2023. In 2024, in 5,210 first instance cases the appeal was sustained and the decisions were cancelled/annulled or amended. In 10,560 cases the decisions of the first instance were confirmed.¹¹² The rest were neutral decisions.

In 2024, about 30% of all decisions challenged were dismissed or amended by the BVwG. This confirms the trend of the last years, with consistently at least one third of decisions being overturned. Moreover, the first instance authority now evaluates whether the reason why a decision was annulled or amended were external or internal. External factors are e.g. a change of situation in the country of origin since the first instance decision took place or if new evidence was brought in. Internal factors are e.g. inaccurate investigations, (legal) interpretation mistakes or formal errors committed by the authority.

The BVwG can request another hearing and additional examinations if necessary. Conversely, the BFA-VG also allows for exceptions to a personal hearing on an appeal; i.e. a hearing must not be held if the facts seem to be established from the case file or if it is established that the submission of the applicant does not correspond to the facts.¹¹³ This provision must be read in light of the restrictions on the submission of new facts in the appeal procedure.

It should be further noted that video conferencing tools are available at a small scale at the Courts, but they are rarely used.

The question whether a personal hearing before the BVwG has to take place or not has been brought before the Constitutional Court (VfGH). The Court ruled that not holding a personal hearing in the appeal procedure does not generally violate Article 47(2) of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights. Charter rights may be pleaded before the Constitutional Court. The Court stated that Article 21(7) AsylG,¹¹⁴ is in line with Article 47(2) of the EU Charter if the applicant was heard in the administrative procedure.¹¹⁵ However, subsequent rulings of the Administrative High Court and the Constitutional Court have conversely specified the obligation of the Administrative Court to conduct a personal hearing. In the case of an Afghan asylum applicant, the Administrative Court had confirmed the first instance decision which found the asylum applicant's application to be lacking credibility due to discrepancies in statements about his age. The Constitutional Court ruled that, by deciding without a personal hearing, the Administrative Court had violated the right laid down in Article 47(2) of the EU Charter.¹¹⁶ Two rulings to the same effect were delivered by the Constitutional Court in September 2014.¹¹⁷

¹¹³ Article 21(7) BFA-VG.

¹¹⁴ At the time of the judgement, Article 21 (7) AsylG was codified in Article 41(7) AsylG.

The Administrative High Court (VwGH) has specified that all relevant facts have to be assessed by the determining authority and have to be up to date at the time of the decision of the court.¹¹⁸ It further stated that it was not necessary to explicitly request an oral hearing if the facts were not sufficiently clear or if the statements of the applicant in their appeal contradicted the statements taken by the first instance authority.¹¹⁹

The possible outcome of an appeal can be the granting of a status, the refusal of a status, or a referral by the BVwG back to the BFA for further investigations and a re-examination of the case. Hearings at the Court are public, but the public may be excluded on certain grounds. Decisions of the BVwG are published on the legal information website of the Federal Chancellery.¹²⁰

1.4.2. Onward appeal before the VwGH

Decisions of the BVwG may be appealed before the VwGH. The eligibility to appeal to the VwGH is determined by the BVwG, but in case the Administrative Court declares a regular revision as inadmissible, ¹²⁰ Decisions of the Federal Administrative Court are available here. However, according to the General Administrative Procedures Act, decisions may not be made public if it is necessary for reasons of public order or national security, morality, the protection of children or the private life of the asylum applicant or for the protection of a witness.

the asylum applicant may lodge an “extraordinary” revision.¹²¹ In order to file an appeal to the VwGH, the applicant has to be represented by an attorney and pay a fee of € 240,-. For that purpose, the applicant may submit a request for free legal assistance (public defender assigned by the court and waiver of the fees). If the court is of the opinion that the legal action has no prospect of success, it rejects the application for legal aid. An appeal to the VwGH has no automatic suspensive effect.

Out of 808 revisions conducted in 2024, 12 were regular revisions and 796 were extraordinary revisions. In 2024 all the regular revisions were requested by applicants, none by the determining authority. Out of the 796 extraordinary revisions, 121 were requested the determining authority and 675 by applicants.¹²² This is a drastic increase in revisions applied for by the first instance authority compared to previous years.

In case the asylum applicant seeks to challenge the decision in front of the BVwG and if they claim it is violating a constitutional right, they can lodge an appeal within 6 weeks, after the ruling of the Federal Administrative Court has become final. Asylum applicants are informed of the possibility to address a complaint to the Constitutional Court in writing and this information is translated in a language the asylum applicant understands. In that context, it has to be mentioned that the ECHR is part of Austria's constitutional law. Therefore, the risk of violation of Articles 2, 3 or 8 ECHR can be challenged in front of the Constitutional Court, while the rejection of an application for international protection does not fall under the Court's competence. The appeal does not have automatic suspensive effect, however. Around 97 decisions of the BVwG, in which the decision was considered arbitrary, have been ruled unlawful by the Constitutional Court in 2019.¹²³ In 2020, 107 decisions were considered arbitrary and ruled unlawful by the Constitutional Court.¹²⁴ No data was available for 2021-2024 at the time of writing.

Asylum applicants face difficulties to access constitutional appeals as the payment of a fee of € 240 is required to that end. Furthermore, asylum applicants are not heard in person before the Constitutional Court, which rather requests written statements from the BVwG.

1.5.1. Legal assistance at first instance

In June 2019, the Austrian Parliament adopted a law establishing a Federal Agency for Care and Support Services (Bundesagentur für Betreuungs- und Unterstützungsleistungen, BBU GmbH) which is in charge inter alia of providing legal assistance to asylum applicants at first and second instance since 1 January 2021. The new law has been criticised by several organisations, as it raises concerns over the risk of ¹²¹ In case of regular revision, it is a precondition that the BVwG believes that there is no clear jurisdiction by the high courts yet. The VwGH is not bound to that classification by the BVwG. In practice, the difference is that free legal aid is granted automatically only in cases where the BVwG classified a possible revision as regular. Since one must be represented by a lawyer in front of the VwGH, this can make a difference in a person's possibility to be assisted for the appeal.

¹²² Ministry of Justice, Answer to parliamentary request 634/AB XXVIII. GP, 19 May 2025, available in German here.

arbitrary access to free legal assistance. In its Legal note on the Austrian law, ECRE demonstrated that while access to legal assistance at first instance was the general rule under the previous Article 49(1) BFA-VG, it becomes the exception under the new law. With the exception of unaccompanied minors, legal assistance at first instance shall now only be provided according to the “available possibilities”, and does not constitute a right, except in specific cases listed in the Asylum Act. In other words, access to free legal assistance at first instance is only granted when existing resources are available (e.g. staff and funding), and is not a right for all.¹²⁵

Moreover, the reform introduces a new threshold which grants the asylum applicant the right to free legal assistance by the Agency only if an appointment – during which the applicant exercises their right to be heard – is scheduled within 72 hours (3 days) after having been notified by the BFA of the intention to reject the asylum application. This means that, if the BFA grants the asylum applicant the right to be heard at a later stage (e.g. in 4 or 5 days), free legal assistance by the Agency will only be available if resources so allow. Consequently, there is a risk of arbitrary access to free legal assistance at first instance which will largely depend on the BFA’s goodwill allowing the asylum applicant to be heard in due time.

The BBU GmbH has some AMIF funded capacities in first instance and provides open counselling in first instance as long as “possibilities are available”. The counselling services are provided at the buildings of the regional directorates of the BFA. There is no funding for transportation costs for persons willing to receive counselling at this stage. At first instance, the BBU GmbH has the legal obligation to provide legal counselling in all procedures where the first interview by the BFA is conducted within 72 hours. In these procedures, the counsellors of the BBU also have to take part in the interviews carried out with the BFA. At the time of writing, this concerned mainly subsequent applications, fast-track procedures and procedures at the airport. The BBU GmbH is not being appointed in Dublin cases by the BFA and therefore is not involved in interviews in these procedures in general in first instance.

It should be noted, however, that the previous legal aid-system in place until the end of 2020 did not meet the needs of asylum applicants either. VMÖ, which received most of the funding for legal assistance in the first instance procedure,¹²⁶ was criticised for not being very helpful nor committed to the protection of the rights of asylum applicants due to its cooperation with the Ministry of Interior.¹²⁷

While the BBU GmbH is a federal agency owned by the Ministry of Interior, the head of legal counselling (and the counsellors themselves) are not bound by directives of the CEO of the BBU GmbH. The head of legal counselling is appointed by the Ministry of Justice and has the technical supervision, while administrative/disciplinary supervision lies under the responsibility of the CEO of BBU GmbH. This fairly complex construction should prevent pressure and interference from the Ministry of Interior (which is also the head of the BFA) on the legal counselling unit. Legal advisors at BBU GmbH must meet one of the following requirements: a completed degree in law; or a completed four-year university degree along with at least three consecutive years of experience in immigration law; or at least five consecutive years of professional experience in immigration law.¹²⁸ The BBU GmbH has to ensure regular training measures for the legal advisors it employs.¹²⁹

Even though some improvements were achieved in comparison to the previous dysfunctional legal aid system (e.g. trainings of legal advisors, legal aid in front of the High Courts, setting up quality standards), the centralised legal aid system under the BBU GmbH is very fragile from a fundamental rights perspective. The Ministry of Interior still has the right to nominate half of the members of the supervisory board, even if it only appointed two external experts in 2020. An expert board was founded to establish counselling standards.

¹²⁹ § 13 Abs 4 Z 2 BBU Establishment Act.

In December 2023, the Constitutional Court issued a decision declaring the central legislative act of the BBU-G not in accordance with the Austrian constitution. The independence of legal advice for asylum applicants and aliens by the Federal Care Agency is only laid out in the form of a contract between the Agency and the Ministry, but not adequately guaranteed by law, which is why the right to an effective legal remedy is violated. The corresponding provisions in the BBU Establishment Act (BBU-G) and the BFA Procedural Act (BFA-VG) are repealed as unconstitutional.

Indeed, due to several complaints from asylum applicants against the findings of the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG), the Constitutional Court had concerns as to whether the provisions regarding the provision of legal advice and representation by the Federal Agency for Care and Support Services (BBU GmbH) complied with the constitutional requirements of Article 47 of the EU -Fundamental Rights Charter (right to an effective remedy) and Article 20 B-VG (administration of bodies that are fundamentally bound by instructions).

In the view of the Constitutional Court, the prerequisite for effective legal protection is that the BBU's legal advisors are not subject to instructions and are independent, particularly from the Minister of the Interior, who is responsible for enforcing immigration law. The independence of legal advisors is enshrined in law. However, the position of the legal advisors in the BBU and in relation to the Minister of the Interior, who acts as the owner's representative in the BBU under company law, is spelled out in more detail in a contract. But, by concluding this framework agreement, the management of the BBU is bound to instructions from the Minister of the Interior (together with the Minister of Justice) in terms of corporate law. The contractual regulation is therefore not sufficient to effectively implement the independence of legal advice.

Conversely, the private law structure of BBU GmbH as such is found to be constitutional. The legal advice and representation designed in this way does not represent functional state administrative management within the meaning of Article 20 Paragraph 1 B-VG. The legislature does have a legal entity controlled by the state to provide legal advice and representation. However, this activity is a service for the affected asylum applicants and aliens to enforce their rights in asylum and alien law procedures, which can also be provided (and is also provided) by private individuals. The provisions regarding legal advice and representation by the BBU therefore do not violate Article 20 Paragraph 1 and Paragraph 2 B-VG.¹³⁰

Following the ruling of the Constitutional Court, the Austrian legislator amended the BBU-G in order to legally guarantee the independence of legal advice and to introduce an additional seat on the supervisory board.¹³¹ Although this amendment better ensures independent legal advice for asylum seekers, the effectiveness of the BBU's legal advice system depends entirely on the competence and effectiveness of the people involved (especially the legal advisors and the head of this department). The general concerns about a structure in which a state-owned company provides legal advice in appeal proceedings against state decisions in asylum procedures remain.¹³²

1.5.2. Legal assistance in appeals

Legal aid provided by the new BBU GmbH since 2021

The BBU GmbH counselling unit is now composed of former employees of Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst and VMÖ. The BBU GmbH was obliged to offer jobs to all employees of the latter organisations. As of September 2023, a total of 140.2 full time equivalents of counselling staff was employed by the BBU

GmbH.¹³³ While in the past legal advisers did not have to meet specific qualifications or training standards, all future advisors must hold a degree in law from an Austrian University and have completed a compulsory internship at a court. These requirements do not apply, however, to all previous staff already employed at VMÖ and ARGE organisations.¹³⁴

As opposed to the previous legal aid system where the contract between the service providers and the government did not foresee quality standards for the provision legal aid, the new contract between the BBU GmbH and the government has improved this aspect.¹³⁵ A particular concern was the fact that the quality of legal aid provided by VMÖ largely depended on the individual counsellor. The head of the counselling unit established a formation and training process consisting of three stages. In the third stage new counsellors work under supervision and receive permission to counsel on their own after positive evaluation. The formation and training course partly involve external experts and judges from Court and was also evaluated by the Qualitätsbeirat, an advisory council of the BBU GmbH.¹³⁶

The tasks of the BBU GmbH include counselling, representation and explanation of judgements. The law requires counselling to be 'objective'. The advisors will have to explain the perspective the applicants have. If the applicants request representation, the advisors have to act in favour of partisan interests. The main tasks will consist in writing appeals as legal representatives and representation in court sessions. The mandate prescribed by law ends upon receipt of the final decision of the Court, although the BBU GmbH must then still explain the content of the judgement and explain the perspectives. As the provision of legal aid must also meet the conditions of Article 47 of the EU Charter, it must ensure an effective access to the High Courts. Upon request by the applicants in cases where the judgement has chances to be overruled by the High Courts, the BBU GmbH must support the applicants in obtaining free legal aid from the normal legal aid system.

One project run by Caritas Austria offers assistance during the hearing before the Federal Administrative Court, but this resource is limited and therefore only a certain number of cases can be assisted. AMIF funding is no longer guaranteed but the project continues on a smaller scale with alternative funding. It also worked on a very small scale during 2022¹³⁷ and 2024.

Besides this free legal advice funded by the state, NGOs help asylum applicants lodging appeals and submitting written statements, accompany them to personal hearings at the Federal Administrative Court and may act as legal representatives. NGOs cannot represent asylum applicants before the Constitutional Court or the Administrative High Court, as this can only be done by an attorney-at-law.

Legal assistance free of charge is provided in case of the rejection of a subsequent asylum application on res judicata grounds too. The Constitutional Court and the Administrative High Court apply a merits test and tend to refuse free legal aid, if the case has little chance of succeeding. The BBU-G introduces a worrying change in this regard. The law only includes an obligation to inform applicants of the prospects of success of their appeal without stipulating any consequences. However, the approach suggested by the impact assessment of the law, if applied in practice by the Federal Agency, is extremely problematic. Whereas the recast APD does not specify which other authorities could be considered competent to apply a merits test, entrusting the Federal Agency with that task will create an obvious conflict of interest. Moreover, where another authority than a court or tribunal carries out a merits test, the applicant must have the right to an effective remedy before a court or tribunal against that decision, according to Article 20(3) recast Asylum Procedures Directive. If in practice the Federal Agency were to refuse free legal assistance and representation on that basis without the applicant having an effective opportunity to challenge that decision before a court or tribunal, there would be a clear breach of the recast Asylum Procedures Directive.

The centralisation of legal aid and founding of the BBU GmbH significantly restricts the potential role for and funding of civil society organisations. Since the beginning of 2021, only 10% of the staff of Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst were still employed as a result of the contract cancellation in 2020. Funding remains a difficult topic for non-governmental counselling organisations. As of December 2024, there are still several NGOs such as Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst, Caritas (active in Lower Austria, Vienna, Vorarlberg), Integrationshaus Wien, Deserteurs- und Flüchtlingsberatung, Queer Base, ZEBRA (Graz), Fluchtpunkt Tirol, Asyl in Not and tralalobe (Vienna) offering legal counselling to asylum applicants.¹³⁸

Considering the fact that the BBU GmbH represents most applicants in the second instance procedure and the continued high rate of overturned decisions, a backsliding compared to the work of its predecessors which used to be responsible for state-provided legal assistance cannot be observed.

In 2024, BBU GmbH provided 24,587 counselling sessions (2023: 21,633) and supported applicants in 9,916 cases (2023: 8,660) to bring an appeal against negative decisions. They represented applicants in 5,830 court hearings (2023: 4,917). In 167 cases in which the applicants were represented by the BBU GmbH, the court held a hearing without a legal advisor present.¹³⁹ Following two rulings by the Constitutional court from 3 October 2024, it is an arbitrary application of procedural law if an applicant appears at the hearing without the legal representation of BBU GmbH appointed by the court and the court does not expressly ask the party whether the hearing can be held without the presence of its legal representation. This shall also apply if BBU GmbH has previously informed the court in writing that the complaining party has no objection to the oral hearing being held in the absence of its legal representation.¹⁴⁰

In practice, there is a constant exchange on general topics between the BBU GmbH and NGOs working in the field. There is broad acknowledgement of the well-established practice of counselling performed by the BBU GmbH, but the criticism on the general structure and possible influence by the Ministry of Interior remains. Even the so-called 'Qualitätsbeirat', a group responsible for evaluating, observing and providing recommendations to the legal counselling department, stated in its report for 2021 that the current positive development is strongly related to the personalities of the director of the institution and the head of legal counselling, who values and fosters independence in the provision of legal counselling. Nevertheless, the Qualitätsbeirat recommends taking further legislative measures to strengthen the independence of the legal counselling department.¹⁴¹ As mentioned above some of these concerns were addressed by a ruling of the Constitutional Court in 2023 and the consequent amendment of the BBU-G in July 2024. In 2022, the Qualitätsbeirat focused on the assessment and improvement of the quality of the counselling provided by the BBU GmbH and on the translation services. It underlined the good quality of the services provided and the good cooperation of the BBU GmbH with the Qualitätsbeirat. Nevertheless, it stressed again that legislative changes are necessary to strengthen the independence of the legal counselling department of the BBU GmbH from the Ministry of Interior.¹⁴² The 2023 report of the Qualitätsbeirat highlights key challenges, particularly regarding unaccompanied minor refugees (UMFs). Nearly 600 UMFs remained in BBU facilities due to delays in transferring them to provincial care, overburdening the independent legal advice service, which lacks a guardianship mandate. The Board urges the Ministries of the Interior and Justice to ensure prompt guardianship assignments and faster transfers. It also stresses adherence to complaint deadlines in asylum procedures and reviewed an external evaluation on the independence and quality of BBU's legal advice.¹⁴³ Additionally, on site visits, such as one in Salzburg, assessed working conditions and infrastructure.

Dublin statistics: 2024

As of December 2024, Austria carried out 1,184 (2023: 1,240) outgoing Dublin transfers and received 1,511 (2023: 2,166) incoming transfers.¹⁴⁴ In 2024, the main countries receiving outgoing transfers from Austria were Germany (24%), Croatia (21%) and Romania (12%).¹⁴⁵

In December 2022 Italy announced a temporary stop of Dublin transfers to Italy due to “technical reasons”. There is no official information as to when Dublin transfers to Italy will resume.¹⁴⁶ In 2023 and 2024, no transfers to Italy took place.

2.1.1. Application of the Dublin criteria

If the special regulation due to threats to public security and order comes into effect (see Access to the Territory), third-country nationals will be returned to neighbouring countries. Since it would not be possible to lodge an asylum application, this would completely contravene the Dublin system.¹⁴⁷ As of 2024 such a regulation was never issued.

Austria applies the Dublin procedure systematically and, where it proves impossible to transfer an asylum applicant to one country, examines the criteria of the Regulation to determine whether the person can be sent to another country.¹⁴⁸

Documentation and entry

The Dublin Regulation may be triggered if there is a so-called “Eurodac hit”, i.e. if the asylum applicant has obtained a visa from another Member State, if the asylum applicant admits that they entered the EU via another Member State or if there is a suspicion or circumstantial evidence indicating the asylum applicant entered via another Member State. Although there are other grounds applicable for determining a Member State’s responsibility under the Dublin III Regulation, these are the most common grounds applied in Austria.

After the CJEU ruling in Jafari,¹⁴⁹ which found that the state-organised transit through the Western Balkan route in 2015-2016 qualified as “illegal entry” under Article 13 of the Regulation, the VwGH dismissed the appeal against a transfer to Croatia on those grounds. The Court did not indicate that Austria applied the discretionary clauses in these cases.¹⁵⁰

In a case concerning a person who transited through Bulgaria and following a short stay travelled to Serbia and then entered Hungary, without applying for asylum in any of these countries, the Administrative High Court ruled that the provisions of Article 13(1) in conjunction with Article 19(2) of the Dublin III Regulation and in the light of the A.S. ruling of the CJEU, can only be understood as meaning that the criterion of illegal entry, as defined in Article 13(1) of the Dublin III Regulation, is applicable if the asylum applicant did not apply for international protection in that Member State, but if that application was made in another Member State after a short-term voluntary exit to a third country. Bulgaria was therefore deemed responsible for the asylum application.¹⁵¹

Family unity

The BFA has put forward surprising arguments in the context of family reunification under the Dublin Regulation. In a case of an unaccompanied minor to whom a protection was granted in Austria, the Greek Asylum Service submitted a “take charge” request for the parents to be transferred from Greece to Austria. The BFA refused responsibility on the ground that the parents had deliberately accepted the separation from their minor child. The rejection of such requests is not considered a formal decision which may be legally challenged before the BVwG. Requests from Greece are also handled very slowly and take often more than a year, which is why Austria ends up being responsible for the asylum application by default. In 2022 Austria received 39 take back and take-charge requests from the Greek Dublin Unit, out of which 14 were accepted. Moreover, a total of 14 transfers were carried out (including transfers pending from the year before).¹⁵² According to Eurostat as reported by Austria, Austria received 44 requests from Greece, including 22 take charge requests and 22 take back requests. Austria decided on 51 requests, potentially including some sent in 2022: 28 take charge and 23 take back requests were accepted. However, only 3 transfers took place in 2023, two based on article 8 (unaccompanied minor with a family member legally present in Austria), and one based on the humanitarian clause.

In 2017, the VwGH examined the question of whether an unaccompanied child could stay in Austria, whilst Italy had been determined as responsible for his family members. Whereas the BVwG had referred to the sovereignty clause of Article 17 of the Dublin Regulation in order to prevent a violation of the right to private and family life, the VwGH stated that Article 11 of the Dublin Regulation prevailed in order to ensure the unity of the family and the best interests of the child.¹⁵³

In 2018, the BVwG had to rule on a case of family reunification concerning parents that had applied for asylum in Austria, while their minor child and the grandmother had applied for asylum in Greece. In accordance with the Dublin III Regulation, Greece requested Austria to be responsible for the applications. However, the BFA had doubts on whether family reunification would be in the best interests of the child and refused to take responsibility. The BVwG confirmed the rejection of the BFA. In the case of refusal of family reunification, the only available option for the requesting Member State is to request a re-examination. As regards the asylum applicant, they cannot act directly against the negative decision nor bring it to appeal, as this is a purely intergovernmental procedure. Therefore, in this case, it was the responsibility of Greece as the requesting Member State to challenge Austria's refusal to grant family reunification. The revision was rejected by the High Administrative Court.¹⁵⁴

As a consequence of two cases that asylkoordination österreich had put forward to the Ombudsman, the Minister of Interior and the Ombudsman agreed that the BFA should involve the Child and Youth Welfare Agency when it examines family reunification requests under the Dublin III Regulation to UAMs living in Austria.¹⁵⁵ However no changes have been noted in practice.¹⁵⁶

In January 2021, a deportation of a family to Georgia in the middle of the night was debated publicly. One girl was born in Austria and resided in the country over ten years. The case shed light on the fact that children's rights are often not taken into account in asylum procedures and decisions. The Ministry of Justice introduced a Child Welfare Commission headed by former presidential candidate Irmgard Griss to evaluate the implementation of children's rights in asylum procedures.¹⁵⁷ The Commission presented an elaborated report in July 2021 with many recommendations on how the best interest of the child could be guaranteed better in the asylum process, including reception conditions and Dublin III assessment. Recommendations for improvements were presented.¹⁵⁸ In July 2022, the former member of the Commission made a press conference in which they announced that an evaluation done by Asylkoordination, and the Vienna Refugee Law Clinic showed that improvement in practice is still very poor, recommendations are neglected by the authorities. They also demanded the introduction of a permanent monitoring board concerning children's rights in Austria.¹⁵⁹ As of the end of 2024, there were no significant changes with regard to such a monitoring mechanism.

To demonstrate family ties, every asylum applicant must have mentioned the existence of other family members during asylum procedure, in Austria as well as in the other Member States where they have applied for asylum. Marriage certificates or birth certificates are required on a regular basis. Depending on the country of origin, these documents are surveyed by the Federal Bureau of Criminal Investigation to prove authenticity. Austria requires the original documents, where available, to be sent for verification and does not leave such verification to the other Member States.

DNA tests may be required to provide proof of family ties, but this is rare in practice. DNA tests should be paid by the asylum applicant. If a DNA test has been suggested¹⁶⁰ by the BFA or the Administrative Court and family links have been verified, asylum applicants may demand a refund of the costs from the BFA. The issue of DNA tests was discussed in the context of a legislative reform affecting Family Reunification but was ultimately not included in the reform.¹⁶¹

The High Administrative Court ruled in December 2022 concerning the responsibility of a state for family members: Article 9 of the Dublin III Regulation contains special jurisdiction for family members of beneficiaries of international protection. If the applicant has a family member – regardless of whether the family already existed in the country of origin – who is a beneficiary of international protection and has the right to reside in a Member State, that Member State is responsible for examining the application for international protection, provided that the persons concerned express this wish in writing. This regulation not only allows the persons concerned (the applicant and the beneficiaries of international protection) to have a say, but gives them the power to decide whether they want to be reunited ruling out the possibility that people be brought together against their will. The applicant must be informed of the requirement for such declarations within the framework of their right to information (cf. Art. 4 Para. 1 lit. b and c Dublin III Regulation) and, in the event of such a request by the applicant, it must be verified that the beneficiaries of the international protection agree to a reunification.¹⁶²

Unaccompanied children

Following the judgment of the CJEU in M.A. which concerned Article 8(4) of the Dublin III Regulation,¹⁶³ for asylum applications lodged by unaccompanied children, the BFA ordered age assessments even in cases where there are no reasons for doubts in regard to the age of the asylum applicant.

In one case concerning a transfer to Hungary, the BFA considered that the deadline for replying to a request should be suspended until an age assessment is conducted. The VwGH disagreed, however, and ruled that the deadline had expired.¹⁶⁴ In 2018, there was another case related to the deadline for replying to a transfer request. In accordance with Article 21 (1) of the Dublin III Regulation, a request for transfer had been sent to Croatia. Although the request was incomplete as it was missing the results of the medical age assessment of the child, the BFA considered that the available information was sufficient to conclude that the asylum applicant was an adult. However, the six-month transfer period was not triggered until the age report was received and Austria was therefore deemed responsible for the application.¹⁶⁵

The VwGH further had to rule on a Dublin transfer to Bulgaria. The case concerned two brothers, one of whom was still a minor. Given that Bulgaria was already responsible for the asylum application of the older brother, the BFA concluded that Bulgaria should also be responsible for the asylum application of the minor, in compliance with the principle of family unity as defined in Article 20(3) of the Dublin III Regulation. The BFA had further assumed the minority of the younger brother without conducting any age assessment. The BVwG overturned the decision and stated that Art. 8(4) applied to the accompanied minor and that, subsequently, the adult was allowed to stay on the Austrian territory in accordance with Art. 17(1) of the Dublin III Regulation. However, the VwGH followed the BFA and the adult's asylum application was rejected in first instance, on the grounds that Bulgaria remained responsible for that application.¹⁶⁶

¹⁶⁰ It is not possible for the BFA to impose a DNA test. The authorities have to enable such testing, according to Article 13(4) BFA-VG.

Until 2022, it was not possible for an unaccompanied minor applying for international protection for example in Greece or Cyprus, to successfully challenge the rejection of a take charge request for family reunification before an Austrian court. In light of more recent developments, previous case law by the highest courts is likely to be considered outdated. In its judgment of 1 August 2022 in Case C-19/21, the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) clarified that a minor must be granted the right to a judicial remedy against a negative decision by the requested Member State. In Austria, the specific legal remedy in such cases remains unresolved to date. In particular, there is a lack of clarifying case law by the Federal Administrative Court or the Supreme Administrative Court on this matter.¹⁶⁷

2.1.2. The dependent persons and discretionary clauses

Dependent persons

During a Dublin procedure with Italy, the Federal Administrative Court emphasised that Articles 16 (Dependent persons) and 17 (Discretionary clauses) of the Dublin III Regulation determine separate requirements and cannot be reduced to the meaning of Article 8 ECHR. Italy agreed to the Austrian request to take charge of the asylum application only after Austria expressed strong objections due to the fact that Italy had already issued a Schengen visa. The concerned asylum applicant in question was from Chechen origin and aged over 60 years old. He also suffered from a serious illness and a disability which suggested that he relied on support from his son who is legally residing in Austria. The Administrative Court found the decision unlawful and reverted the case back to the first instance authority because Article 16(1) of the Regulation had not been sufficiently considered by that authority. The Court noted, in addition, that Article 17(2) could also be relevant in this case because, due to the Chechen culture, the support of the son for his old parents is more likely to be accepted than foreign support.¹⁶⁸

This argumentation can be found in another decision of the Court in the case of a single Afghan mother who applied for asylum with a small child and a new-born baby. She had been raped and was suicidal. The judgment held that the authorities should examine which female relatives, living in Austria as recognised refugees, could support her by taking care of the children. Furthermore, the help of females of a family among themselves could be preferred to foreign support based on the applicant's cultural background.¹⁶⁹ The same argumentation led to the withdrawal of a Dublin decision regarding an Egyptian asylum applicant whose sister required support for her five under-age children after the death of her husband.¹⁷⁰

A further Dublin decision was regarded as unlawful because a Chechen asylum applicant attempted suicide for the second time after enactment of the notice of transfer to Poland. Therefore, her demand for care and the willingness of her sister, who is living in Austria with refugee status, to take care of her should be examined. Due to the recommendation by a specialist to refrain from a transfer to Poland, it would also be a possibility to make use of the sovereignty clause.¹⁷¹

In another case, the BVwG referred to the wording of Art.16(1) of the Dublin III regulation on dependent persons to conclude that this provision also applied to cases in which the asylum applicant provides support to a family member (in the present case, an older brother providing support to his minor sister with special needs). In addition, the Court noted that no investigation on the special needs of the minor was undertaken by the BFA and considered that the responsibility of Italy would breach the ECHR given the particular circumstances of the case.¹⁷²

Humanitarian clause

Austrian authorities make reference to this clause mostly in cases where the asylum applicant is still in another country and applies for reunification with relatives in Austria.

Sovereignty clause

As of December 2024, article 17 Dublin-VO III was applied in 13 cases (2023: 31).¹⁷³

In principle, an asylum applicant has the legal right to request the asylum authorities to implement the sovereignty clause, although this is not specifically laid down in law. The Constitutional Court has ruled, relying on case law from the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), that even in case of responsibility of another Member State under the Dublin Regulation, the Austrian authorities are nevertheless bound by the ECHR.¹⁷⁴ This means that, in case of a risk of a human rights violation, Austria has a duty to use the sovereignty clause. This decision is applicable according to Articles 2 and 3 ECHR as well as Article 8 ECHR following an interpretation consistent with the constitution.

However, the assessment of a risk of a human rights violation allowing the use of the sovereignty clause needs to be conducted in a manner that does not unreasonably delay the examination of the asylum application. The principle that admissibility procedures should not last too long was reflected in a decision of the Administrative Court. A Chechen family had applied for asylum in Poland, Austria and Switzerland by submitting consecutive applications since 2005. One family member was severely traumatised. Switzerland decided on the merits of the case and issued a deportation order before they re-entered Austria. The Court reverted the procedure back to the BFA. The Court found that it would have been necessary to ask for the details of the procedure in Switzerland to prevent indirect violations of Article 3 ECHR through chain deportation. For one family member, the risk of suicide was obvious according to expert statements. The Court, referring to the judgment of the CJEU in the case of NS & ME,¹⁷⁵ held that the long duration of the admissibility procedure has to be taken into consideration when determining the Member State responsible for examining the asylum application and that applying a return procedure in such cases might be more effective.¹⁷⁶

The sovereignty clause has to be applied in the case of vulnerable asylum applicants to prevent violations of Article 3 ECHR (Article 4 EU Charter). In the case of a refugee from Syria who arrived in Italy in 2013, where he was fingerprinted, but immediately continued to Austria, the Administrative Court agreed that the situation in his country of origin as well as his personal state of stress and uncertainty regarding the situation of his wife and three small children led to an exceptional psychological state with the consequence of several stays in hospital.¹⁷⁷

In a ruling of January 2017 concerning the transfer of a family including two children to Croatia, the BVwG found that it was irrelevant that the adult brother was not legally responsible for the custody of his minor siblings. As the separation of the adult brother from his minor siblings would constitute an unacceptable interference with the right to family life and the children's well-being, the application of the sovereignty clause was ordered.¹⁷⁸

In December 2017, the BFA successfully appealed a decision of the BVwG concerning an unaccompanied child who had been allowed to remain in Austria under the sovereignty clause, while his younger brother was in Bulgaria. The VwGH ruled that the use of the sovereignty clause to prevent a violation of Article 8 ECHR presupposes a correct determination of Austria's responsibility. The Court found that, if the close relationship between the two brothers would result in Austria not being responsible for the application of the elder brother, then the reference to the sovereignty clause by the BVwG to prevent an Article 8 ECHR violation lacked legal basis.¹⁷⁹

In another case, the BFA appealed to the VwGH against a decision to transfer a Chechen family to Poland, where the father had already applied and passed the admissibility procedure in Austria. The VwGH found that the applications of the spouse and children should be admitted and the sovereignty clause used in order to preserve family unity.¹⁸⁰

In several cases, the BVwG has argued that the sovereignty clause may only be applied where a third-country national has lodged an asylum application.

In 2018, Austria made use of the sovereignty clause and accepted to be responsible for the asylum application of a Georgian national, for whom the Czech Republic was initially responsible as she had obtained a visa there. Given that she was the legal guardian of her husband who has special needs and who has obtained the subsidiary protection in Austria, the Court concluded that the asylum applicant should not be separated from her husband and referred to Article 16 of the Dublin regulation on dependent persons as well as to Article 8 ECHR on the right to a private and family life.¹⁸¹

Another case in which Austria made use of the sovereignty clause in 2018 concerned a Russian asylum applicant and her two children, who were traveling from Moscow to Vienna. Given that she suffered from different serious illnesses (sclerosis and PTSD), that one of her underage children was mentally ill and that she had relatives in Austria, the BVwG considered that she should stay in Austria and benefit from their support, instead of going to Italy where no one could provide her adequate assistance.¹⁸² In its reasoning, the Court paid particular attention to the child's best interest (e.g. having adequate support in Austria and the presence of family members).

Moreover, the Constitutional Court held in 2018 that single parents with minor children are considered by Article 21 of the recast Reception Conditions Directive as vulnerable persons.¹⁸³ The case concerned an Afghan national and the refusal of the Federal Administrative Court to make use of the sovereignty clause. The latter had refused to recognise the existence of a marriage between the Afghan asylum applicant and her Afghan husband who had obtained the subsidiary protection in Austria, as they were married only under the shariah law in Pakistan. Although their child was born in Austria, the BVwG did not address the vulnerability of the single mother nor the one of the new-born child, despite the situation in Bulgaria as assessed in the AIDA report on Bulgaria (to which the BVwG had made reference).

In September 2022, the Constitutional Court ruled against a decision by BVwG in which the second instance found a planned transfer of a Syrian national to Malta to be admissible. The Syrian national claimed that he would be put in detention upon return to Malta and the conditions in detention in Malta would violate his rights guaranteed by Art 2, 3 ECHR. The BVwG did not assess the situation in detention in Malta and ignored the deterioration following the Covid-19 situation in Malta.¹⁸⁴

2.2. Procedure

Indicators: Dublin: Procedure

1. Is the Dublin procedure applied by the authority responsible for examining asylum applications?
☒ Yes ☐ No
2. On average, how long does a transfer take after the responsible Member State has accepted responsibility?
Not available

Austria has not passed any national legislation to incorporate the Dublin III Regulation, as it is directly applicable, but refers to it in Article 5 AsylG. This provision, together with Article 2(1)(8) BFA-VG, states that the authorities issue an inadmissibility decision when Austria is not responsible for conducting the asylum procedure based on the Dublin III Regulation.¹⁸⁵ In the same decision, the authorities have to declare which Member State is responsible for the examination of the asylum application on its merits.

The law also states that there should also be an inadmissibility decision in case another Member State is responsible for identifying which Member State is responsible for the examination of the asylum application on its merits, that is in cases where the applicant is no longer on Austrian territory.¹⁸⁶

There are three initial reception centres (EAST) which are responsible for the admissibility procedure: one is located in Traiskirchen near Vienna, one is in Thalham in Upper Austria and one is at the Airport Vienna Schwechat. These centres are specialised in conducting outgoing Dublin procedures.

A central Dublin department in Vienna is responsible for supervising the work of the initial reception centres. Moreover, it conducts all Dublin procedures with regard to incoming Dublin requests (requests to Austria to take back or take charge an asylum applicant by another Member State) and, in response to a request of the Aliens Police department, all consultations with Member States concerning foreigners who have not applied for asylum.

Once an application for asylum is lodged, a preliminary interview by the police (Erstbefragung) takes place on the circumstances of entering Austria and the first country of entry in the EU, the personal data and – in a very brief manner – also on the reasons why an applicant left their home country. The applicant receives a copy of the report and is further fingerprinted and photographed. Fingerprints are taken from all asylum applicants older than 14 years of age. No problems have been reported with regard to the taking of fingerprints. In case an applicant refuses to be fingerprinted, the appeal against a negative decision may not benefit from suspensive effect,¹⁸⁷ but this is not relevant to the Dublin procedure. Due to the increase in applications in summer 2022, non-vulnerable applicants without EURODAC hits were not questioned right at the border but sent to another police directorate in different parts of Austria. The aim was to distribute the work of the police in the province close to Hungary, Burgenland, to other provinces. After the first months of 2023, the police returned to the normal procedure as the number of applications decreased significantly.

Legal aid groups reported that most of the applicants accommodated in the remote camp in Fieberbrunn are people in Dublin proceedings. Following a ruling by the Administrative Court in 2021, the transfer of the group of people mainly intended for accommodation in Fieberbrunn (people who are in Austria illegally and cannot be deported for objective reasons) was mostly stopped.¹⁸⁸ Since then, the facility, which is operated by BBU, has apparently mainly been occupied by people who are undergoing Dublin proceedings.

Since September 2018, the Aliens Police Department and the BFA are authorised to examine the data storage of persons applying for international protection. However, this interference with the right to privacy is only permitted if the identity or travel route cannot be established on the basis of available evidence.

Until the end of 2022, phones and/or other devices containing data of applicants could not be examined by Austrian authorities due to the lack of necessary data protection measures and missing technical equipment.¹⁸⁹ As of September 2023, 16 data storage devices were seized and searched by the BFA.¹⁹⁰

The asylum applicant receives a green “procedure card” after the public security officer has consulted the BFA about the further steps to be taken in the asylum procedure: admittance to the regular procedure or admissibility procedure. Asylum applicants are transferred or asked to go to the initial reception centres when a Dublin procedure is initiated. The green card permits the asylum applicant to stay in the district of the initial reception centre. Cards for asylum applicants – as well as those granted to beneficiaries of protection – should be designed in such a way that they are counterfeit-proof and have a contactless readable data option.

In every procedure, the BFA has to consider within the admissibility procedure whether an asylum applicant could find protection in a safe third country or another EU Member State or Schengen Associated State.

The VwGH has determined that the deadline for an outgoing request starts running from the registration of the application, i.e. the moment the BFA receives the report of the Erstbefragung, in line with the CJEU ruling in Mengesteab.¹⁹¹ The case before the VwGH concerned delays in the Erstbefragung, as the asylum applicant had applied for asylum in November 2015 but the preliminary interview only took place in January 2016 and the request was issued in March 2016.

Every asylum applicant receives written information, usually through the form of leaflets, about the first steps in the asylum procedure, basic care, medical care and the Eurodac and Dublin III Regulation at the beginning of the procedure in the initial reception centres. No particular issue in the provision of information have been reported, although it is recommended that providing information orally on top of written information would help asylum applicants to understand the asylum system.

Within 20 calendar days after the application, the BFA has to either admit the asylum applicant to the in-merit procedure or inform the applicant formally – through procedural order – about the intention to issue an inadmissibility decision on the ground that another state is considered responsible for the examination of the asylum claim.¹⁹² The same applies to so called fast-track in-merits procedures. After the requested Member State accepts responsibility, the asylum applicant is given the possibility to be heard. No – government provided – legal advisors are present in this stage of the procedure.

2.2.1. Individualised guarantees

Individualised guarantees were still not requested systematically as of 2024. Their content depends on the individual circumstances of each case according to the BFA. Already in 2017 it was demonstrated that individual guarantees are not requested for vulnerable persons, even where these are requested by legal advisers during the Dublin interview or the appeal before the BVwG. The authorities seem to deem it sufficient to request information from ACCORD or the State Documentation database, in specific cases e.g. access to medical treatment for cancer patients in Italy, and to base their decision thereon.

In February 2025, the Constitutional Court dismissed an appeal at the regarding the Dublin transfer of an applicant to Greece, for which the Greek authorities had issued an individualised guarantee. However, in practice, the guarantee did not contain any individualised elements:

¹⁹² Article 28 Asylum law has been amended. Since September 2018 the time limit for in-merits procedures may be lifted to enable more decisions during the admissibility procedure.

We would like to inform you that the above-mentioned third-country national will be accommodated in a reception centre in accordance with the Reception Directive (2013/33/EU). You will be informed of the details as soon as you inform us of the transfer date. On arrival, the person concerned will be informed by the competent airport police, with the assistance of an interpreter, about the access to the asylum procedure in accordance with the Asylum Procedures Directive (2013/32/EU).¹⁹³

The sharing of information amongst Member State on the vulnerability and individual guarantees of asylum applicants is still not ensured. In the case of an Iraqi woman in a wheelchair, the BFA obtained a medical report confirming the availability of the necessary medical treatment in Italy. However, Italy had not been informed of the vulnerability in the first round of proceedings, which is why the BVwG granted the appeal and referred the case back to the BFA. The BVwG also rejected the rejection of the BFA in the second stage and stated that Austria was responsible for providing care to avoid a violation of Article 8 of the ECHR under the discretionary clause of Article 17 (1) of the Dublin III Regulation.¹⁹⁴

2.2.2. Transfers

Transfers are normally carried out without the asylum applicant concerned being informed of the time and the location they are transferred to before the departure from Austria, giving them no possibility to return to the responsible Member State voluntarily.¹⁹⁵ There continue to be reports of the BFA informing receiving countries of a Dublin transfer on very short notice, in some cases no more than a week, even for asylum applicants requiring special care.¹⁹⁶ This raises questions with regard to Recital 24 and Article 26(2) Dublin III Regulation according to which a transfer decision must contain the details of the time carrying out the transfer and “if necessary, contain information on the place and date at which the applicant should appear, if he is travelling to the Member State responsible by their own means.”

In case of an enforced transfer to another EU Member State, the police first apprehend the asylum applicant and transfers them to a detention centre (see Detention of Asylum Applicants).¹⁹⁷ There is also a special detention centre for families in Vienna. The asylum applicant has to stay there until the deportation takes place, usually after one or two days. Under the Dublin procedure, asylum applicants can be held for up to 48 hours without detention being specifically ordered. As a less coercive measure, asylum applicants may be ordered to stay at a certain place (such as a flat or a reception centre).¹⁹⁸ Depending on the responsible state and the number of persons being transferred, the transfer takes place by plane, by bus or by police car under escort.

Regarding detention, the Administrative High Court has stated that the time limit for transfer, which is of 6 weeks, does not start running before the suspensive effect ceases. Furthermore, the period begins running only after the one-week period of the BVwG to award the suspensive effect of the complaint has expired.¹⁹⁹

No figures on the average duration of the procedure are available. However, the minimum period for a decision to be issued, an appeal to be filed and suspensive effect to be decided upon would be six weeks.

In 2024, 1,184 Dublin outgoing transfers were conducted.²⁰⁰ 1,511 Dublin incoming transfers were completed in the same time period.

2.3. Personal interview

Indicators: Dublin: Personal Interview

☒ Same as regular procedure

1. Is a personal interview of the asylum applicant in most cases conducted in practice in the Dublin procedure?
☒ Yes ☐ No
❖ If so, are interpreters available in practice, for interviews? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Are interviews conducted through video conferencing? ☐ Frequently ☐ Rarely ☒ Never

After the initial registration process and interview by the police is concluded, another interview conducted by the BFA has to be conducted during admission phase.²⁰¹ The law allows for an exception in case the asylum applicant has absconded from the procedure in the initial reception centre (EAST).²⁰² If the facts are established, and a decision can be taken, the fact that the asylum applicant has not been interviewed yet by BFA or by the BVwG shall not preclude the taking of a decision. In practice this exception is not applied very often.²⁰³ Such relevant facts for a decision in Dublin cases could be a Eurodac hit and the acceptance of the requested Member State to take back the asylum applicant.

The reform of June 2019 establishing the BBU introduces a new threshold which grants the asylum applicant the right to free legal assistance by the Agency only if an appointment – during which the applicant exercises their right to be heard – is scheduled within 72 hours (3 days) after having been notified by the BFA of the intention to reject the asylum application. This means that, if the BFA grants the asylum applicant the right to be heard at a later stage (e.g. in 4 or 5 days), free legal assistance by the Agency will only be available if resources so allow.²⁰⁴ In practice, the BBU GmbH is notified in some cases and asked to provide legal counselling. There is no official statistics on how many interviews are conducted within 72 hours, but in most cases, applicants do not have access to legal counselling in Dublin procedures. In practice, legal advisers are present when appointed. But they are often informed only shortly before the interview, which means that they lack time to study the file. In case of detention, legal advice to asylum applicants takes place immediately before the hearing in the detention centre.²⁰⁵ The provision of § 29 (4) AsylG foresees that an interview may not be conducted by the BFA within the first 24 hours of the asylum application.

In Dublin procedures, the rules and practice are the same as in the Regular Procedure: Personal Interview.

The records of the Dublin consultation between Austria and the requested state(s) are made available to the asylum applicant and the legal adviser only after the procedural order of the intention to reject is given and Austria has received the answer from the requested Member State. Sometimes, the requested State has not received all relevant information. One of the judges of the Federal Administrative Court mentioned in a decision regarding a Chechen father whose son was legally residing in Austria that Italy, which had issued a visa for the couple from Chechnya, finally agreed to take charge but was not informed about the severe illness and the disability of the asylum applicant who relied on the care of his son.²⁰⁶ The Court noted that the dependency clause should have been applied in this case. 2.4. Appeal

Indicators: Dublin: Appeal
☐ Same as regular procedure

1. Does the law provide for an appeal against the decision in the Dublin procedure?

- ❖ If yes, is it
- ❖ If yes, is it suspensive

☒ Judicial ☐ Administrative
☐ Yes ☒ No

As Dublin cases are rejected as inadmissible, the relevant rules detailed in the section on Admissibility Procedure: Appeal apply.

The time limit within which the appeal against the BFA's inadmissibility decisions (including Dublin decisions) must be lodged is 2 weeks. The appeal has no suspensive effect, unless the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) grants suspensive effect within 7 calendar days after the appeal reaches the court.²⁰⁸ The expulsion order may not be executed before the BVwG has decided if the appeal must be given suspensive effect.²⁰⁹ In Dublin cases, suspensive effect is hardly granted. Sometimes asylum applicants never receive a final decision because they are transferred back to the responsible Member State before the Court's decision.²¹⁰

The VwGH dealt with the expiry of the transfer period in the context of an appeal that had a suspensive effect. In that case, the decision that gave the complaint a suspensive effect was taken by written procedure and was notified only after the expiry of the six-month transfer period, as laid down in Article 29 (1) of the Dublin III Regulation. The Court considered that granting a suspensive effect after the expiration of the transfer period is not possible and, as a result, the transfer period cannot be extended. Austria was therefore deemed responsible for the asylum application.²¹¹

The BVwG can either refuse the appeal, confirming the BFA decision, or decide to refer it back to the BFA with the instruction to conduct either an in-merit procedure or investigate the case in more detail (for instance if the Court finds that the BFA has not properly taken into account family ties or that the assessment of the situation in the responsible Member State was based on outdated material or was insufficient with regard to a possible violation of Article 3 ECHR). The documentation of decisions of the Court shows, that the Court decides on the basis of the written appeal and the asylum file without a personal hearing of the asylum applicant.²¹²

In 2024, 1,043 Dublin decisions were appealed to the BVwG.²¹³

Asylum applicants whose appeals were accepted by the Court have the right to re-enter Austria by showing the decision of the court at the border. If no suspensive effect was granted but the court finds that the decision of the BFA was unlawful, the asylum applicant is also allowed to re-enter.²¹⁴ In practice, it only happens in few cases that suspensive effect is granted after transfer/deportation. No cases were reported to asylkoordination in which re-entering the county was denied in such cases.

2.5. Legal assistance

Indicators: Dublin: Legal Assistance

☐ Same as regular procedure

1. Do asylum applicants have access to free legal assistance at first instance in practice?

☒ Yes

☐ With difficulty

☐ No

❖ Does free legal assistance cover:

☐ Representation in interview

☒ Legal advice
2. Do asylum applicants have access to free legal assistance on appeal against a Dublin decision in practice?

☒ Yes

☐ With difficulty

☐ No

❖ Does free legal assistance cover

☒ Representation in courts

☒ Legal advice

Free legal assistance during the admissibility procedure was implemented to compensate for the restricted movement of asylum applicants during this type of procedure, as they are obliged to stay within the district of the initial reception centre (EAST). If asylum applicants leave the district of the EAST to consult an attorney-at-law or NGOs – which normally have their offices in bigger cities – they can be subject to a fine ranging from € 100 to € 1,000. In case of repeated violation of the restricted residence (Gebietsbeschränkung), the fine may reach € 5,000 and detention may even be ordered in case the asylum applicant is unable to pay the fine. A violation of the restriction of movement could furthermore be a reason for pre-removal detention. As of September 2023, in 45 cases a punishment of violation of restricted residence was applied by the authorities.²¹⁵ In 2024 only 8 people were ordered to reside in a specific location under § 57 FPG.²¹⁶

The second reason why free legal assistance is provided at this stage of the procedure is the lack of suspensive effect of an appeal in admissibility procedures, which justifies the incorporation of additional safeguards in the first instance procedure.

As discussed in the section on Regular Procedure: Legal Assistance, the quality of the advice provided raises concerns due to a lack of time of legal advisers and a lack of trust of asylum applicants, as the advisers are considered being too closely linked to the BFA. They have their offices within the building of the BFA, they provide assistance for voluntary return and their task is only to provide objective information about the procedure to the asylum applicants; not to assist them in the procedure and defend their interests. The new system of legal counselling established by the state-owned BBU-GmbH in 2021 further strengthened this conflict of interests, as the Federal Agency responsible for providing legal assistance falls under the responsibility of the Ministry of Interior, which is also supervising the determining authority (BFA).

In case of unaccompanied asylum-seeking children, the appointed legal adviser becomes their legal representative during the admissibility procedure.²¹⁷ There is no legal guardian appointed as the Child and Youth Welfare Authority denies its responsibility arguing that during the admissibility procedure it is not clear whether the children have a perspective to stay in Austria. UAM are not able to act without the consent of their legal adviser, for example to choose a legal representative by themselves or to submit an appeal in case the legal adviser fails to do so. After the admissibility procedure is concluded UAM are supposed to be transferred to the provinces where the authorities of Kinder- und Jugendhilfe take over legal guardianship (see Legal representation of unaccompanied minors).

Although Article 29(4) AsylG provides that free legal assistance shall be provided to all asylum applicants at least 24 hours before the hearing on the results of the evidentiary findings determining the responsible Member State under the Dublin Regulation, legal advisers receive the file only shortly before the interview, therefore lacking time to study the file and prepare for the hearing. Moreover, the reform of the new legal aid system through the BBU-G introduces a new threshold which grants the asylum applicant the right to free legal assistance by the Agency only if an appointment – during which the applicant exercises their right to be heard – is scheduled within 72 hours (3 days) after having been notified by the BFA of the intention to reject the asylum application. This means that, if the BFA grants the asylum applicant the right to be heard at a later stage (e.g. in 4 or 5 days), free legal assistance by the Agency will only be available if resources so allow. The discretion of the BFA as regards the timing of the appointment thus has an influence on whether legal assistance will be provided at first instance because the Federal Agency is legally obliged to do so, or whether it will be provided if the Agency's available resources allow so. In addition, the provision specifies that, if the asylum applicant did not make use of the right to be heard, this does not affect the outcome of the decision on their application for international protection.²¹⁸ NGOs are thus extremely concerned about the arbitrary nature of the provision of legal assistance in such cases. The BBU GmbH reports that if an interview is conducted within 72 hours, they are notified to provide legal counselling. The agency however does not have an overview or information, to what share of Dublin procedures they are involved. The Ministry of Interior also does not provide statistics on the matter. Anecdotal evidence shows that only a small part of the Dublin interviews are conducted within 72 hours and consequently only few applicants confronted with a Dublin procedure have access to free legal counselling.

The legal adviser must be present at the interview held to give the asylum applicant an opportunity to be heard. At the interview in relation to Dublin with the BFA, the asylum applicant together with the legal adviser may submit written statements with regard to the situation in the Member State deemed responsible or make requests for additional investigations, but they are not allowed to ask questions; this is usually respected by the legal advisers.

2.6. Suspension of transfers

Indicators: Dublin: Suspension of Transfers

1. Are Dublin transfers systematically suspended as a matter of policy or jurisprudence to one or more countries? ☐ Yes ☒ No
 - ❖ If yes, to which country or countries?

Under the Dublin III Regulation, all EU Member States are considered safe places where the asylum applicant may find protection from persecution. An exception applies to cases in which there is an obvious risk of lack of protection, e.g. if it is well-known to the authorities, or if the asylum applicant brings evidence that there is a risk that they will not be protected properly. This real risk cannot be based on mere speculations but has to be based on individual facts and evidence. This statement of risk must be related to the individual situation of the asylum applicant.²¹⁹

Country reports from various sources such as AIDA, UNHCR, the US Department of State, Amnesty International, Eurostat, as well as information from ACCORD and Austrian liaison officers are taken into consideration.

According to the jurisprudence, notorious severe human rights violations in regard of Article 3 ECHR must be taken into consideration ex officio.²²⁰ If the asylum application is already rejected by the Member State responsible for the examination of the application, a divergent interpretation of the Refugee Convention in a Member State or manifestly unlawful procedures could be relevant in an individual case. Generally low recognition rates in a certain Member State are not regarded as a characteristic of a dysfunctional asylum system.²²¹

In 2024, 1,181 outgoing Dublin transfers were completed. The main recipient countries were Germany, Croatia and Bulgaria.

Current practice with regard to selected Dublin countries is illustrated below:

Greece: After the ruling of the ECtHR in M.S.S. v Belgium and Greece in 2011, Austria suspended transfers to Greece. The director of the BFA announced Dublin procedures with Greece would start again in March 2017,²²² in line with the European Commission's recommendation of December 2016, but they did not resume in practice up to and including in 2023. However, there were 10 take back requests sent to Greece in 2024.²²³ Moreover, there were at least two cases before the BVwG in which the court rejected appeals against a Dublin transfer decisions to Greece.²²⁴ In February 2025, the Constitutional Court also dismissed an appeal against a Dublin decision regarding Greece.²²⁵ Without giving reasons, the court confirmed the assessment of the second instance (BVwG) that the circumstances for applicants in Greece are improving. In this particular case, the Greek authorities had issued an individualised guarantee. The court found that the decision of the BVwG did not violate the (human) rights guaranteed in the Austrian constitution. This is particularly surprising given the long-standing precedents of systemic problems in Greece and recent ECtHR rulings²²⁶ especially in light of systemic pushbacks²²⁷ and the danger of chain deportations. Furthermore, it is worrying that the Constitutional Court did not undertake a detailed analysis of the circumstances in Greece and the reasoning behind the second instance decision. It should be mentioned that the decision, which does not contain any (detailed) reasoning or assessment by the court, was published on the website of the Constitutional Court. This practice is highly unusual, as these types of decisions are normally not published at all. The Constitutional Court thus opened the door for possible Dublin transfers to Greece, although there is still no decision from the High Administrative Court on the matter. As this practice of issuing Dublin decisions ordering the transfer of an applicant to Greece is still evolving, the Austrian authorities sometimes immediately make use of the discretionary clause, but this is not general practice²²⁸ despite the lack of transfers in over 10 years. In practice, in recent years there have been no Dublin transfers to Greece due to legal reasons.²²⁹ In 2024, according to Eurostat, 2 Dublin transfers took place from Austria to Greece.²³⁰

Hungary: In 2019 and 2020, one transfer was reportedly carried out respectively in individual cases. While it is clear that individual guarantees must have been secured for the purpose of this transfer, no further information is available on this case. In 2024 Austria submitted 34 (2023: 21) take charge and 3 take back requests to Hungary. Six transfers were completed.²³¹

Italy: In 2024 397 take charge and 327 take back requests (2023: 1,050 total) were sent to Italy. In a letter from December 2022, Italy announced that due to technical reasons no Dublin returnees would be taken back from other countries. At the time of writing (June 2025), this has not changed and no Dublin returns were completed throughout 2024.²³² Decisions on transfers are still being made by the authorities but cannot be implemented.

In the past, the Italian Ministry of Interior had been issuing a number of letters guaranteeing that all families with minors transferred to Italy under the Dublin III Regulation would remain together and be accommodated in a facility adapted to their needs. Previous case law has also allowed for the transfer of families to Italy, including of a single mother and her baby;²³³ and of a family with four children (out of which two were minors) and their grandparents.²³⁴ The Constitutional Court also found that the situation of asylum applicants in Italy has improved and that special safeguards are no longer necessary.²³⁵ There is no recent jurisdiction on Dublin returns to Italy by Austrian Courts: Requests are issued and the applicants are only admitted to the procedure when the 6 months have passed. Detentions are generally not upheld as there is no feasible perspective for returns to be resumed.²³⁶

Bulgaria: Transfers to Bulgaria are carried out by the BFA and generally upheld by the BVwG.²³⁷ The VwGH in 2017 found that the BFA must make a thorough assessment of the conditions in Bulgaria before transferring families.²³⁸ In March 2023, the Constitutional Court annulled two decisions of the BVwG in which the latter found a decision of the first instance determining a transfer to Bulgaria to be lawful. In one case the decision was found to have been taken in an arbitrary manner because the BVwG did not examine whether the person concerned would have an effective access to the asylum system without having to fear of a chain pushback to Türkiye.²³⁹ As a reaction to the High Court's judgements all appeals concerning Bulgaria were upheld. This changed with the update of the country information sheet provided to the authorities and courts by the Staatendokumentation. There it was stated that Bulgaria is no longer rejecting applications by arguing that Turkey is a safe third country. Following this, the Court's decisions upheld most first instance decisions and confirmed the legality of Dublin returns to Bulgaria.²⁴⁰ As of May 2024, Dublin transfers to Bulgaria are conducted and the appeals against negative decisions are dismissed in general.

In 2023, in a case of a single mother with her minor daughter the decision was annulled because the BVwG did not take into account that the persons concerned were members of a vulnerable group.²⁴¹ In 2024, in one case in which the applicant claimed to have suffered violence in Bulgaria because of his homosexuality, the appeal was sustained by the BVwG; the decision was annulled and sent back to the first instance for further investigations.²⁴²

Contrary to years prior, Bulgaria was not the top recipient of take back requests sent by Austria. In 2024, around 20% of all Austrian take back requests were sent to Croatia (1,016), followed by Bulgaria (936) and Germany (807).²⁴³

Croatia: Following the CJEU ruling in A.S. / Jafari in 2017, the BVwG rejected previously suspended cases and the persons concerned were returned to Croatia. In some cases, the applications were admitted in Austria due to the expiry of the time limit for the transfer. Since 2019, transfers to Croatia have been completed without Austria asking for individual guarantees. In a case of an accompanied child that needed medical treatment, the revision was rejected from the High Administrative Court, and an individual guarantee was not deemed to be necessary. Almost all BVwG decisions confirm the first instance decisions that find Croatia responsible.²⁴⁴ In 2024 the Austria submitted 77 take charge requests and 939 take back requests to Croatia. 287 Dublin transfers were completed in 2024.²⁴⁵ As far as can be seen in all cases, Croatia became responsible by not responding to the requests. Some persons transferred claimed that they have never been to Croatia before.

2.7. The situation of Dublin returnees

Asylum applicants returning to Austria under the Dublin Regulation, and whose claim is pending a final decision, do not face obstacles if their transfer takes place within two years after leaving Austria. In this case, the discontinued asylum procedure will be reopened as soon as they request for it at the BFA or the BVwG. If a final decision has already been taken on the asylum application upon return to Austria, the new asylum application will be processed as a subsequent asylum application. Dublin returnees are confronted with the same issues as other asylum applicants in accessing the basic care system. As provinces are reluctant to take over asylum applicants from the federal reception centres Dublin returnees might end up staying several weeks or even months in bigger first reception facilities.

So far (June 2025) the BFA has not been requested to provide guarantees to other Member States prior to transfers.

3. Admissibility procedure

3.1. General (scope, criteria, time limits)

The admissibility procedure starts upon registration of the application with the first interrogation (Erstbefragung) of the asylum applicant by the public security officer, who has to submit a report to the branch office of the BFA. The caseworker of the BFA in charge of the case informs the police about the next steps of the admissibility procedure within 24 hours on average. If the applicant is admitted to the regular procedure they are ordered to travel to the initial reception centre (EAST) or transferred there by the police.²⁴⁶ There are three EAST which are responsible for the admissibility procedure: one is located in Traiskirchen near Vienna, one in Thalham in Upper Austria and one at the Airport Vienna Schwechat. If the asylum applicant is not admitted to the regular procedure, they stay in the Federal reception system and are not being allocated to one of the provinces. The person has then only the right to stay in the district where the Federal reception centre is located.

All asylum applicants have to undergo the admissibility procedure, except children born in Austria whose parents have received protection status in the country or whose application is admitted to the regular procedure. Their applications are admitted immediately to the regular procedure.²⁴⁷

An application may be rejected as inadmissible for the following reasons:

- (1) The person comes from a safe third country;²⁴⁸
- (2) The person enjoys asylum in an EEA country or Switzerland;²⁴⁹
- (3) Another country is responsible for the application under the Dublin III Regulation;²⁵⁰
- (4) The person files a subsequent application and “no change significant to the decision has occurred in the material facts”.²⁵¹

Asylum applicants receive a green “procedure card” within 3 days, which is an indication that their stay in Austria is tolerated. This card is replaced by a “white card” as soon as the application is admitted to the regular procedure.

²⁵¹ Article 12a(2)(2) AsylG.

Within 20 days after the application for international protection has been lodged, the BFA must admit the asylum applicant to the in-merit procedure or notify them formally by procedural order about the intention to issue an inadmissibility decision on the ground that another state is considered responsible for the examination of the asylum claim; or that it intends to revoke the suspensive effect of a subsequent application. If the BFA does not notify the asylum applicant of its intention to issue an inadmissibility decision within 20 days, the application is thus admitted to the regular procedure. This time limit does not apply if consultations with another state on the application of the Dublin III Regulation take place.²⁵²

The 20-day time limit shall not apply if the BFA intends to reject the application for international protection and the applicant does not cooperate during the asylum procedure. The procedure is deemed no longer relevant, especially if the asylum applicant absconded from the procedure.²⁵³ The duty of asylum applicants to cooperate includes the duty to provide the BFA with information and evidence about their identity and reasons for applying for international protection, to be present at hearings and personal interviews as well as to inform the authorities about their address. If the asylum applicant is unable to cooperate during the procedure for reasons relating to their person (e.g. illness, postponing the interview due to duty to comply with summons etc.), the 20-day time limit shall be suspended.²⁵⁴

If the BFA has ordered an age assessment, the 20-day time limit also does not apply.²⁵⁵

As a result of the admissibility procedure, the application may either be admitted to the regular procedure, dismissed on the merits, or asylum or subsidiary protection status may be granted. The granting of a status or the dismissal of the application in the admissibility procedure replaces the admissibility decision.²⁵⁶ An admissible application shall nevertheless be rejected if facts justifying such a rejection decision become known after the application was admitted.²⁵⁷ In practice, this provision is applied in Dublin cases without the precondition that the facts justifying admissibility were not known before.²⁵⁸

The information provided by the Ministry of Interior did not include the number of inadmissibility decisions issued in 2019.²⁵⁹ However, the admissibility procedure lasted for approximatively five days in 2018. This did not significantly change in 2019. Unfortunately, the Ministry has not provided any updated information on the duration of admissibility procedures since. It should be noted that, especially in the context of family proceedings, the admission often already takes place on the day of the application, which importantly reduces the calculation of the average duration.²⁶⁰ It should be further noted that, during the admission procedure, asylum applicants are given basic care in federal care facilities. In 2020, asylum applicants were accommodated in federal facilities and received federal basic care for around 26 days on average.²⁶¹ In 2021, the average time of a person (separate data for asylum applicants not available) accommodated in federal basic care is 80 days, compared to 1,033 days in province basic care.²⁶² In 2024 the average time of a person's accommodation in federal basic care was 207 days (2023 (until September): 123 days), compared to 890 days in province basic care (2023 (until September): 622 days).²⁶³

Indicators: Admissibility Procedure: Personal Interview

☒ Same as regular procedure

1. Is a personal interview of the asylum applicant in most cases conducted in practice in the admissibility procedure?

☐ Yes ☒ No

☒ Yes ☐ No

 - ❖ If so, are questions limited to identity, nationality, travel route?
 - ❖ If so, are interpreters available in practice, for interviews?
2. Are interviews conducted through video conferencing? ☐ Frequently ☐ Rarely ☒ Never

A personal interview is required by law. The asylum applicant is interrogated by law enforcement officials at the registration stage of the application for international protection and a second time by officials of the BFA during the admissibility procedure at the initial reception centre. The police are not allowed to ask detailed questions on the merits of the application such as the specific reasons for fleeing the country of origin or residence. There is a clear division of tasks between the police – which has the duty to assess the identity, personal data and the travel route of the applicant – and the officials of the BFA for assessing the facts on which the application is based. In practice, this sometimes leads to problems: notably, the last question in the police’s questionnaire always concerns the reason why the person had to flee and, in most cases, the applicants are told to give a short answer only and more details in a later interview. As a result, the reasons for fleeing the country of origin may be found credible to not be credible at the interview stage before the officials of the BFA if the asylum applicant has based the application for international protection on other reasons than those stated immediately upon arrival at the police stage. There is jurisprudence by the High Administrative Court that the evidence gathered in the initial interview at the police shall not be used in an “unreflective manner” by the authorities and the Court as the initial interview does not focus on the reasons why the person is seeking international protection.²⁶⁴

In this regard, Article 19(4) AsylG explicitly foresees that, in the admission procedure, the asylum applicant shall also be informed that their own statements will be accorded particular attention, meaning that they should be aware of the consequences of false testimonies.

The law allows for an exception from the personal interview in case the asylum applicant has absconded from the procedure while being accommodated in the initial reception centre. If the facts relevant to a decision on an asylum claim are established, the fact that the asylum applicant has not been interviewed yet by the BFA or by the BVwG shall not preclude the rendering of a decision. In practice this exception is not applied very often, however. The BFA files most of these cases as “discontinued”, which means that upon request by the asylum applicants the procedure will be reopened. An exception may apply in a subsequent asylum application that was submitted within two days before the execution of an expulsion order.²⁶⁵ An interview during the admission procedure may be dispensed with if the procedure is admitted.

3.3. Appeal

Indicators: Admissibility Procedure: Appeal

☐ Same as regular procedure

1. Does the law provide for an appeal against the decision in the admissibility procedure?

❖ If yes, is it

❖ If yes, is it suspensive

☐ Yes ☐ Some grounds ☒ No

For the admissibility procedure, the appeal stages are the same as in the regular procedure. The time limits within which an appeal against the BFA's inadmissibility decision must be lodged is two weeks and the appeal has in general no suspensive effect, except when decided otherwise by the BVwG.²⁶⁶

As a first step, the BVwG decides within one week after receiving the appeal whether the appeal will have suspensive effect during the continuing appeal procedure. If the BVwG does not grant a suspensive effect to the appeal or does not admit the appeal after seven days, the asylum applicant can be transferred to the responsible Member State, the safe third country or their country of origin in case of a subsequent application.

If the application is rejected on the merits in the admissibility procedure and the second instance grants suspensive effect after the appeal was brought in, the granting of suspensive effect also means that the application has been admitted in Austria.²⁶⁷

Appeals against a decision rejecting the asylum application as inadmissible do not have suspensive effect unless this is granted by the BVwG.²⁶⁸ The reasons for not granting suspensive effect to the appeal in inadmissible cases correspond to grounds for declaring claims manifestly unfounded, as mentioned in Regular Procedure: Appeal.

The appointed legal adviser is not obliged to help the asylum applicant to draft the complaint, despite the fact that it must be written in German, and the requested qualification for legal advisers is also not sufficient.

3.4. Legal assistance

Indicators: Admissibility Procedure: Legal Assistance

☐ Same as regular procedure

1. Do asylum applicants have access to free legal assistance at first instance in practice?

❖ Does free legal assistance cover: ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No

☐ Representation in interview

☒ Legal advice

1. Do asylum applicants have access to free legal assistance on appeal against an inadmissibility decision in practice?

❖ Does free legal assistance cover: ☒ Yes ☐ With difficulty ☐ No

☒ Representation in courts

☒ Legal advice

The BBU GmbH as legal adviser is automatically appointed by the BFA in case it intends to reject the application in the framework of the admissibility procedure and if an interview is to be conducted within 72 hours of handing over a procedural order of its intention to reject the application in the admissibility procedure. Legal advice should be provided at least 24 hours before the second interview, the one with the BFA, during which the asylum applicant is given the opportunity to be heard. If the interview is conducted within 72 hours, presence of legal advisers during the interview is mandatory unless the applicant dismisses the advisor explicitly. If the interview is conducted more than 72 hours after, the BBU will not even be informed of the case until a negative decision is issued.

²⁶⁶ Article 16 (2) BFA-VG.

²⁶⁷ Article 17 BFA-VG

Free legal advice is foreseen for subsequent asylum applications under the same conditions (interview within 72 hours) as well, including at appeal stage.²⁶⁹ Most of the cases that are regarded as inadmissible are Dublin cases (see Dublin: Legal Assistance) and Safe Third Country cases.

Since January 2021, legal assistance has been provided by the new Federal Agency, the BBU GmbH (see Regular procedure: Legal assistance).

3.5. Suspension of returns for beneficiaries of protection in another Member State

There is no general suspension of returns of beneficiaries of protection to any EU member state. In practice, there are mainly cases of Afghan and Syrian nationals with a protection status in either Greece or Bulgaria.

Rejections for existing protection in another EU state are also issued regularly by the BFA concerning countries such as Greece or Hungary, even though the appeal is regularly granted suspensive effect.

Hungary: In a case of a Syrian national who has received subsidiary protection status in Hungary in 2015 and applied for asylum in Austria in 2020, the BVwG rejected the applicant's appeal.²⁷⁰ Even though the applicant brought forward that he had no access to support from the state, had to live on the street and was assaulted the Court came to the conclusion that there exist support possibilities from the government and from NGOS and that there is no real-risk of an Art 3 ECHR violation.

Greece: There is no general policy of suspension of transfers of BIPs to Greece. Applications by beneficiaries of international protection in Greece have risen since 2020. While the first instance authority initially admitted vulnerable cases to the asylum procedure, a change of strategy was observed throughout 2021. Until then, in general, in single cases where protection status was granted by Greek authorities, the Courts rejected applications lodged in Austria. This changed in June 2021 as the Constitutional Court ruled that, due to inadequate reception conditions in Greece a thorough assessment has to be carried out before transferring beneficiaries of international protection back to Greece.²⁷¹ the Constitutional Court suspended the decision of the Federal administrative court which had rejected an appeal from an Afghan woman who received asylum status in Greece in 2019 and applied for asylum in Austria in 2020. Referring to the AIDA country report on Greece, the Constitutional Court considered that the applicant may face a risk of violation of Art 3 ECHR violation and ordered further examinations on the access to food, shelter and sanitary facilities. The decision set out a benchmark as it was done in plenary of the Constitutional Court. Following this decision, the BVwG reconsidered several first instance decisions based on insufficient information on the situation in Greece.²⁷² A project called "Tetraa" was initiated by asylkoordination together with Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst and lawyer Christian Schmaus. In this project, strategic litigation is being conducted focusing on asylum procedures of beneficiaries of international protection in Greece coming to Austria applying for asylum because of dire living conditions in Greece.²⁷³

There is an examination of the individual cases and communication with the Greek authorities. However, in at least one case a person who had received subsidiary protection in Greece and whose application was rejected in Austria, was deported to Greece in 2022.²⁷⁴

Also in 2023, the Constitutional Court upheld the appeals in two cases due to lack of investigations concerning access to basic care systems²⁷⁵ and in a case of a pregnant applicant with a recognised refugee status in Greece.²⁷⁶ The Federal Administrative Court had wrongly based the rejection of the applications on the fact that the applicant is based in Austria due to her residence permit and will not be transferred to GR anyway. Therefore, the decision would be a “purely hypothetical “Return” act. The Constitutional Court found that the general reference to the reporting situation is insufficient.

In a consequential ruling of February 2025, the Constitutional Court changed course, allowing transfers of BIPs to Greece. In its decision, the Court examined the reasoning provided by the Federal Administrative Court and concluded that conditions in Greece have improved.²⁷⁷

However, in light of the Constitutional Court’s previous case law, stakeholders highlight that such a significant improvement in the situation cannot be established; to what extent the situation in Greece actually constitutes an “improvement” is not discernible from the text of the decision. In light of the Court’s previous case law on Greece, in which it repeatedly criticised the general reference to support services provided by NGOs without an individual assessment, the contested decision exhibits precisely such deficiencies. The High Administrative Court followed the Constitutional Courts lead and – at least in one case – approved an order for out-of-country transportation of a BIP to Greece.²⁷⁸

Bulgaria: There is also some case law regarding beneficiaries of international protection in Bulgaria who come to Austria to lodge a new application. In 2016, a Syrian mother with 3 children gave birth after she arrived in Bulgaria where she suffered from prenatal depression. She was granted subsidiary protection in Bulgaria shortly after moving to Austria. The Bulgarian authorities denied responsibility under the Dublin system but were ready to take over as a result of the readmission agreement. The BVwG considered the deportation to Bulgaria as not permissible because of the PTSD from which the children were suffering and which was triggered, among other things, by experiences during the imprisonment in Bulgaria at the end of September 2015, as well as the intensive family relationship with relatives living in Austria.²⁷⁹ In 2023, the BVwG granted suspensive effect in several cases concerning Bulgaria and appeals were upheld as the investigations of the first instance concerning living conditions were not thorough enough.²⁸⁰ This changed in 2024, where a lot of negative decisions – allowing the transfer of BIPs to Bulgaria to continue – were issued by the BVwG.²⁸¹

The BVwG has also accepted an appeal of an Afghan family in 2017 who had received subsidiary protection in Hungary, due to the need to clarify whether the current situation of beneficiaries of protection in Hungary raises a risk of violation of Article 3 ECHR.²⁸² In the case of a single Syrian who obtained subsidiary protection in Bulgaria, however, the BVwG found no real risk on the ground that he did not belong to a vulnerable group.²⁸³

3. Can an application made at the border be examined in substance during a border procedure? ☒ Yes ☐ No
4. Is there a maximum time limit for a first instance decision laid down in the law? ☒ Yes ☐ No
❖ If yes, what is the maximum time limit?²⁸⁴ 1 week
5. Is the asylum applicant considered to have entered the national territory during the border procedure? ☐ Yes ☒ No

Austria has no land border with third countries. All neighbouring states are Schengen Associated States and Member States, party to the Dublin Regulation. A border procedure is foreseen at national level but is strictly limited to airports. In reality, all airport procedures are realised at Vienna airport as it is the only one where a reception centre is established for this purpose.²⁸⁵ Moreover, the Austrian airport procedure foresees the possibility to carry out both an admissibility assessment of the asylum claim as well as a full in-merit examination of the asylum claim, in accordance with Article 43 recast Asylum Procedures Directive. There is no available data on the number of applicants for international protection subject to the airport procedure. Overall, the border procedure can be described as a black box due notably to a serious lack of transparency on the functioning of procedure. UNHCR shares little information on the functioning of the airport procedure.

Under Article 33(1) and (2) AsylG, an asylum application lodged at the airport can only be rejected as inadmissible or dismissed on the merits on two grounds:

- (1) Dismissal on the merits if there is no substantial evidence that the asylum applicant should be granted protection status and:
 - i. the applicant tried to mislead the authorities about their identity, citizenship or authenticity of their documents and was previously informed about the negative consequences of doing so;
 - ii. the applicant's claims relating to the alleged persecution are obviously unfounded.
 - iii. the applicant did not claim any persecution at all; or
 - iv. the applicant comes from a Safe Country of Origin;
- (2) Inadmissibility because of existing protection in a Safe Third Country.

Asylum applicants who apply for international protection at the airport are transferred after the interview with the police to the building of the police station with the initial reception centre and the rejection zone. The questions asked by the police are the same as in the regular procedure and focus on the travel route as well as one question concerning the reason for the application for international protection. The applicant has the same rights as in the regular procedure such as right to examine the file and receive a copy of the interview report. Based on the first interview, the BFA decides within a maximum time limit of one week whether the procedure shall be processed under the special regulations of the airport procedure, or if the case should be considered under the regular procedure.²⁸⁶

For airport procedures, the Asylum Act foresees a 'four-eyes principle' whereby a rejection of an application on the merits or because of existing protection in a safe third country requires the explicit consent of UNHCR. However, that involvement does not substitute any due process guarantees but is a further safeguard in addition to e.g. the rights to be heard, to legal counselling and to appeal. If the BFA intends to reject the application in the airport procedure, UNHCR has to be informed within one week, a time limit which is generally respected.²⁸⁷ If the time limit is not met, the application is admitted to the regular procedure and the asylum applicant is allowed entry.²⁸⁸ Moreover, UNHCR is entitled to contribute to the procedure (e.g. examine the application and talk to the applicant). In practice, UNHCR decides most cases based on the case files including interview records by the BFA since in case of doubts it does not agree with a rejection in the airport procedure.²⁸⁹ On the basis of an agreement between Austria and UNHCR, the latter is obliged to respond and provide an opinion within 48 hours, maximum 96 hours, after a case has been submitted.²⁹⁰ In case the UNHCR does not give its consent it has to bring in a written reasoning. Data on the number of cases concerned are not available. In the context of Dublin procedures at the airport, UNHCR is not involved.

The law foresees that the persons are not allowed to enter the territory but can leave for another country at any time.²⁹¹ Persons held in border facilities are de facto detained as they are forced to stay in the initial reception centre at the airport. Official detention is not regulated in law. Individuals remain in detention pending the implementation of the negative decision at the border and can only be maintained for a maximum duration of six weeks.²⁹² Therefore, at this stage, a decision rejecting the asylum application on the merits or as inadmissible is issued without an expulsion order. Rejection at the border may be enforced only after a final decision on the asylum application. While detailed statistics are missing, practice suggests that airport procedure are carried out in less than 6 weeks. Nevertheless, the fact that the 6 weeks deadline as foreseen at national level goes beyond the four weeks deadline foreseen in Article 43 APD has not been litigated so far.

In 2016, a reform entered into force to allow for special measures at the border for the maintenance of public order during border checks, which will effectively enable police authorities to deprive asylum applicants of access to the asylum procedure (see Access to the Territory). As of 2024, the measure had still not been implemented in practice. In April 2025, the Austrian legislature amended the relevant provision to allow the government to issue a directive suspending all family reunifications whenever public order or national security is deemed to be at risk (see Family reunification)²⁹³

In procedures at the airport, only one personal interview by the BFA is conducted,²⁹⁴ after the initial interview with the police. There are no other differences with interviews under the regular procedure. However, as already mentioned, UNHCR plays an active role in the processing of asylum applications in the airport procedure as it can issue binding opinions. Asylum applications can thus be rejected only upon approval of UNHCR, otherwise they must be processed in the regular procedure. There are no available statistics due to a lack of transparency on the procedure. The involvement of UNHCR is ambivalent: on the one hand it serves as a safeguard in an accelerated procedure, and on the other hand UNHCR is directly involved throughout a truncated procedure which can possibly create dependencies that might cause conflict with UNHCR's role as a UN organisation.

The federal agency BBU GmbH which is responsible for the provision of basic care in the reception centres of the Ministry of Interior, is also responsible for the provision of legal assistance to asylum applicants in the airport special transit centre. The legal counsellors must provide legal counselling at first instance and are informed and appointed automatically by the BFA in cases where the BFA announces that it will conduct an interview within 72 hours after the application was lodged. As of February 2021, all interviews were held within 72 hours at the airport. Legal counsellors must be present during the interview. The legal counselling unit is not permanently present at the airport but is stationed in the nearby EAST in Traiskirchen and serves the airport procedures from there. There is not much information available yet on how this has worked so far in practice. NGOs do not have access to this area unless they have a power of attorney.

The BBU GmbH also provides basic care at the EAST at the airport. As of September 2022, there was a capacity of 28 beds at the transit zone at the airport.³⁰⁰

5. Accelerated procedure

5.1. General (scope, grounds for accelerated procedures, time limits)

The law provides for “procedures for the imposition of measures to terminate residence” subject to reduced time limits for appeal and decisions on appeal, with the effect that certain cases are dealt with in an accelerated manner. For the purpose of this report, these are referred to as accelerated procedures.

Under Article 27 AsylG, an accelerated procedure is applied where:

- (a) During the admissibility procedure, the BFA has notified the applicant of its intention to reject the application as inadmissible (see section on Admissibility Procedure) or dismiss the application on the merits;³⁰¹
- (b) The appeal procedure is to be discontinued where the asylum applicant has absconded the procedure and a return decision was issued by the BFA;³⁰²
- (c) The BFA determines that the application should be rejected as inadmissible or dismissed on the merits and there is a public interest in accelerating the procedure.³⁰³ Public interest exists in particular, albeit not exhaustively, where an applicant:³⁰⁴
 - i. Has committed a criminal offence;
 - ii. Has been charged with a criminal offence by the Department of Public Prosecution;
 - iii. Has been subject to pre-trial detention; or
 - iv. Has been caught in the act of committing a criminal offence.

In case a “procedure for the imposition of measures to terminate residence” has been initiated, a decision on the asylum application shall be taken as quickly as possible and no later than 3 months.³⁰⁵

In addition, Article 27a AsylG provides an accelerated procedure as such and states that certain cases may be decided within 5 months, with a possible extension if necessary for the adequate assessment of the case. Such accelerated procedures are foreseen when grounds for denying the suspensive effect of appeals apply, as stated in Article 18 BFA-VG. These reasons are:

- (a) The asylum applicant comes from a safe country of origin;
- (b) There are indications that the asylum applicant endangers public security and order;
- (c) The asylum applicant has provided false statements on their identity, nationality and authenticity of documents;
- (d) No reasons for persecution have been asserted;
- (e) Statements adduced are obviously false or contradictory;
- (f) An executable return decision has been issued before applying for international protection; and
- (g) The asylum applicant refuses to provide fingerprints.³⁰⁶

Procedures are also subject to stricter time limits in case the asylum application is examined at the airport (see section Border Procedure).

By law, no vulnerable groups are automatically exempted from accelerated procedures. There is no information available as to a general practice on the matter.

In 2023, 8,421 decisions were taken in a fast track procedure, among which 300 were taken in an accelerated procedure. The top three nationalities processes in fast-track procedures in 2023 were Morocco (84%), India (16%) and Pakistan (9%).³⁰⁷ These procedures are not necessarily conducted at

All asylum applicants must conduct a personal interview. The law permits an exception in case the asylum applicant has absconded from the procedure.³¹⁰ If the facts are established, failure by the BFA or by the Federal Administrative Court to conduct an interview should not preclude the rendering of a decision. No differences are observed from the Regular Procedure: Personal Interview.

The BFA may omit the personal interviews in cases of subsequent applications which aim to prevent the execution of an expulsion order and/or subsequent applications without de facto protection against deportation. Subsequent applications within 18 days of the deportation date have no suspensive effect, the expulsion order issued after the rejection of the first asylum application can be executed.³¹¹

Time limits for appeals are the same as in the Regular Procedure: Appeal. The BVwG has to decide on the appeal within 3 months in cases granted suspensive effect.³¹² The BVwG has to decide on the appeal against negative decisions – which include expulsion orders – within 8 weeks.³¹³

In subsequent applications without protection against deportation, the court has to decide within 8 weeks if suspensive effect was not granted. This provision has not much effect in practice, however, as asylum applicants may have been expelled or transferred before. Nevertheless, the appeal may have suspensive effect.³¹⁴

Difficulties in lodging an appeal against negative decisions in the accelerated procedure are similar to those described in the section on the Dublin Procedure: Appeal; especially regarding the lack of free legal assistance. Organisations contracted to provide legal assistance also have to organise interpreters if necessary.

Access to free legal assistance at first instance is difficult for asylum applicants detained during the accelerated procedure, although they may contact NGOs for advice. Free legal assistance is available for subsequent asylum applications too.³¹⁵ Since January 2021, the Federal Agency (BBU-GmbH) is responsible for providing legal assistance also in these cases.

A right to legal advice – as required by the recast Asylum Procedures Directive – is only mandatory at second instance, i.e. before the BVwG. This means that, at first instance, legal assistance will only be provided depending on existing resources of the Federal Agency.³¹⁶ As a result, it is not guaranteed that asylum applicants in the accelerated procedure will have effective access to legal assistance. Moreover, while they are in principle allowed to access other NGOs, the restriction on their freedom of movement in the context of the admissibility procedure (see Freedom of movement) significantly limits their access to NGOs which are not present in certain initial reception centres.

In so-called accelerated procedures under Article 27a AsylG in conjunction with Article 18 BFA-VG, mandatory free legal aid for the admissibility procedure is circumvented by the possibility to forward the procedure to the BFA branch office without prior admission to the regular procedure. This practice took place from time to time in 2018 but has not been reported recently. When asylum applicants get an invitation to their interview, they are still subject to restrictions on their freedom of movement meaning they are not able to consult NGOs or lawyers outside the restricted area. The BBU GmbH had access to accelerated procedure applicants. However, they were not allowed to share information on the concrete circumstances due to their legal obligations set out in the BBU-G.

6. National protection statuses and return procedure

6.1. National forms of protection

In Austria, if an application for international protection is rejected, national authorities are required by law to automatically assess whether the individual may be granted a residence permit on grounds deemed "worthy of consideration." These national forms of protection are divided into two main categories.

The first category includes a residence permit for "special protection", which can be granted in two specific situations:

- ❖ To ensure the prosecution of criminal offenses or the assertion and enforcement of civil claims related to such offenses. This primarily applies to witnesses or victims of human trafficking or cross-border prostitution.³¹⁷
- ❖ To protect individuals who have been victims of violence in Austria, provided they are not lawfully residing in the country and are subject to or could be subject to a protective court order. The ³¹⁶ For additional information on the BBU-G, § 51 BFA-VG, see in German, here.

³¹⁷ § 57 Abs 1 Z 2 Asylum Act.

person must credibly demonstrate that the residence permit is necessary to prevent further violence.³¹⁸

In addition, persons who have held a tolerated stay (“Duldung”) for legal reasons for at least one year, and who continue to meet the requirements for such toleration, are also eligible for a residence permit.³¹⁹ The primary reason for such a tolerated stay is a potential violation of the non-refoulement principle for people that do not qualify for international protection or where an exclusion clause applied to their case. The permit is only issued if the person has not been convicted of a criminal offense under the Austrian Penal Code.³²⁰

The second category is based on Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR), which guarantees the right to private and family life. If a residence permit for “special protection” is not granted, the authorities assess whether a return decision would disproportionately interfere with the individual’s private or family life in Austria. If this is the case, a residence permit is issued on this basis.³²¹

If none of these residence permits can be granted and a return decision is issued, the authorities then assess whether deportation is permissible under the non-refoulement principle.³²² If deportation is deemed inadmissible, the person is granted tolerated status (“Duldung”). After one year of tolerated stay, the person may apply for a residence permit under the provisions described above.

In 2024, a total of 938 residence permits (“worthy of consideration”) were granted on such grounds under §§ 55, 56, and 57 of the Asylum Act.³²³

Rights associated with national forms of protection

Compared to international protection, national forms of protection offer more limited rights. Holders of the “special protection” residence permit do not have direct access to the labour market, but may apply for a work permit.³²⁴

For those granted a residence permit based on private and family life, access to the labour market depends on whether the person has A2-level German language skills and has passed the corresponding language exam, or if they are already legally employed or self-employed with more than a marginal income. Only under these conditions is direct labour market access granted.³²⁵

Access to basic care or other social benefits varies significantly between Austria’s federal provinces.

Family reunification is not possible under any of these national protection statuses.

Access and application

Rejected asylum seekers do not need to apply separately for national forms of protection. These residence permits are assessed automatically in the course of the asylum decision. The process follows a fixed order:

- ❖ If international protection is denied, authorities assess eligibility for a residence permit for special protection.
- ❖ If this is denied, they evaluate whether a residence permit under Article 8 ECHR is appropriate.

- ❖ If not, they determine whether deportation is permissible under the non-refoulement principle.
- ❖ If deportation is not permitted, the person is granted tolerated status, which does not confer a right of residence and provides only minimal legal security. Individuals with tolerated status receive an ID card confirming their identity, but not a legal residence permit.

There is one additional residence permit available for individuals who are well integrated in Austria. However, this must be applied for separately and is not considered automatically within the asylum procedure.³²⁶ The eligibility criteria for this permit are very restrictive, and only a small number of people have received it.

6.2. Return procedures

In Austria, return decisions are issued jointly with the rejection of an asylum application.³²⁷ This means that if a person is not granted international or national protection, the same decision will automatically include a ruling on the permissibility of a return.

In 2024, 13,267 return decisions (orders to leave the country) were issued.³²⁸ While detailed statistics on actual returns or ongoing appeals are not available, it is known that 13,568 persons left Austria in 2024, of whom 6,595 did so voluntarily, and 6,973 were forcibly removed.³²⁹

No official figures are available regarding how many return decisions could not be implemented due to practical or political obstacles such as deportation bans, lack of cooperation with countries of origin or transit, or moratoria on returns.

D. Guarantees for vulnerable groups

1. Identification

Indicators: Identification

1. Is there a specific identification mechanism in place to systematically identify vulnerable asylum seekers? ☐ Yes ☒ For certain categories ☐ No
 - ❖ If for certain categories, specify which: Unaccompanied minors
2. Does the law provide for an identification mechanism for unaccompanied children? ☒ Yes ☐ No

The Asylum Law has no definition of vulnerable groups. However, it provides special provisions for victims of harassments, of crimes against sexual self-determination (Article 20 Asylum Act), of violence (Article 30 AsylG), as well as for unaccompanied minors (e.g. family tracing Article 18, legal representation Article 19 Asylum Law). Only a few federal states such as Burgenland, Vorarlberg or Upper Austria have included definitions of vulnerable asylum seekers in their basic care laws.

1.1. Screening of vulnerability

There is no effective system in place to identify asylum seekers in need of special procedural guarantees and the law does not foresee any mechanism to that end. During the admissibility procedure in the initial reception centre, asylum seekers are informed through written leaflets about the necessity to report psychological problems to the doctor and the legal adviser. At the beginning of all interviews in the asylum procedure applicants are asked whether they have any health or mental problems which could influence their ability to cooperate during the asylum procedure. In individual cases psychologists in initial reception centre are requested by the BFA to assess if the asylum applicant is suffering from mental disorders as a result of torture or another event which may prevent them from defending their interests during the procedure or entails for them a risk of permanent harm or long-term effects.³³⁰

The report published by the OHCHR in October 2018 following a mission in Austria indicates that interviews conducted by the police and the BFA take place in an atmosphere of mistrust, whereby the authorities focus on the identification of Dublin cases rather than on the identification of vulnerability. The report also stated that there was generally little cooperation among different actors, including governmental entities and a broad range of civil society organisations working with migrants in vulnerable situations.³³¹ In 2021, the exchange between the first instance authority and NGOs remained difficult. In 2024, there were meetings between NGOs such as asylkoordination österreich and Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst who were received by the Director of the BFA. In several regional directorates such as Carinthia there are regular exchange meetings between the authority and NGOs. There are exchanges between NGOs, second instance Court and the BBU GmbH on a regular basis. The main focus of these meetings is the identification of problems and improvement of communication between the stakeholders.

In its 2024 concluding observations, the UN Committee Against Torture criticised ‘the absence of a formal national mechanism to identify vulnerable asylum seekers, such as victims of torture, trafficking and gender-based violence, upon arrival at reception centres, record any evidence to support their claims and provide them with support services’.³³²

Victims of trafficking

In the Austrian system, there is no systematic identification of victims of trafficking. However, an Austrian authority’s assessment of an individual as a (potential) trafficked person has concrete consequences in status determination procedures and criminal prosecution; meaning that a person can be identified as a victim of trafficking in accordance with the criminal procedures act. A type of formal classification of an individual as a “victim” and the procedural consequences this entails is only regulated in the Austrian Code of Criminal Procedure.

The OHCHR further encouraged the Austrian authorities to provide for a reflection and recovery period in the law to strengthen identification practices, but this was not implemented. During its visit in 2018, the OHCHR was informed that potential victims of trafficking, particularly women were being returned to the countries they had fled. This mainly concerned Dublin cases and “safe third country” cases.³³³ In practice, there are still no systematic identification of victims of trafficking in place. In November 2021, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs presented the 6th national action plan to combat trafficking in human beings for 2021 to 2023, consisting of 109 measures ranging from prevention and awareness raising to improving law enforcement measures.³³⁴

In practice, if an Austrian official, such as a caseworker of the BFA, identifies a potential trafficked person, the official is requested to contact the criminal police office of the respective federal province. If the latter confirms the suspicions of the official, criminal investigations are initiated. The individual concerned as well as a specialised NGO will be contacted and informed, a reflection period may be granted, and certain victims' rights relevant to criminal proceedings are provided.³³⁵ There are no current statistics, however, on the number of victims of human trafficking in Austria.

Access to specialised care and support through NGOs is not necessarily dependent on informal identification by the police or the presence of criminal or civil proceedings. In the identification process, a central role is given to the Federal Criminal Intelligence Service. Together with its offices in the federal provinces, it is responsible for investigating cases of trafficking in Austria. This authority mainly cooperates with the organisation "LEFÖ-IBF", which is formally contracted by the Austrian Ministry of Interior and the Women's Department of the Federal Chancellery to provide support and protection to victims of trafficking across Austria.

1.2. Age assessment of unaccompanied children

Most age assessments are ordered by the BFA during the admissibility procedure, as special safeguards apply to unaccompanied children in accordance with the Dublin III Regulation. When the Dublin Unit starts consultations with other EU Member States it thus informs the latter that there is an ongoing age assessment procedure. In the meantime, the concerned unaccompanied children are admitted to the regular asylum procedure.

In 2023, there were 4,946 applications of unaccompanied minors in Austria. In less than 10% of the cases (489; 2022: 461), a multifactorial age assessment was conducted. In 56.2% of the cases the result was that the applicant was not found to be a minor (275 cases; 2022: 228).³³⁶ In 2024, 214 multifactorial age assessments and 377 wrist X-rays were conducted. In 111 cases the applicant was not found to be a minor.³³⁷

Methods for assessing age

In the case of doubt with regard to the age of an unaccompanied asylum-seeking child, authorities may order a medical examination. Several methods might be used. According to the Asylum Act and decrees of the Minister of Interior (which are not public), age assessments through medical examination should be a measure of ultima ratio. Other evidence to prove age should be verified first. If doubts remain after investigations and age assessment, the principle of in dubio pro minore (the benefit of the doubt) should apply.³³⁸ As part of a multifactorial examination methodology, three individual examinations are carried out (i.e. physical, dental and x-ray examinations). According to the Ministry of Interior, these examinations are conducted in compliance with the guidelines of the Association for Forensic Age Diagnostics (AGFAD).³³⁹

However, these principles are not strictly applied in practice. Children undertake age assessment tests but the asylum authorities do not acknowledge the documents that are submitted to them nor do they allocate sufficient time to obtain such documents. The Human Rights Board (Menschenrechtsbeirat), NGOs and the Medical Association have criticised the age assessment methods.³⁴⁰ The age assessment examination states a minimum age and consists of three medical examinations: a general medical examination; an X-ray examination of the wrist and a dental examination by a dentist. If the X-ray examination of the wrist is not conclusive, a further X-ray (CT) examination of the clavicle may be ordered.

In 2017, there was an example in which the VwGH applied the benefit of the doubt and ruled that the applicant should be considered to be a minor, concerning a Gambian asylum applicant. His birth certificate, delivered by the Gambian authorities, indicated that he was a minor but the authorities in Norway and Italy had determined that he was an adult. The BFA considered that the concerned Gambian applicant was between 17.04 and 18.44 years.³⁴¹

Even though strategic litigation against the application of age assessment has almost ceased in the last years, concerns are being articulated by NGOs especially in reference to the indiscriminate application of age assessments.³⁴² The BFA regularly orders age assessment procedures, even in cases in which the applicants offered to present documents within days or weeks. The costs of an age assessment range between € 489.20 and € 1,246.80.³⁴³ The statistical data of the Ministry of Interior is incomplete and does not allow conclusions to be drawn on the proportionality and scientific value of the application of age assessment.

Challenging age assessments

Age assessments are not an administrative decision but an expert opinion which is communicated to the applicant. As a result, there is no possibility to appeal the opinion. The question whether it is possible to challenge the decision declaring an asylum applicant to be an adult has been referred to the Constitutional Court (VfGH). In a ruling of 3 March 2014, the Court ruled that the declaration of majority of an asylum applicant by the BFA, and the subsequent discharge of the legal representative, may not be appealed during the first instance procedure.³⁴⁴ As a consequence, unaccompanied children who are erroneously declared to be adults have to continue the procedure without legal representation. Authors have raised concerns resulting from this ruling, in particular the fact that the Court established criteria that are not in line with the applicable legal safeguards and disregarded the significant procedural consequences a declaration of majority entails.³⁴⁵

The VfGH has confirmed the VfGH's position, stating that age assessments should be seen as part of the examination of the asylum application. Since the age assessment is a mere procedural matter according to the VfGH, the asylum applicant does not lose any rights in the procedure that they would otherwise enjoy as an unaccompanied child.³⁴⁶

However, as explained by experts, the deprivation of the right to legal representation under Article 10(3) BFA-VG denies unaccompanied children of the right to a representative in violation of Article 25(1) of the recast Asylum Procedures Directive and Article 6(2) of the Dublin III Regulation, as well as of Article 24(1) of the recast Reception Conditions Directive.³⁴⁷

2. Special procedural guarantees

Indicators: Special Procedural Guarantees

1. Are there special procedural arrangements/guarantees for vulnerable people? ☐ Yes ☒ For certain categories ☐ No
- ❖ If for certain categories, specify which: Unaccompanied minors, victims of torture or sexual violence

2.1. Adequate support during the interview

In cooperation with UNHCR Austria, IOM and LEFÖ BFA, officials of the BFA are offered training sessions providing targeted information on vulnerable groups.³⁴⁸ These trainings further aim to strengthen their understanding of first-instance procedures and adequate measures to be adopted to ensure a high-quality of interpretation.³⁴⁹ In addition to the trainings that have been organised on a regular basis since 2016, officials of the BFA are also supported in their day-to-day work through the development of certain tools. UNHCR further develops specific assessment methods for the evaluation of asylum procedures. It selects the focus point for the assessment of the decisions and provides samples of interviews and decisions to train quality assessors of the BFA accordingly. In 2018, two cases involving homosexual asylum applicants aroused public criticism. Social media reported that their asylum application had been rejected as untrustworthy, which led to an investigation and the responsible official of the BFA lost his license to decide upon asylum applications. The BFA acknowledged that the decision did not meet the necessary qualitative standards as regards language and wording used.³⁵⁰

In that context, the Austrian Queer base counselling centre criticised the fact that BFA employees were not adequately trained in that regard. The Ministry of Interior responded that there are ongoing training courses offered to BFA staff and highlighted that specific trainings on LGBTI rights had been planned even before the aforementioned scandal.³⁵¹ Since 2019, there is a course offered by the BVwG for its judges in cooperation with the LGBTIQ-organisation Queer Base. This is not mandatory for the judges. In addition, as part of the annual training programme for BFA employees a course presented by Queer Base is offered for dealing with particularly vulnerable groups to meet the special needs necessary sensitivity when identifying particularly vulnerable people and their special interests in the context of asylum and immigration law procedures.³⁵²

In the past there were several cases in which it became public that decisions of the BFA were based on personal views and involved biased questioning in interviews as well as stereotypes on gender and race.³⁵³ In 2021, in one case in which the NGO Queer Base represented the applicant was made public: The BFA had used inappropriate and inadequate questions concerning the sexual life of the applicant and had, according to the applicant, had made her undress.³⁵⁴

If an asylum applicant bases the fear of persecution on infringements of their right to sexual self-determination, they should be interviewed by an official of the same sex, unless requested otherwise.³⁵⁵ In the procedure before the BVwG, this rule should apply only if asylum applicants have already claimed an infringement of their right to sexual self-determination before the BFA or in the written appeal. The Constitutional Court (VfGH) has ruled that a judge of the same sex should decide on the appeal regardless of whether a public hearing is organised or the decision is exclusively based on the file.³⁵⁶ However, a similar provision for interpreters is lacking, however.

Each member of a family must submit a separate application for international protection. During the interview they are asked whether they have individual reasons to apply for protection or whether they want to rely on the reasons of one of their family members. Accompanied children are represented in the procedure by their parents, who are requested to submit the reasons on behalf of their children.

2.2. Exemption from special procedures

If it is deemed highly probable that the applicant has suffered from torture or other serious forms of physical, psychological, or sexual violence, the application shall not be dismissed in the admissibility procedure.³⁵⁷

Moreover, asylum claims lodged by vulnerable asylum applicants (e.g. victims of torture or violence and unaccompanied children) should in principle not be processed in airport procedures. However, in practice, in the absence of effective vulnerability identification mechanism, vulnerable applicants continue to be subject to airport procedures. Moreover, vulnerable applicants may also be subject to accelerated procedures for national security reasons.³⁵⁸

3. Use of medical reports

Indicators: Use of Medical Reports

1. Does the law provide for the possibility of a medical report in support of the applicant's statements regarding past persecution or serious harm? ☒ Yes ☐ In some cases ☐ No
2. Are medical reports taken into account when assessing the credibility of the applicant's statements? ☒ Yes ☐ No

Asylum applicants undergo a mandatory medical examination in the initial reception centres (EAST).³⁵⁹ In many cases, however, persons of trust are not allowed to be present during psychological consultations.

Medical reports are mainly requested in the admissibility procedure to assess whether an expulsion would cause a violation of Article 3 ECHR. Therefore, a standard form is used with space for a narrative. Medical reports are not based on the methodology laid down in the Istanbul Protocol.³⁶⁰

Some of the psychiatrists or medical experts are accredited by the courts, but have no special training on survivors of torture, do not apply the Istanbul Protocol, do not allow a person of confidence to be present during the examination or are biased. Therefore, asylum applicants also submit opinions of experts of their own choice, which they normally pay themselves, although sometimes these opinions are covered by their health insurance.

The Administrative Procedures Act (AVG) requires the assessment of all relevant facts and imposes an obligation on the authorities to undertake all necessary investigations. Statements of the applicants have to be credible; persecution needs not be proved and preponderant plausibility is sufficient. If the authorities have doubts on whether the applicant has been subjected to torture or other serious acts of violence, a medical examination may be ordered. These examinations are paid by the state. Often asylum applicants submit expert opinions e.g. a report of the psychiatric department of a hospital where they have been treated or an opinion of a psychotherapist. In each federal state, a network of NGOs provides free psychotherapy sessions to asylum applicants, as these are funded by the Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF).³⁶¹ However, in practice, capacities are insufficient, and clients often have to wait several months to start the treatment.³⁶²

In appeal procedures against a decision of the BFA, new facts and evidence may be submitted only if the asylum applicant had been unable to submit those before the BFA. Negative first instance decisions are often based on the lack of credibility of the facts presented. To convince the Federal Administrative Court (BVG) of the applicant's credibility, expert opinions requested by the Court or submitted by the applicant may thus play a crucial role in the appeal procedure.

The Administrative High Court (VwGH) delivered a crucial decision in 2010 with regard to the consideration of medical evidence, in which it criticised the first instance authority for: "[N]eglecting to take into account medical reports as proof of psychological conditions, which consequently deprived the applicants of an objective examination of contentious facts... The responsible authority has thereby judged the applicants' mental state without going into the substance of the individual circumstances."³⁶³ A psychiatric opinion was taken into consideration, which concerned the need to treat the psychiatric illness. Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), illusions and concentration difficulties were diagnosed, but the opinion did not demonstrate to what extent those issues would influence the asylum applicant's statements. Therefore, the authority believed that the asylum applicant should remember the exact date of the events reported.

The established jurisprudence of the VwGH requires exhaustive reasoning to deny the causality between alleged torture and visible scars, including through an expert opinion indicating the likelihood of alleged torture causing the visible effects.³⁶⁴ In the same ruling, the Court repeated earlier jurisprudence to the effect that psychiatric illness must be taken into account in regard to discrepancies that have been identified in the statements of an asylum applicant.

4. Legal representation of unaccompanied children

Indicators: Unaccompanied Children

1. Does the law provide for the appointment of a representative to all unaccompanied children?

☒ Yes

☐ No

A legal representative for the asylum procedure is appointed by the BFA as soon as an unaccompanied child applies for asylum.³⁶⁵ As opposed to adult asylum seekers, unaccompanied minors must lodge the asylum application at a specific place, the police station of Traiskirchen, near the initial reception centre. Unaccompanied children who are between 14 and 17 years old can also lodge their application at a designated police office in Schwechat. Unaccompanied children have no legal capacity to act by themselves in the procedure; nevertheless, they have the duty to cooperate during the procedure just as adults. Legal representatives have to be present both at interviews organised by the BFA and hearings at the BVwG.³⁶⁶

During the admissibility procedure, the legal advisers (who are contracted by the Ministry of Interior) act as legal representatives of the unaccompanied asylum-seeking child. There is no legal guardian appointed as the Child and Youth Welfare Authority denies its responsibility arguing that during the admissibility procedure it is not clear whether the children have a perspective to stay in Austria. UAM are not able to act without the consent of their legal adviser, for example to choose a legal representative by themselves or to submit an appeal in case the legal adviser fails to do so. Legal advisers were either from Verein Menschenrechte Österreich or from ARGE Rechtsberatung up until 2020. By taking over legal assistance, the BBU GmbH also took over the responsibility of legal representation of unaccompanied children in January 2021. According to the Human Rights Board (Menschenrechtsbeirat),³⁶⁷ the fact that these legal advisers are only responsible for the asylum procedure and do not have full custody of the child is problematic. Furthermore, legal advisers are not required to have special expertise on children. The problem still lacks a solution was a part of public debate throughout 2020. An answer to a parliamentary request showed that more than 50% of unaccompanied minors disappear after lodging an asylum application. The Federal Youth Association (Bundesjugendvertretung) criticised the fact that no one has full custody over the children during the admissibility procedure and called for a solution that would foresee that full custody is assigned to a legal representative from the first day of the asylum procedure.³⁶⁸ In 2022 and 2023, even more UAM disappeared after lodging an asylum application: In 2022, 11,613 cases were discontinued (87.5%) and in 2023 4,715 (95.3%). In 2024, the number of UAM applying for asylum decreased to 925 of which 488 cases were discontinued (52.8%).³⁶⁹ In the first quarter of 2025, only 153 UAM applied for asylum of which 121 (79.1%) disappeared.³⁷⁰

With the takeover of the BBU GmbH in charge of providing legal counselling since January 2021 (see Legal assistance), no major changes concerning guardianship of unaccompanied minors have occurred. There is still no general appointed guardian in the admissibility procedure. The BBU GmbH is only responsible for legal representation in asylum procedures, all other areas of best interest of the child are not covered. This was criticised by the UN Committee Against Torture in its 2024 concluding observations, as it highlighted concerns about 'the fact that legal guardians are appointed only after an unaccompanied or separated asylum-seeking child between 14 and 18 years of age has been assigned to a reception facility operated by one of the Länder, and that the transfer to the facility may take time due to age-assessment processes'.³⁷¹

The improvement of the protection and legal status of refugee children is set as an objective in the 2025-2029 coalition programme.³⁷² It was already foreseen in the coalition programme of the predecessor government but not implemented. NGOs, and UNHCR, IOM and UNICEF have urged the government to take measures without delay to implement a better protection.³⁷³ In 2022, the government has not yet presented a draft for a possible new guardianship law even though the pressure has increased following the report of the Kindeswohlkommission, an independent commission appointed by the Ministry of Justice following deportations of children in January.³⁷⁴ The opposition parties have brought forward a parliamentary motion urging the federal government to further improve the protection and legal status of child refugees and to pay special attention to the best interests of the child.³⁷⁵ In the 2025-2029 coalition program, the governing parties included a pledge to the recommendations of the Kindeswohlkommission.³⁷⁶ The situation of unaccompanied minors got worse during the reception crisis in fall 2022: As the provinces failed to take over asylum applicants from the federal reception centres the centres' capacity reached its limits. This resulted in up to 1,000 UAM having to stay in inadequate reception centres for months. The 2023 report of the Qualitätsbeirat highlights key challenges regarding unaccompanied minor refugees (UMFs). Nearly 600 UMFs remained in BBU facilities due to delays in transferring them to provincial care, overburdening the independent legal advice service, which lacks a guardianship mandate. The Board urges the Ministries of the Interior and Justice to ensure prompt guardianship assignments and faster transfers.³⁷⁷

This situation changed for the better in 2024 due to decreased applications and the minors are accommodated in the provinces faster. However, the oldest accommodation specialised in UAM run by SOS Kinderdorf in Salzburg closed in spring 2025. Its financial situation grew worse as only few applications were filed and the FPÖ-Landesrat decided to not step up the financial support.³⁷⁸

In 2024, 925 UAM (2023: 4,946) applied for asylum but 488 (2023: 4,715) absconded from the procedure.³⁷⁹ This represents 52.8% (2023: 95.3%) of all applications by UAMs in 2024.³⁸⁰

In the case of siblings, the BFA and BVwG have assumed that an adult sibling has the power to represent their underage sibling in the admissibility procedure. The VfGH and VfGH have clarified, however, that legal representation during this procedure is a task for a legal adviser and cannot be performed by a sibling. The transfer of custody requires a court decision and cannot be based on the sole decision of the Child and Youth Service.³⁸¹

After admission to the regular procedure and transfer to one of the federal provinces, the Child and Youth Service (KJH Kinder- und Jugendhilfe) takes over the legal representation according to the Asylum Act or by court decision.

Legal representation services are provided by the KJH in three federal states (Vienna, Lower Austria, Tyrol). NGOs provide legal services in other federal states, (Carinthia, Styria, Vorarlberg) and the legal representation is divided between different NGOs in the three remaining states (Upper Austria, Salzburg, Burgenland). UNHCR conducted a survey and concluded that there was no difference in the quality of the legal representation services provided by the different NGO's.³⁸²

The quality of the assistance provided has been considered to be problematic in practice in some provinces as well. NGOs report that in some cases the legal representative refrained from lodging an appeal, thereby disregarding the best interests of the child.³⁸³ NGOs further reported to asylkoordination that, in cases where subsidiary protection was granted, the legal guardians appointed by the authorities refrained to consent to lodging an appeal against the negative asylum decision.³⁸⁴

Providing advice in return cases is mandatory since 2016 and unaccompanied children are also advised on return to their country of origin. Legal representatives are not informed about this, as a file note is only available when the application for voluntary return has already been signed. In 2020, there was no deportation of unaccompanied minors.³⁸⁵ At the same time, IOM provided support to three unaccompanied minors for their voluntary return to Afghanistan, Pakistan and Russian federation. Unaccompanied children also have the duty to cooperate with family tracing in the country of origin or third countries, regardless of the organisation or person who is undertaking the tracing. Children searching for family members can contact the Red Cross.

The AsylG defines subsequent applications as further applications after a final decision was taken on a previous asylum application.³⁸⁹ If a further application is submitted while an appeal is still pending, the new application is considered as an addition to the appeal. Different legal safeguards apply depending on the previous procedure (in-merit or Dublin procedure) and the time of submitting the application. Usually, a subsequent application is not admitted to the regular procedure and is rejected as inadmissible.³⁹⁰

³⁹⁰ Article 68 AVG.

The Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) can either refuse the appeal rejecting the subsequent application as inadmissible or decide to revert it back to the BFA with the binding instruction to examine the subsequent asylum application either in a regular procedure or by conducting more detailed investigations.

An interview must take place within the admissibility procedure, except in the case where the previous asylum application was rejected due to the responsibility of another Member State. Such interviews are shorter than in the first application and focus on changed circumstances or new grounds for the application. The law does not define new elements, but there are several judgments of the Administrative High Court that are used as guidance for assessing new elements.³⁹¹

Reduced legal safeguards apply in case an inadmissibility decision was taken within the previous 18 months (i.e. if the rejection is connected to an expulsion order and a re-entry ban of 18 months). In this case, there is generally no suspensive effect for the appeal nor for the application itself. In many cases the asylum applicant does not even undergo a personal interview except for the preliminary interrogation conducted by the police.³⁹²

Suspensive effect against the expulsion order may be granted for an application following a rejection of the application on the merits or a safe third country decision if the execution of the expulsion order of the previous asylum procedure could violate the non-refoulement principle. If suspensive effect is not granted, the file must be forwarded to the BVwG for review and the Court has 8 weeks to decide on the lawfulness of the decision.³⁹³ The expulsion may be enforced 3 days after the Court has received the file.

Asylum applicants sent back to Austria by other Member States two years after their file has been closed due to their absence also have to submit a subsequent application. The same applies to cases in which the decision has become final while the asylum applicant was staying in another Member State.

There is no limit on the number of subsequent applications that can be submitted. Different rules apply regarding suspensive effect of the application, which depends on whether the expulsion order will be executed within the following 18 days or whether the date is not yet fixed. In cases of rejection of subsequent asylum applications, the same rules regarding free legal assistance during the regular procedure apply.

Asylum applicants who submit a subsequent application within 6 months after the previous application has been rejected are not entitled to Basic Care provisions; nevertheless they may receive Basic Care during the admissibility procedure of the subsequent application (see section on Reception Conditions: Criteria and Restrictions to Access Reception Conditions).³⁹⁴ If Basic Care is not granted, detention or a less coercive measure such as a designated place of living and reporting duties is ordered.³⁹⁵

In 2024, 12% (2023: 5%) of all applications came from subsequent applicants. Almost 60% of the subsequent applications came from Afghan (35%) and Syrian nationals. A rise in subsequent applications by Afghan women happened after October 2024 with the announcement of the CJEU decision C-608/22. There was no noticeable significant rise in first time applications by Afghan women.

1. Safe country of origin

Article 19 BFA-VG provides for a list of safe countries of origin. The Governmental order listing safe countries of origin must consider primarily the existence or absence of state persecution, protection from persecution by non-state actors and legal protection against human rights violations. The COI department of the BFA must take various state and non-state sources into account, e.g. reports from human rights bodies, media articles, governmental reports etc. The COI department’s methodology in this regard is accessible online.³⁹⁶

In asylum cases relating to applicants originating from a safe country of origin, the BFA can withdraw suspensive effect of the appeal in case of a negative decision.³⁹⁷ The Federal Government may issue a decree ordering that the suspensive effect of an appeal against a negative decision must not be withdrawn, which is binding both for the BFA and the Courts.³⁹⁸ The examination of the list of safe countries of origin by the Ministry of Interior is also based on previous COI reports produced by the (former) Federal Asylum Agency.

This list of article 19 BFA-VG includes all EU Member States,³⁹⁹ although there is a mechanism that allows to take Member States off the list in case Article 7 of the Treaty on European Union (TEU) is applicable; i.e. Article 7 TEU provides for suspension of certain rights deriving from the application of the Treaties in case of serious breach of the values on which the EU is based, as laid down in Article 2 TEU. As a consequence, suspensive effect must be granted for appeals in asylum procedures of nationals of these EU Member States. Other safe countries of origin mentioned in the Asylum Act are: Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Norway, Iceland, Australia and Canada. In 2024, 32 (2023: 244) EU-nationals originating from 14 Member States applied for asylum in Austria. 25% of applications by EU-nationals originated from Hungarian nationals.⁴⁰⁰

Further states are defined as safe countries of origin by Governmental order (Herkunftsstaaten-Verordnung, HStV). As of December 2024, the list was last amended in March 2022, and included the following states:⁴⁰¹

- | | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------|----------------|
| ❖ Albania; | ❖ Benin; | ❖ Ghana; |
| ❖ Bosnia-Herzegovina; | ❖ Mongolia; | ❖ Senegal; |
| ❖ The Republic of North Macedonia; | ❖ Morocco; | ❖ Namibia; |
| ❖ Serbia; | ❖ Algeria; | ❖ South Korea; |
| ❖ Montenegro; | ❖ Tunisia; | ❖ Uruguay |
| ❖ Kosovo; | ❖ Georgia; | |
| | ❖ Armenia; | |

The 2019 amendment took Sri Lanka, which had been added in June 2018,⁴⁰² off the list.⁴⁰³ In March 2022, Ukraine was taken off the list.⁴⁰⁴

The Accelerated Procedure is applied in cases where the safe country of origin concept is applicable, and the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) has to decide within 7 calendar days on the suspensive effect of appeals against negative decisions. In such procedures, asylum applicants have access to free legal assistance where applications are rejected. Legal advisers must organise interpreters. As of 2021, the Federal Agency (BBU-GmbH) will oversee providing legal assistance in these cases, as already mentioned above. The procedure may be accelerated, but there are no exceptional time limits for deciding such applications.

In 2024, 1,479 (2023: 8,533; 2022: 22,520; 2021: 3,495) applications were submitted by applicants originating from 16 different “safe countries of origins”, which represented 6% (compared to 14% in 2023 and 21% in 2022) of the total numbers of applications for international protection. The largest numbers of applications were lodged by the following nationalities: Morocco (565), Algeria (202) and Tunisia (194).⁴⁰⁵ Thus, around 65% of applications from designated “safe countries of origins” came from North African countries.

2. Safe third country

Article 4 AsylG sets out the safe third country concept. If the concept is applied the application is processed and rejected as inadmissible (see Admissibility Procedure).

Article 12(2) BFA-VG also provides that, in case of rejection of the application as inadmissible according to the safe third country concept, the BFA has to add a translation of the relevant articles and a confirmation in the language of the third country that the application was not assessed in the merits and that an appeal has no suspensive effect.

If the person cannot be deported within 3 months for reasons unrelated to their conduct, the inadmissibility decision ceases to be valid.⁴⁰⁶ There is no list of safe third countries.

2.1. Safety criteria

Protection in a safe third country is deemed to exist if a procedure for the granting of refugee status in accordance with the Refugee Convention is available to the person in a country where they are not exposed to persecution or serious harm, and the person is entitled to reside in that country during such procedure and has protection there against deportation to the country of origin, provided that the person is exposed to such risk in the country of origin.⁴⁰⁷ There is a presumption that these requirements are met by countries that have ratified the Refugee Convention and established by law an asylum procedure incorporating the principles of that Convention, the ECHR and its Protocols Nos 6, 11 and 13.⁴⁰⁸

The conditions for the application of the safe third country concept have been clarified by the Constitutional Court and VwGH. The presumption of compliance with safety criteria through ratification of legal instruments was affirmed in 1998 by the Administrative High Court, which has ruled that asylum authorities must first and foremost assess the legal conditions in a third country.⁴⁰⁹ However, the Constitutional Court has ruled that the formal criteria of ratification of the Refugee Convention, the declaration according to Article 25 ECHR and the existence of an asylum law are not sufficient to establish safety in a third country, but the granting of protection in practice has to be taken into consideration. Asylum authorities have to be prepared to have up-to-date information of relevant organisations to be able to assess the factual situation.⁴¹⁰

2.2. Connection criteria

According to the aforementioned Constitutional Court and VwGH rulings, asylum applications cannot simply be rejected based on the mere fact that the applicant transited through or stayed in a so-called safe third country. When assessing the security of third countries, it does not only depend on formal criteria such as whether the country has ratified the Geneva Refugee Convention, the submission of a declaration under Art 52 ECHR and the existence of an asylum legislation, but also of whether the protection is actually granted.⁴¹¹

3. First country of asylum

The concept of “first country of asylum” is established in Article 4a AsylG. An application will be rejected as inadmissible, if the applicant has found protection in an EEA country state or Switzerland and asylum or subsidiary protection status was granted.

A law amendment that entered into force on 1 September 2018 deleted the 3 months deadline for validity of the inadmissibility decision if the person cannot be deported. As a consequence, the inadmissibility decision does no longer cease to be valid and deportation can still be undertaken at a later date.

Rejections for existing protection in another EU state are also issued regularly by the BFA concerning countries, see Suspension of returns of beneficiaries of protection in another Member State.

In a case ruled by the Federal Administrative Court in 2015, the rejection of the application as inadmissible of a Chechen refugee who was registered in Azerbaijan as “person of concern” to UNHCR was considered as insufficient. The court did not adequately assess whether the status is similar to the status of a recognised refugee nor whether the protection from refoulement was ensured.⁴¹²

G. Information for asylum seekers and access to NGOs and UNHCR

1. Provision of information on the procedure

Indicators: Information on the Procedure

1. Is sufficient information provided to asylum seekers on the procedures, their rights and obligations in practice? ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No
- ❖ Is tailored information provided to unaccompanied children? ☐ Yes ☒ No

Asylum seekers must receive written information leaflets in a language they understand after lodging the application and prior to the first interview. These information sheets are also available on the website of the BFA in 12 different languages.⁴¹³ At the beginning of the interview, the applicant must be informed about their rights and obligations throughout the procedure.

The BFA has published a brochure about the asylum procedure on its website. This brochure is in German and English only and is aimed at the general public.⁴¹⁴

The following information is available in 11 languages on the website of the BFA:

- (1) The “first information sheet” explains the first steps and possible outcomes in the admissibility procedure including mandatory or voluntary advice on return including information;
- (2) Information sheet on the duties and rights of asylum seekers;
- (3) Information for asylum seekers according the Eurodac Regulation;
- (4) A short written information brief regarding the Dublin III Regulation.

Several NGOs also provide information on the procedure on their respective websites, such as Diakonie, Caritas or asylkoordination. In December 2018, UNHCR published a brochure “to inform unaccompanied refugee children about their situation and their rights in the asylum system.”⁴¹⁵ This brochure is available in German, English, Arabic, Dari, Pashtu, Somali.

Detailed written information in languages other than German and English about the different steps of the procedure and rules and obligations does not exist. As asylum legislation changes very often, it does not seem to be affordable for NGOs to have brochures or other written information in the various languages required.

Useful explanations of terminology for asylum applicants from the Russian Federation were developed by an NGO from the federal state of Styria in cooperation with the University of Graz.⁴¹⁶ UNHCR has also produced a brochure about the asylum procedure for unaccompanied child refugees. It is available in four languages (German, English, Pashtu, Dari).⁴¹⁷ The Refugee Law Clinic of Vienna, an association formed by students at the Law Department of the University Vienna, also provides answers to “frequently asked questions”, which are available online in German, English, Somali, Pashtu, Arabic and Farsi.⁴¹⁸

Asylum applicants against whom an enforceable – but not yet final – expulsion order is issued shall be informed in an appropriate manner (i.e. through a leaflet in a language understandable to them, if available) that, for the notification of decisions in the asylum procedure, they can access legal assistance and that they are obliged to inform the authority of their place of residence and address, including outside Austria.⁴¹⁹

The system of free legal advice should, at least, provide information and counselling during the mandatory consultation with the appointed legal adviser in case the BFA intends to reject the asylum application as inadmissible or dismiss it on the merits in the admissibility procedure. The BFA must include information in its decision about the right to appeal in a language understandable to the applicant. Besides the mother tongue, this could be the lingua franca of a country. In the decision of the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG), reference shall also be made, in a language understandable to the asylum applicant, to the possibility of filing a complaint in front of the Administrative High Court (VwGH) and the Constitutional Court (VfGH).⁴²⁰

At every stage of the procedure, asylum applicants are informed about the possibility of support for voluntary return. In the waiting rooms of the initial reception centres, videos providing information on voluntary return are streamed.

The BFA can also order consultation with regard to return. This is systematically done when a return decision is issued. When an asylum applicant leaves the country in the context of voluntary repatriation to their country of origin, the asylum proceeding is filed as redundant. Counselling on voluntary returns is a priority and information is provided at every stage and material provided in many languages.⁴²¹

2. Access to NGOs and UNHCR

Indicators: Access to NGOs and UNHCR

1. Do asylum seekers located at the border have effective access to NGOs and UNHCR if they wish so in practice? ☒ Yes ☐ With difficulty ☐ No
2. Do asylum seekers in detention centres have effective access to NGOs and UNHCR if they wish so in practice? ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No
3. Do asylum seekers accommodated in remote locations on the territory (excluding borders) have effective access to NGOs and UNHCR if they wish so in practice? ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No

According to the law, UNHCR has access to all facilities and is allowed to get in contact with asylum seekers.⁴²² NGOs have contracts in 7 out of 9 federal provinces for providing social counselling. and visit reception centres of the federal provinces regularly. In two federal provinces, Carinthia and Tyrol, the social advice is provided by the federal administration. NGOs that do not fall under such contracts must file an application at the responsible office of the federal province to be granted access and visit asylum applicants. Access to detention facilities, including airport facilities, is difficult for NGOs in so far as they can only access if they already have some basic identification information on detained applicants, such as a name and date of birth.⁴²³ The state agency BBU that provides legal counselling is bound by secrecy and is for this reason hindered from passing on information about clients to NGOs.

“Fast-track”/accelerated procedures

The list of safe countries of origin, based on which the accelerated procedure may be applied, was expanded in 2019 to cover three new countries, namely Namibia, Uruguay and South Korea. On the contrary, Sri Lanka and Ukraine were deleted from the list (2019 and 2022, respectively).

The so-called “fast-track procedure” (see Fast-Track Processing), was initiated in 1,346 (2023: 8,285; 2022: 32,875) cases in 2024, leading to 1,389 (2023: 8,241; 2022: 23,297) decisions of which none (2023: 300; 2022: 1,188) were decided in an accelerated procedure. On average, a decision in fast-track procedures, which mostly applies to persons from countries listed as safe countries of origin and manifestly ill-founded applications (in 2024 35% Morocco, 16% Türkiye), was taken in 32 days.⁴²⁵

Afghanistan

The situation of Afghan asylum applicants changed considerably in 2021: Austria hosts one of the largest Afghan diaspora communities in Europe. At the start of the year, recognition rates concerning subsidiary protection were decreasing compared to previous years. In June 2021, the death of a 13-year-old girl that had been raped several times (the Causa Leonie case) initiated a public debate as the alleged perpetrators were Afghan nationals who were asylum applicants or who had previously applied for asylum. This led the public to urge authorities to carry out an increased and faster number of removals of rejected asylum applicants with a criminal record, thereby contributing to the anti-Afghan-narrative.

After the fall of Kabul and the takeover by the Taliban in summer 2021, the situation changed. Even though Austria was one of the last countries to stop deportations to Afghanistan, the Ministry of Interior continued to state in public that Austria would resume deportations to Afghanistan as soon as possible. Starting from August 2021, the number of discontinued cases of Afghan nationals thus started to rise as they moved on to other countries. This is also closely linked to the Anti-Afghan-propaganda of the Ministry of Interior in the context of the Causa Leonie case.

Return decisions were issued by a small group of BVwG judges between September and December 2021, but they were halted by another landmark ruling by the Constitutional Court stating that this would breach Art 3 ECHR.⁴²⁶ Since then, all decisions involving Afghan nationals have been granting protection. In 2022 and 2023, return decisions were issued in single cases but no deportations to Afghanistan took place or were planned. Following the deportations of Afghan nationals by Germany, the Austrian ministry of Interior announced that it would work with Germany on joint deportations to Afghanistan.⁴²⁷ NGOs highlight this announcement is to be seen as part of the Austrian policy of trying to shape public debate. There has not been any implementation of the plans announced.

⁴²⁷ Euronews, ‘Austria joins Germany in deporting Afghans with criminal records back home’, 1 September 2024, available at: <https://shorturl.at/fAq5k>.

In September 2022, the Supreme Administrative Court referred a case concerning an Afghan woman to the CJEU for guidance on two questions relating to Art 9 of the Qualification Directive: Firstly, whether a combination of measures adopted, encouraged or tolerated by a state which limit a women's freedom could amount to persecution within the meaning of Article 9(1)(b) of the Qualification Directive (recast) and secondly, whether a woman who is affected by such measures taken by the state should be granted refugee status solely on the basis of her sex or if it would be necessary to examine the individual circumstances of the applicant to determine how the measures impact a woman's individual situation.⁴²⁸ The opinion of the Advocate General concluded that a combination of measures could amount to persecution per the Qualification Directive when those have the cumulative effect of depriving those women and girls of their most basic rights in society and thus undermine full respect for human dignity, and that the authorities could consider there was a well-founded fear of being subjected to such acts of persecution on account of gender, without having to look for other factors particular to the person's personal circumstances.⁴²⁹

On 4 October 2024, the European Court of Justice (CJEU) ruled in cases C-608/22 and C-609/22 that Afghan women are persecuted by the Taliban on account of their gender and are therefore at a general risk of persecution; that is to say, that nationality and gender are sufficient for refugee status within the meaning of Directive 2011/95/EU.⁴³⁰ Provided the decision is consistently applied in national practice, the administrative process should be faster, as individual case examination is no longer necessary in the context of asylum applications by Afghan women.

This decision was criticised heavily by Austrian media and the far right political party FPÖ. The conclusion drawn by renowned legal experts such as Walter Obwexer (Head of the Law Faculty Innsbruck) and former head of the Austrian Oberster Gerichtshof, Irmgard Griss, was that the situation would mean a "pull-effect" and "human traffickers would only need to bring Afghan women to Europe" and the men would then arrive via family reunification.⁴³¹

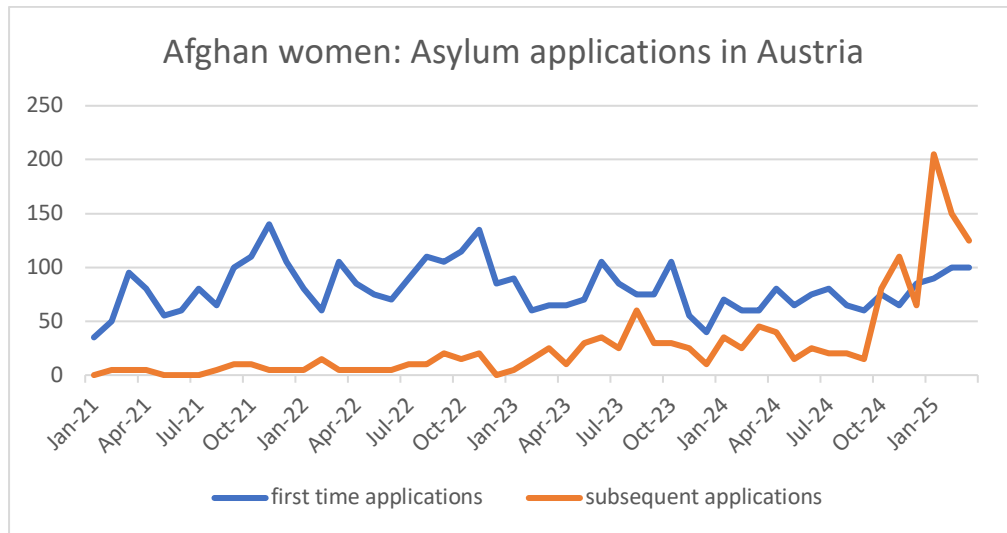

These assumptions however find no bearing of proof in practice: the number of asylum applications by Afghan women in Austria only increased significantly after the judgement because of more subsequent applications by Afghan women who have already lived in Austria before, with subsidiary protection status. Just like in Finland, Sweden or Denmark, that already had already implemented the caselaw in practice in 2022/2023, there was no rise of first time applications by Afghan women.

Palestine

Regarding applicants coming from Gaza, the BFA introduced new questions in the first interview conducted by the police. The applicants were questioned how they view the conflict between Gaza and Israel and what their position towards Israel is. These questions have led to several complaints brought in by affected applicants before courts based on discriminatory grounds. The procedures are pending at the time of writing (June 2025).⁴³²

Syria

After the fall of the Assad regime in December, all asylum procedures of Syrian nationals were suspended. The ministry of Interior announced that it would start planning deportation programs, which sparked fear among BIPs. Until the end of 2024, more than 500 withdrawal procedures were initiated because of alleged improvement of the situation in Syria. By end of March, there were more than 6,000 withdrawal procedures pending at first instance, most of them concerning Syrian nationals.

⁴³² Report from Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst to asylkoordination österreich, February 2024.

Reception Conditions

Short overview of the reception system

An asylum applicant that has no other financial means has the right to receive Basic Care services after lodging an asylum claim. In practice, basic care services are provided following the first interview on travel routes. The responsibility to provide Basic Care services is split between the Federal system and the states and is regulated in an agreement between the two since 2004.⁴³³

During the admissibility procedure the federal state is in charge of providing Basic Care through its state agency the BBU GmbH. The agency is in charge of reception centres (EAST) where the first procedural steps such as medical checks and registration are conducted. Besides the EAST there are currently nine⁴³⁴ federal centres where asylum applicants are being accommodated. After admission to the procedure the responsibility to provide Basic Care shifts to the states. Asylum applicants should be taken over by the states from federal care facilities to a state quarter as soon as possible. State facilities are generally smaller units (former pensions, flats etc). The conclusion of the corresponding contracts with the facilities falls under the responsibility of the respective states. Applicants for international protection are accommodated as long as they fall under the Basic Welfare Service Agreement.

In practice, the transfers of asylum applicants from federal facilities to the facilities in the states have not functioned smoothly and the actors blame each other for these delays. As a result, asylum applicants stay in large and inadequate federal centres for longer time than needed. Nevertheless, following the start of the BBU GmbH as Basic Care provider during the admission period, the transfers to the state systems seems to have increased and the cooperation has improved.

As of March 2025, the average time of a person's accommodation in federal basic care was 207 days (2023: 123 days), compared to 682 days in province basic care (2023: 622 days).⁴³⁵

Many facilities in the provinces have been closed throughout Austria in recent years, and it is therefore not possible to allocate asylum applicants quickly and adequately to the provincial facilities due to a lack of capacity. In 2021, this resulted in the re-opening of previously closed federal facilities and the opening of new facilities (e.g. Carinthia). Due to a decline in asylum applications in 2023 and further in 2024, some federal centres were closed as they were no longer needed, after a huge upscale in number of facilities in 2022 and 2023.⁴³⁶ Provinces such as Tyrol, Lower Austria, Carinthia, Vienna, Salzburg or Styria reported a lack of communication in the allocation of federal to provincial care (i.e. little to no preparation time for new residents to move in, transports in the middle of the night, little information for people with special needs, etc.) In addition, there were problems with regard to the payment of clothing allowances, as in many cases the BBU in the initial reception centres had already exhausted the entitlement to clothing allowances per person per year.⁴³⁷

When there is a high number of applications for international protection, applicants are transferred to so called federal distribution centres after the admission phase is concluded – from which they will be transferred to provincial facilities, which are smaller facilities where they stay until the end of the procedure.

If a person receives a refugee status, they can stay up to four months in the reception centre before being forced to leave the accommodation, while there is no time limit applicable to persons holding a subsidiary protection. In some states such as Styria or Lower Austria, rejected asylum seekers are told to leave the next day after receiving the negative decision. In other provinces such as Vienna the practice is different. The reason for these different practices is that some states consider that rejected asylum seekers who do not leave voluntarily no longer fall under the basic care regulation.

If persons do not opt for voluntary return, the BFA can order them to accept an accommodation place in so called return centres. These centres are located in the mountains of Tyrol, close to the Vienna Airport and in a remote village in Upper Austria. There, the rejected asylum seekers receive basic care services. If they refuse to be accommodated in these places, they are not entitled to basic care in other provinces and the risk of being apprehended in deportation centre is likely to increase.

Source: Presentation by BBU GmbH at Asylforum 2025, available in German at: <https://shorturl.at/WgO7X>.

During 2022, around 8,000 recipients of basic care (most of them asylum seekers) were accommodated in Federal Basic Care facilities as the provinces were reluctant to take over persons admitted to the procedure. This changed in the course of the year 2024 when asylum applications decreased massively. At the end of 2024, around 1,500 persons were accommodated in Federal Basic Care facilities.

In September 2023, there was a conference of the regional refugee councils where it was decided to increase the maximum cost rates for vulnerable groups:

- ❖ For unaccompanied minors, from € 95,- to € 112,-/day
- ❖ For unaccompanied minors and children in youth welfare facilities to € 130/day
- ❖ For increased care from € 44,- to € 60,-/day
- ❖ For people with care needs: increased from € 2,480 to € 3,360/month

A further increase in the regular rate was rejected, as well as one for private benefits, and individual benefits.

The Ministry of the Interior was asked to submit a corresponding draft incl. a proposal for a supplementary agreement to the 15a agreement. In December 2023 there was another conference of the refugee state councils which unfortunately led to no decision or resolution to increase the maximum cost rates for vulnerable groups, as there are differences of opinion between the Ministry of the Interior and the federal states. However, an agreement was reached by the next conference in June 2024. In July 2024, the increase decided at the refugee state councils in September 2023 was finally implemented: the parliamentary process was completed.⁴³⁸ Publication in the Federal Law Gazette took place in January 2025.⁴³⁹ A retroactive increase is possible from 1 January 2024, the exact implementation and date from when the retroactive increase takes effect depends on the respective federal state.

Transparent real cost model

Due to the poor funding, committed NGOs have long been demanding/requested a real cost accounting system in which all costs incurred in the context of care are also paid. These costs vary depending on the location/province etc. and must also be considered on an organisation-specific basis. Base funding as basic funding plus a daily rate per day/per person for the caring organisation would also be a possible model. In principle, a daily rate model needs to be embedded in an annual valorisation. However, such changes require the political will and conviction to guarantee high-quality care for this vulnerable group of people seeking protection. The transparent real cost model (transparentes Realkostenmodell) was presented at the State Refugee Council Conference in September 2023 and convinced the Federal ministry of the Interior and the City of Vienna. It is to be launched as a pilot between the City of Vienna and the Federal Ministry of the Interior. With the real cost model, the actual costs incurred in the accommodation will be billed, not a capped daily rate/flat rate as was previously the case. For vulnerable groups (increased care needs, unaccompanied minors and care places), retroactive billing took place from 1 January 2023 and from 1 January 2024 as part of regular care.⁴⁴⁰ An evaluation of the real cost model began in 2024 and has not yet been completed; no public information on the evaluation is available.⁴⁴¹

EUAA operations in Austria

In December 2022, the EUAA signed its first operational plan with Austria, to help enhance the capacity of the Austrian authorities to respond to emergency reception needs. The operational plan covered the period from 6 December 2022 until 30 September 2023 and was subsequently extended.⁴⁴² The operational plan with Austria ended on 30 June 2024, inter alia due to decreasing pressure on the Austrian system, as well as resource constraints incurred on the side of the EUAA and the need to reprioritise support.⁴⁴³

From January to 30 June 2024, the EUAA deployed 10 experts to Austria,⁴⁴⁴ 7 of which were external experts, 2 EUAA staff members and 1 Member State expert. This included 4 senior vulnerability experts, 3 senior social workers, 2 roving team members and 1 structural EU and national funding expert.⁴⁴⁵

From January to 30 June 2024, the EUAA delivered 2 training sessions to a total of 56 local staff members.⁴⁴⁶

The two operations had different goals: While the first one focused on rapid response and capacity building, the second one focused on building up long term expertise. The main challenge observed in practice was the difficulty for the EUAA to find personnel. The preparation time took longer than expected, then the whole project time was shortened by EUAA due to financial reasons. Both operations were described as helpful for the Austrian staff.⁴⁴⁷

---	-----------------------------

Asylum applicants and other persons who cannot be expelled are not entitled to the same social benefits as citizens. In 2004, the Basic Care Agreement between the State and the federal provinces entered into force and has been implemented at national and provincial level. The agreement sets out the duties of the Federal State and the states and describes material reception conditions such as accommodation, food, health care, pocket money, clothes and school material, leisure activities, social and return assistance, by prescribing the amount for each.⁴⁴⁸

The Austrian system of basic care is anything but uniform. Regulations on the scope and target group for basic care, and the existence of a need for assistance, are applied equally, but there are nevertheless different arrangements as to how basic care is implemented in practice in the provinces. This is visible in the field of financing, reasons for the dismissal/sanctioning of benefits from basic care, or access to and conditions of private accommodations. Differentiations also apply regarding the standards in basic care, for example the determination of the minimum amount of square meters per person based on the available living space, the care key/care ratio (i.e. the number of persons taken care of by each social worker), but also the different amounts to be granted for the payment of food and rent allowance for private housing as well as different procedures or methods to provide pocket money, leisure money, and interpretation costs.

A persisting issue in this area is the insufficient funding for care, counselling and housing in the context of basic services. The daily rates for funding basic care facilities as well as for food or private housing have been raised in 2022 for the first time since 2016: the rates for organised housing in the federal provinces have been raised from € 21 to € 25 per person/day (accommodation and eating included). The rates for private accommodation were raised to € 260 (from € 215) for and € 165 (from € 150) for rent. Pocket money in organised housing (€ 40,-/year), clothing allowance (€ 150,-/year), education allowance (€ 200,-) have not been increased since 2004.⁴⁴⁹

In the federal provinces, NGOs function as accommodation providers for organised housing. Due to high costs of living, several NGOs threatened to close down facilities as the money provided by the state was not sufficient.⁴⁵⁰ With the raise by € 4, a crisis was temporarily avoided but there is still not enough financial resources provided to cover all costs (see further down, same section).

On 1 May 2024, the basic care system turned 20 years old. Asylkoordination österreich and NGOs launched a month of action⁴⁵¹ - 20 years of basic care. In April, activities such as workshops, house tours for refugees, lectures, etc. took place across the country. After 20 years, it is clear that the introduction of the basic care system has brought improvements, such as a legal entitlement to basic care benefits for asylum applicants. At the same time, the basic care system has major shortcomings, appears arbitrary and has been poorly designed in terms of material and financial support.⁴⁵²

Eligibility to basic care

Are part of the target group for basic care in federal provinces, if the asylum procedure has been admitted in Austria and an allocation to a province has been made:⁴⁵³

- ❖ Asylum applicants until the legal conclusion of the procedure.
- ❖ persons entitled to subsidiary protection (§8 AsylG);
- ❖ persons entitled to asylum (§3 AsylG) during the first four months after being granted asylum;
- ❖ Persons with a legally binding negative outcome of the asylum procedure and persons without a right of residence if they cannot be deported for legal or factual reasons;
- ❖ Persons with a specific residence title for reasons worthy of consideration;
- ❖ Displaced persons from Ukraine §62 Asylum Act since March 2022.

The law passed in June 2019 foresees that the new Federal Agency (BBU GmbH)⁴⁵⁴ is responsible for providing reception conditions (basic care) in the admissibility phase as of July 2020. The Ministry of Interior postponed the start of the activities of the Federal Agency by decree until December 2020. Thus, the BBU GmbH has been in charge of providing Basic Care to asylum applicants during the admission procedure since 1 December 2020.

Asylum applicants are entitled to Basic Care immediately after lodging the asylum application until the final decision on their asylum application in all types of procedures. The provision of Basic Care as currently regulated may violate Article 17(1) of the recast Reception Conditions Directive. Indeed, in Austria, Basic Care is provided as soon as the person is considered as an asylum applicant. An asylum applicant is an alien whose request is formally lodged, which is the case after the BFA gives an instruction about the next steps to the public security officer. However, asylum applicants do not make their application in the initial reception centres but at a police station, which then asks the BFA for instructions: as long as the application is not regarded as lodged, the person is not an asylum applicant in the sense of Article 2(14) AsylG and thus is not entitled to Basic Care.

Different entitlements are foreseen in the Basic Care Agreement and the Basic Care Act (GVG-B). While the Agreement declares in Article 2(1) as target group asylum applicants who have requested asylum, the Basic Care Act of the Federal State defines the responsibility of the Federal State for asylum applicants after having lodged the application during the admissibility procedure in a reception facility of the Federal State.⁴⁵⁵ However, Basic Care conditions do not apply in detention or where alternatives to detention are applied.⁴⁵⁶ While an alternative to detention is being applied, the asylum applicant is entitled to reception conditions that are more or less similar to Basic Care (accommodation, meals and emergency health care).

Furthermore, EU and EEA (European Economic Area) citizens are excluded from the basic care.

⁴⁵⁵ Articles 1(1) and 2(1) GVG-B.

⁴⁵⁶ Article 2(2) Basic Care Agreement; Article 2(3) GVG-B. Note that this not in conformity with Article 3 recast Reception Conditions Directive.

Asylum applicants subject to Dublin procedures are entitled to basic care provisions until their transfer to the Member State responsible for the examination of the asylum application is executed. This general rule is not applicable if the asylum applicant is detained or ordered less coercive measures, however. In both cases they are not covered by health insurance but have access to necessary urgent medical treatment. In contrast to asylum applicants subject to the Dublin procedure but accommodated in one of the reception facilities in Austria, those undergoing Dublin procedures whilst in detention or less coercive measures do not receive monthly pocket money (€ 40). This distinction in the reception conditions available to applicants detained or subject to alternatives to detention does not respect the recast Reception Conditions Directive, which should remain applicable in all Dublin procedures.⁴⁵⁷ As regards Dublin returnees, they are brought to EAST Traiskirchen where an interview is conducted. Dublin returnees are then accommodated in Traiskirchen or Thalham or detained in deportation centres.

If the suspensive effect of an appeal has been denied, Basic Care is terminated after the first instance decision becomes enforceable. Asylum applicants receive Basic Care in the case the court has awarded suspensive effect or if they wish to leave Austria voluntarily until their departure.⁴⁵⁸

Special documents for the entitlement to Basic Care are not foreseen. All asylum applicants and other persons who cannot be deported are registered in a special database, the Grundversorgung Betreuungsinformationssystem (GVS BIS). National and local authorities, as well as contracted NGOs, have access to the files. In Tyrol, a subsidiary - Tiroler Soziale Dienste (TSD) of the province of Tyrol – is responsible for the care and accommodation of protection applicants and has access to the GVS BIS, they have extended administrative rights as they can activate and deactivate benefits in basic care. In Vienna and Salzburg, counselling centres in particular have access to the GVS BIS within the framework of basic services, but only reader rights, no administration rights.

After a final negative decision on the asylum application, the law provides for Basic Care until departure from Austria, if the rejected applicant cannot leave e.g. due to inability to obtain a travel document. Usually, rejected asylum applicants remain in the same reception facility. While in Vienna, Basic Care after a negative decision is usually prolonged, other federal provinces such as Salzburg and Lower Austria cease support almost immediately after the rejection of the asylum claim (after 10 days). In Lower Austria and Salzburg, people with legally negative asylum decisions are released after 10 days, except people who cannot be deported for legal or factual reasons, in which case the BFA is responsible for the verification. In Lower Austria, people with a legally negative asylum decision from Afghanistan in particular can remain in basic care due to the current situation in the country. In Salzburg, the BFA also checks, among other things, the obligation to cooperate for the return; if the obligation to cooperate is not met, people are also released from basic care.⁴⁵⁹ In Vienna, access to basic care services is prolonged even after the asylum application was rejected, mainly because the city cannot afford having many persons without insurance and housing. However, people coming to Vienna from other provinces after their asylum application was rejected normally do not get access to the basic care services in Vienna.⁴⁶⁰

The assessment of resources

A precondition for Basic Care is the need for support which is assessed by the BBU GmBH. This is defined by law as applicable where a person is unable to cover subsistence by their own resources or with support from third parties.⁴⁶¹ Asylum applicants arriving in Austria with a visa are thus not entitled to Basic Care due to the precondition of having “sufficient means of subsistence” for the purpose of obtaining a Schengen visa.⁴⁶² This exclusion clause is applied very strictly, even when the sponsor is unable to care for the asylum applicant. Exceptions may be made if the asylum applicant has no health insurance and gets seriously ill and needs medical treatment.⁴⁶³

Although the amount of material reception conditions is specified in the Basic Care Agreement,⁴⁶⁴ the level of income or values relevant to assessing the lack of need for Basic Care is not specified by law. Legislation does not lay down the amount of means of subsistence below which a person is entitled to Basic Care, even though the amounts for subsistence and accommodation are prescribed by law. In Salzburg and all federal provinces (except Tyrol, a single person can keep € 240),⁴⁶⁵ the regulation for Basic Care in force since 1 July 2016 sets out that income up to € 110 is not taken into account; for any family member in a household, a further € 80 of income should not lead to a reduction of basic care support; for an apprentice the respective amount is €150.⁴⁶⁶

Asylum applicants have to declare whether they hold resources or any source of income during the first interrogation with the police upon registration of the application.⁴⁶⁷ Since September 2018, asylum applicants are obliged to contribute to the basic care of the federal state they reside in. As a result, up to € 840 per person can be withheld by the police when a person asks for asylum and is found to carry such an amount of money. However, out of these € 840, the authority has to leave them at least € 120.⁴⁶⁸ Upon termination of the provision of basic care, any difference between the actual costs incurred and the cash seized is reimbursed. In 2022, € 405,605 (compared to € 244,331 in 2021, and €127,880 in 2020) were seized from 7,502 (2021: 3,591;2020: 2,237) applicants.⁴⁶⁹ As of September 2023, € 144,019 were seized from 1,816 applicants.⁴⁷⁰

As of 2 January 2025, 68,161 people received basic care (compared to 78,830 in January 2024 and 92,984 in January 2022). In 2024, 11,604⁴⁷¹ asylum applicants were transferred from the first reception centres to the basic care facilities in the provinces after admission procedure was completed. Given the high number of applications in 2022 (112,272) this shows that many applicants left Austria immediately after applying for asylum.⁴⁷² In 2024 number of asylum application decreased sharply, from 59,232 applications in 2023 to 25,360 applications in 2024.⁴⁷³

2. Forms and levels of material reception conditions

Indicators: Forms and Levels of Material Reception Conditions

1. Amount of the monthly financial allowance/vouchers granted to asylum applicants as of 31 December 2024 (in original currency and in €):
 - ❖ Accommodated, incl. food € 40
 - ❖ Accommodated without food max € 260
 - ❖ Private accommodation (incl. rent money) max € 425 (single person)

Basic Care may be provided in four different forms:⁴⁷⁴

- (1) Asylum applicants can be accommodated in reception centres where catering is provided. Asylum applicants in such reception centres receive € 40 pocket money per month, while the care provider (NGOs, private companies contracted by the Government) receives € 25 maximum compensation for the costs per day, depending on the standards of the facility. In 2023, all federal states implemented the maximum compensation rate of € 25.⁴⁷⁵
- (2) Basic Care can be provided in reception centres where asylum applicants cook for themselves. In that case, asylum applicants receive between € 165 and 186 per month mainly in cash (depending on the days per month and if € 6,50 or € 7 is paid per day). In Vienna, Vorarlberg and Tyrol there is the possibility of transfers to a bank account for private residents and for those who live in reception centres.
- (3) Basic Care can be provided for asylum applicants in private accommodation. In 2022, the monthly allowance was increased for the first time since 2016 from € 215 to € 260 (food) and for rent from € 150 to € 165 (single person). Asylum applicants e.g. in Vienna, can receive € 425 (food allowance & rent money) in cash or to a bank account. The payments for rent allowance are different and not uniformly regulated in all federal states, as demonstrated in the table below:

- (4) NGOs like Caritas, Diakonie, Volkshilfe, Tralalobe, Integrationshaus, Rotes Kreuz, Samariterbund and others rent private apartments where asylum applicants are housed. These are larger or smaller apartments with permanent or temporary leases, in so-called mobile assisted living (MoBeWo or MoWo). NGOs receive the same daily rate as for a regular organised facility with the difference that refugees are accommodated in apartments and not in reception centres. This is a suitable form of accommodation especially for vulnerable groups (LGBTIQ, single parents and so on) but also for families. This form of accommodation exists in all federal states, except Salzburg.⁴⁷⁶

Additional information on the Federal provinces relevant to the table above include the following:

- ❖ In Lower Austria the basic daily rate is € 23 for accommodation. NGOs and all other accommodation providers have the possibility to upgrade to € 25 daily rate if additional services are chosen. If the Accommodation Provider is prepared to provide individual additional services, it shall be entitled to an additional daily rate surcharge of EUR 1 gross for each three points; however, these daily rate surcharges shall be limited to EUR 2. The Accommodation Provider may therefore charge a maximum of EUR 2 for six or more points in addition to the respective daily rate.⁴⁷⁷ Additional services may include:
 - (a) Transports to authorities and doctors (2 points)
 - (b) Learning courses (e.g. computer, sewing, etc.) (1 point)
 - (c) Recreation: organised sports (1 point)
 - (d) Learning assistance for school children (1 point)
 - (e) Separate prayer room (1 point)
 - (f) Structural suitability and equipment for the disabled (2 points)
 - (g) 1 transferable downtown monthly bus pass and/or Rail per maximum of 20 residents (2 points)
 - (h) 1 transferable monthly bus and/or rail pass to the next city per maximum 20 residents (2 points)
 - (i) Arrangement of rides to summonses (1 point).
 - (j) Neighbourhood provider will provide personal hygiene items (2 points)
 - (k) 1 caregiver available for residents (1 point)
 - (l) Full service quarters as per point 3.3.2 (3 points)⁴⁷⁸

- ❖ In Styria, Caritas facilities are 'Partial self-supply facilities', where individuals get partial food allowance and additionally food/breakfast/lunch in the facility. Individuals receive € 110 per month and pocket money.
- ❖ In Carinthia, all basic care facilities with full sufficiency receive € 25 per day. All basic care facilities where asylum applicants can cook for themselves receive € 12 per day. People receive € 6 food allowance per day.

The introduction of the benefits-in-kind card (Sachleistungskarte) at the beginning of the summer of 2024 caused a stir. The Federal Ministry of the Interior and the province of Upper Austria agreed on a joint pilot project, whereby a federal BBU facility in Upper Austria began issuing residents with a benefits-in-kind card instead of cash. The pocket money is credited to this card. When applicants are assigned to basic care facilities in Upper Austria, they take the benefits-in-kind with them and receive their further financial benefits (via the accommodation provider) also paid out on this card. Only asylum applicants receive the benefits-in-kind card, not displaced persons from Ukraine. Cash withdrawals are possible up to a maximum amount of € 40, as well as payment in supermarkets, pharmacies, etc. The project 'Sachleistungs-karte' was put out on public tender;⁴⁷⁹ Lower Austria and Vienna did not participate in the tender. It is unclear which federal state(s) will adopt the benefits-in-kind card. Tyrol, Vorarlberg and Vienna already pay basic benefits by bank transfer and have no real need for a new system.⁴⁸⁰

In June 2024, Lower Austria introduced its own 'payment card': in addition to Upper Austria, they launched their own payment card project with Pluxee⁴⁸¹ (formerly Sodexo). Displaced persons from Ukraine and private residents are excluded. No cash withdrawals are possible with this model; instead, asylum applicants receive €40/month in cash per person at the beginning of the month. The food allowance is charged to the Pluxee card. The project involves a high administrative effort, as cash payment continues and the Pluxee card is used as well. The Pluxee card is not a debit card, so purchases in pharmacies, at ÖBB vending machines, in social markets (discount stores for people with proven low income), at markets in general or in second-hand shops are not possible. This is the biggest criticism of the Lower Austrian model, in addition to its discriminatory and de-humanising character.⁴⁸² The pluxee card was rolled out to the entire province of Lower Austria from September 2024.⁴⁸³

Asylum applicants living in private rented flats receive 36.5% of the needs-based minimum allowance (bedarfsorientierte Mindestsicherung) for Austrian citizens, refugees, beneficiaries of subsidiary protection and others in need of social welfare support, which is about € 1,209,01⁴⁸⁴ for subsistence per month (accommodation for a single person in Vienna, rent allowance is calculated individually and will be added).⁴⁸⁵ The level of the needs-based minimum allowance varies across the federal provinces, as political agreement to prolong an Austrian-wide regulation after its expiry by December 2016 was not reached. The sum given to a care provider, € 750 per month (€ 25 per day) for accommodation and subsistence of asylum applicants, is below the level of welfare support for citizens, despite staff and administrative costs having to be covered by the care provider.

For children, the daily rate in reception centres is the same as for adults. If families receive financial support for their daily subsistence, some federal provinces like Upper Austria provide a lower amount for children.

As of December 2024, 1,430 persons received Basic Care in federal reception centres,⁴⁸⁶ compared to 3,722 at the end of 2023, and 7,500 at the end of 2022.

Unaccompanied asylum-seeking children must be accommodated according to their need of guidance and care. The daily fee for NGOs hosting unaccompanied asylum-seeking children ranges from € 112.00 to € 130.00 depending on the intensity of psychosocial care. As mentioned under short overview of the reception system, the daily rates for unaccompanied minors were increased in 2024 and are now € 112.00 instead of € 95.00, or € 130.00 (if the facility is run on behalf of child and youth welfare). In some federal provinces like Styria the maximum amount is not given to care providers, although it is evident that only a smaller group are not in need of much guidance and care. Styria has set up a daily special support of €18 for children with special needs, in addition to the maximum amount of € 112. In Upper Austria, the government provides for € 112, which should also cover legal assistance.⁴⁸⁷

Due to the high number of Ukrainians coming to Austria at the start of 2022, the basic care system has shown its dysfunctionalities in many ways: while many housing places had to be closed in the last years due to smaller number of asylum applications and lack of money, there was no system established in case of crisis. Thus, many applications for basic care were not decided upon for months, and thus many people stayed without basic care for months, mostly for asylum applicants. Civil society organisations jumped in and provided housing: more than 70% of all Ukrainians were accommodated in private housing. Compared to 2022, the situation has improved as of January 2025, mainly because asylum applications have fallen significantly. The issue of closing refugee centres has resurfaced in the federal states where basic care is provided.⁴⁸⁸

In 2022, there was an increase in funding granted to accommodation providers. However, in particular the monthly rates for accommodated unaccompanied minors were not raised then, leading to high numbers of unaccompanied minors being housed in inadequate federal camps. The housing operators, mostly civil society organisations, could not afford to open new housing places in provinces, which led to a backlog of over 600 UAM in federal camps at the end of 2022. It is hoped that the increase in daily rates decided in 2024 will open up more places for UAM. As of December 2024, 132 UAM were accommodated in federal facilities.⁴⁸⁹

3. Reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions

Indicators: Reduction or Withdrawal of Reception Conditions

1. Does the law provide for the possibility to reduce material reception conditions?
☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Does the legislation provide for the possibility to withdraw material reception conditions?
☒ Yes ☐ No

3.1. Grounds for reduction or withdrawal

Material reception conditions are reduced if the asylum applicant has an income, items of value or receives support from a third party.⁴⁹⁰ For the first phase of the asylum procedure (the admission stage), this rule is not applicable. For the second phase, if an asylum applicant earns money or receives support from other sources, they are allowed to keep € 110 (and € 80,- for each family member); or € 240 in Tyrol, there is no common practice across all federal provinces. All additional income will be requested as a financial contribution for the asylum applicant's Basic Care. This is requested without a formal procedure. Reduction of reception conditions can, for example, result in not granting the monthly pocket money.⁴⁹¹

⁴⁹⁰ Article 2(1) B-VG Art 15a.

⁴⁹¹ See e.g. Vienna, Arbeit | Fluechtlinge, available in German

Per law, material reception conditions may be withdrawn where the asylum applicant:⁴⁹²

- (a) Repeatedly violates the house rules and/or their behaviour endangers the security of other inhabitants;
- (b) Leaves the designated place for more than 3 days, as it is assumed that they are no longer in need of Basic Care;
- (c) Has submitted a subsequent application;
- (d) Has been convicted by court for a crime on a ground which may exclude them from refugee status according to Article 1F of the Refugee Convention. This ground for withdrawal is not in line with Article 20 of the recast Reception Conditions Directive but does not seem to be applied or relevant in practice.
- (e) Has had their application rejected or dismissed and suspensive effect was excluded according to Article 18(1) BFA-VG. If the applicant cooperates to return voluntarily, they are eligible to material reception conditions until their departure. This rule makes a reference to Article 20(5) of the recast Reception Conditions Directive according to which a dignified living standard and access to medical treatment have to be provided.

In some federal provinces, the laws also permit the exclusion of asylum applicants who fail to cooperate with establishing their identity and need of basic care, although this is not applied in practice.⁴⁹³

In June 2024 the Federal Administrative Court upheld the suspension of material reception conditions in cash as a sanction against a Syrian minor applicant for serious and repeated breaches of house rules, considering that the measure was proportionate and aligned with the best interests of the child.⁴⁹⁴

Additional grounds for reduction foreseen in the house rules for federal accommodation (does not apply to applicants in the provinces)

An additional ground for reduction of the “pocket money” allowance was introduced following the ordinance on the utilisation of asylum seekers and certain other foreigners for charitable aid activities, which came into force on 15 July 2024.⁴⁹⁵ Through this ordinance, the scope of activities for charitable work has been extended, a change welcomed in principle by NGOs. Since the entry into force in July 2024, asylum seekers can not only carry out charitable aid work in municipalities,⁴⁹⁶ but also in other non-profit organisations (e.g. NGOs, nursing homes, etc.) (see Access to the labour market). In federal institutions, the extension of the regulation was linked to an obligation to carry out these activities at least 10 hours per month. Exceptions have been foreseen, e.g. for people with physical infirmity or proven diseases, etc. However, all other asylum seekers who do not fulfil this obligation will only receive half of the pocket money allowance. The ministry of the interior⁴⁹⁷ presented the obligation as a work obligation for asylum seekers. From a legal point of view, asylum seekers cannot be obliged to perform these activities, as according to 15a of the basic welfare support agreement, charitable work is only possible with the consent of the asylum applicant.⁴⁹⁸ However, an amendment to the house rules for federal accommodation, which now provide for the mandatory charitable work, created the basis for reducing the pocket money if charitable work is not carried out.

Moreover, in June 2024,⁴⁹⁹ mandatory basic courses were introduced for asylum seekers in federal accommodation centres. These basic rules courses (Grundregelkurse) consist of 5 modules and include content on democracy, the rule of law and freedoms, equal rights, culture and manners, rights and duties as well as sensitisation to forms of antisemitism. Anyone who refuses to take part in these courses will only receive half of the € 40 pocket money instead. The basis for the implementation was an amendment to the house rules for federal accommodation centres by the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum (BFA), which is not publicly accessible.⁵⁰⁰ The 15a Basic Welfare Support Agreement or the Federal Basic Welfare Support Act does not provide for such measures; it can therefore be assumed that there is no legal basis for the reduction in pocket money.

According to the Ministry of the Interior, around 4,500 people took part in the basic regulation courses between June and December 2024. Around 146 people refused to take part and 8 persons had their pocket money cut in half, while around 1,030 asylum seekers have failed to fulfil their obligation to work in the community.⁵⁰¹

Information provision and agreement to the rules

In all federal provinces, individuals in basic care facilities or those who apply for private living, go through a move-in process.⁵⁰² This includes counselling and clearing concerning information about house rules, data protection form, presence of staff, dates for disbursements or expenses such as hygiene items, etc., but also information about rights and duties in basic care as well as contents and services of basic care. Information about services of basic care always refer to basic care law of the respective federal state and 15a agreement, where these services are defined.

The information about rights and duties is the so-called 'Declaration of need for assistance' (Hilfsbedürftigkeitserklärung). In Vienna all people receiving (as well as private housing) basic care have to sign this declaration. The table below provides an illustration of the content of this declaration, which is used in Vienna by Caritas Asylzentrum counselling centre and NGOs who run facilities for basic care.⁵⁰³ The form is not publicly available, but its content was shared by a relevant stakeholder.⁵⁰⁴

- existing declaration(s) of obligation or liability: „Sollte eine Mitversicherung bei einem Familienmitglied möglich sein, verpflichte ich mich, diese in Anspruch zu nehmen“.

Co-insurance is usually possible if a family member is compulsorily insured, e.g. if he/she is in (full-time) employment or receives unemployment/emergency assistance (AMS) or childcare benefits. (full-time) employment relationship or if I receive unemployment benefits/emergency assistance (AMS-Bezug) or childcare allowance.

If I fail to meet these obligations, this may result in the discontinuation of basic benefits. I must repay any basic benefits that I have wrongly received. I must pay back. In addition, there may be consequences under criminal law.

Other reasons for discontinuation of basic care:

- Failure to keep important appointments, e.g. summonses, appointments at the service centre of Grundversorgung Wien (Caritas Asylum Centre), appointments at the Basic Care Counselling Centre.

- Leaving the residential facility of the Vienna Refugee Assistance: In case of unjustified absence of more than more than 72 hours, I will be discharged immediately.

- Moving to another province without an agreement with the Basic Care Counselling Centre

- Stay abroad

With my signature I confirm:

- I am in need of assistance. I have no sufficient income and no realizable assets.

- I have read and understood the information on basic care.

- I agree to disclose all required information.

- I acknowledge the consequences of not fulfilling the obligations.

The declaration of need further serves as basis for the discontinuation, sanctions, and benefit restrictions of basic care benefits. The declaration of need and the house rules are two important fundamentals in the accommodation area. The NGOs in the provinces have different procedures for providing information on basic care. Some NGOs in the federal provinces have incorporated the information on rights and obligations into their house rules, which are signed by asylum applicants. In most cases, there are translations into relevant first languages available. However, exceptions occur for illiterate asylum applicants, for which information about basic care and house rules must be explained orally with an interpreter. The documents must be signed in writing, including by illiterate asylum applicants. Overall, in practice, asylum applicants receive adequate information from NGOs and the BBU agency about basic care and their rights and duties.⁵⁰⁶

There are no special reception centres to accommodate asylum applicants for public interest or public order reasons. In Lower Austria, a refugee centre was opened at the border with the Czech Republic for unaccompanied minor refugees who had become maladjusted. This reception centre in Drasenhofen had to be closed due to public protests and a report by the child and juvenile Ombudsstelle.⁵⁰⁷ Following a complaint lodged by one asylum applicant placed in Drasenhofen the Administrative Court of Lower Austria concluded that the conditions in Drasenhofen violated the law. It even led to a criminal procedure against the right wing Landesrat Waldhäusl (Freedom Party), due to the suspicion that it had abused the power of office. The court acquitted the defendant in September 2022.⁵⁰⁸

Until the end of 2020, asylum applicants who violated house rules were sometimes placed in less favourable reception centres in remote areas, although these sanctions are not foreseen by the law. This practice has not been officially confirmed by the authorities but was reported by the persons concerned. There are yet no reports attesting whether this practice has continued following the takeover of BBU GmbH in December 2020. Although the freedom of movement is considered as not being limited in this case, presence at night is compulsory.

From January to September 2023, basic care services on the federal level were reduced in 61 cases and withdrawn in 46 cases.⁵⁰⁹ In 2024 there were 79 decisions regarding reduction of basic care on the federal level (of which were 30 UAM).⁵¹⁰

3.2. Procedure for reduction or withdrawal

Withdrawal or reduction of Basic Care provisions should be decided by the BFA as long as asylum applicants are in the admissibility and/or in merits and Basic Care is provided by one of the federal provinces. In practice, only few procedures of reduction or withdrawal of Basic Care have been carried out. This is partly due to the fact that NGOs manage to find a solution for their clients and because the competent offices are unwilling to make a written decision. Decisions are taken on an individual basis, but written reasoned decisions are rare. Since December 2020, the Federal Agency (BBU-GmbH) has been responsible for the reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions while the persons are accommodated in federal reception centres.

Procedural safeguards in case of withdrawal or reduction do not fully meet the requirements set out in Article 20 of the recast Reception Conditions Directive. In some federal provinces, reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions may be ordered without prior hearing of the asylum applicant and without written notification of the decision, if the hearing imposes a disproportionate burden. In some federal provinces, the latter is only rendered upon request of the asylum applicant. It has also happened that the reception conditions of all asylum applicants involved in a violent conflict in a reception facility were withdrawn without examination of the specific role of all individuals concerned in the conflict. In Salzburg, free legal advice is available in the event of official cuts or discontinuation of basic benefits.⁵¹¹

In some provinces, there are no official decisions/notifications by the implementing authorities on the granting, restriction of benefits, sanctions or dismissal from basic benefits. In practice, often NGOs concerned and/or person concerned receive an information letter explaining and declaring the reasons behind restrictions of basic care from the implementing authority, either by mail and/or by post. Restrictions on benefits are enforced differently in the provinces, and the amount of the allowances for income vary. In Upper Austria, persons with an income due to employment receive an invitation from the authority for a personal meeting in which income, overpayment of basic benefits, and repayment is recorded. This agreement must be signed by the asylum applicant and is binding. Individual basic care benefits are not withheld immediately, but repayment instalments are ordered. In cases where the person does not fulfil their obligation to pay in instalments, financial benefits such as pocket money or food allowance will be withheld. In Vienna, people in basic care usually receive the information letter with repayment agreements via the supervising NGO. Previously, pay slips had to be sent to the authority (FSW), who was in charge of calculating the repayment. In some cases, the calculations were incorrect, and the care team had to intervene with the authority.⁵¹² There are still recurring miscalculations for the cases of people with earned income and residual entitlement to basic benefits, and the social counselling or care team has to intervene. At the nationwide exchange meetings in 2024, it was announced that in Vorarlberg, Tyrol, Salzburg and Styria, official decisions/notifications are issued when basic care benefits are withdrawn or reduced. This is certainly to be welcomed and helps asylum seekers to better access their rights.⁵¹³

A legal remedy in the Basic Care Act of the Federal State is foreseen in case material reception conditions are withdrawn.⁵¹⁴ Such decisions to withdraw or reduce Basic Care provision can be appealed at the Administrative Court (the Federal Administrative Court in case of a BFA decision, the Administrative Court of the federal provinces in case of decisions of the provincial government). Free legal assistance for appeal is provided in the law and is now implemented in all federal provinces.

Asylum applicants whose Basic Care has been terminated or reduced may re-apply for the provision of basic care in the federal province they have been allocated to. In practice, it is difficult to receive Basic Care again after it has been terminated, or at least it takes some time to re-gain access.⁵¹⁵ Asylum applicants who endanger the security of other inhabitants are sometimes placed in other reception centres with lower standards. Asylum applicants who have left their designated place of living may get a place in another reception centre in the same federal province after applying for Basic Care. In Upper Austria, one of the sanctions foreseen for several disciplinary incidents in residential facilities is that the person involved must move to private accommodation. In addition, there is mandatory anti-violence training which must be carried out, otherwise the place of residence may be lost.⁵¹⁶

Reduction or withdrawal in case of income

Basic benefits are provided as a substitute, while any income must be reported and will be calculated in the basic care benefits. Regarding spouses who also earn an income, as well as income that may have been gained in the context of detention (if the asylum applicant worked in the centre where they were held), other restrictions may arise. If a person marries, the spouse is responsible for maintenance; the marriage certificate and income of the spouse must be presented to the authorities. Based on the financial situation of the spouse, basic care benefits may be granted, reduced, or discontinued. In the case of longer periods of detention and a working activity while in detention, released asylum applicants receive a so-called release allowance, which is paid to the applicant and counted as an income. The amount of the release allowance varies depending on the duration of the imprisonment and the work performed. In any case, it is counted towards the basic care benefits, as basic pension benefits are only granted as a substitute. Depending on the amount of the release allowance, basic care is granted immediately or benefits like pocket money may not be paid, which is decided and examined by the authority.⁵¹⁷

If Basic Care is withdrawn because the asylum applicant is no longer considered to be in need of benefits, for example because they have an income, they may receive Basic Care if it is proven that they are again in need of it. However, asylum applicants may end up homeless or in emergency shelters of NGOs mainly because they fail in obtaining Basic Care after withdrawal or they have left the federal province for various reasons such as presence of community, friends or family in other federal provinces, unofficial job offers and so forth. Homelessness or accommodation in emergency shelters following the withdrawal of basic care was an issue that persisted in 2024. Official statistics on the number of asylum applicants concerned by this issue are not available.⁵¹⁸

Termination of basic care upon a negative asylum decision

In federal provinces such as Lower Austria, people with negative return decision must leave residential facilities within 10 days. However, if deportations are de facto not possible rejected asylum applicants can receive a tolerated status and consequently are entitled to receive basic care benefits. After a year of tolerated status, individuals qualify for a residence permit called AB+ (Aufenthaltsberechtigung plus). Individuals holding this residence permit receive basic care benefits until 12 days after receiving the title of stay. In Salzburg a reason for loss of basic care after a negative decision is, when people do not cooperate during the return procedure. In Vienna people with negative return decision can stay in the facilities or in their private apartments but must participate in a voluntary return interview. It happens that these people are picked up directly from the facilities by the police and taken to removal centres. In Upper Austria, persons who receive residence permit called RWR/RWR+ (“RotWeißRot”) receive basic care benefits as long as 10 days after the status is being granted.⁵¹⁹

Alternative provision of benefits

In 2018, the VwGH stated that the non-provision of benefits in kind can nevertheless allow for the authorities the possibility to grant cash benefits. This money substitute can also be claimed at a later stage through a formal request. The case concerned an asylum applicant whose application had been admitted by the Land Upper Austria, which did not grant him cash benefits. The VwVG considered that, if no accommodation is available, other arrangements should be found to grant the applicant the material benefits he is entitled to.⁵²⁰ The reason behind this decision was the lack of care that asylum applicants faced back in autumn of 2015, as they did not receive any benefits under the basic federal care and were supported by private initiatives instead. Therefore, it only applies where there is a massive influx of displaced persons, in accordance with Art. 5 Directive 2001/55/EC (see Annex on temporary protection).

4. Freedom of movement

Indicators: Freedom of Movement

1. Is there a mechanism for the dispersal of applicants across the territory of the country?
☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Does the law provide for restrictions on freedom of movement? ☒ Yes ☐ No

The freedom of movement of asylum applicants may be restricted for reasons of public order, public interest, or for the swift processing of the asylum application. Applicants coming from a Safe Country of Origin or those who received a return decision before making an application may be affected. The necessity of assigned residence must be demonstrated on a case-by-case basis.⁵²¹ However, this restriction on freedom of movement is not a formal decision that can be appealed per se; it can only be challenged together with the asylum decision.

As of September 2023, freedom of movement was restricted in 4 cases and a procedural order following Art 15b AsylG was issued (2022: 2). There is no available information on the reasons for the restriction.⁵²² According to a parliamentary request from March 2025, there were no restrictions in 2024.⁵²³

4.1. Restricted movement during the admissibility procedure

After requesting asylum at the police, asylum applicants are apprehended for up to 48 hours, until the BFA branch office decides whether the asylum applicant should be transferred or advised to go to an initial reception centre or to a distribution centre.⁵²⁴ Following that, during the admissibility procedure, asylum applicants may only move within the district of the assigned reception centre.⁵²⁵ They receive a green card also known as procedure card, which indicates the tolerated stay in the district of the reception centre of the state. Asylum applicants are allowed to leave the district for necessary medical treatment or to appear in court. Dublin cases that are usually cared for in the initial reception centres of the Ministry of Interior may also be transferred to reception centres of the federal provinces.⁵²⁶ Violations of this restriction of movement may be punished with fines varying between €100 and €1,000 or with detention

Asylum applicants whose application is admitted to the regular procedure receive the white card, which is valid until the final decision on the application and allows free movement in the entire territory of Austria.

In the airport procedure, asylum applicants are not allowed to leave the designated area in the airport facilities onto Austrian territory. However, they remain free to leave by plane to another country.

4.2. Dispersal across federal provinces

Every federal province has to offer reception places according to its population. Asylum applicants are spread throughout the country to free reception places and according to their needs, for instance in places for unaccompanied minor asylum applicants, single women or persons living with disabilities. NGOs of federal provinces have claimed that information about necessary medical treatment or disability are not always communicated, with the result that asylum applicants are transferred to inadequate places.⁵²⁸ However, asylum applicants have no possibility to choose the place where they will be accommodated according to the dispersal mechanism, although family ties are usually taken into consideration. Moreover, it is not possible to appeal the dispersal decision because it is an informal decision taken between the Ministry of Interior and the respective federal province. Upon taking office, there have been some positive signals from the CEO of the BBU GmbH to improve the clearing phase at the start of the reception process with the aim to detect vulnerabilities and to better communicate with the authorities providing basic care in the provinces. These ongoing talks have led to some results in practice, but significant improvements are still necessary. As part of the dispersal process, the BBU coordination office contacts the federal states and passes on all relevant information. Often, the basic care authorities do not pass on the full scope of information to the facilities providing care. However, federal states prefer that NGOs and BBU do not communicate directly with each other. Basic care authorities prefer communication in the dispersal process take place directly with the basic care authorities and BBU.⁵²⁹

Various organisations and individual worked on the topic of initial reception and further placement of applicants in the federal states, especially with regard to the identification and documentation of vulnerabilities and needs through dedicated health screening centres, in 2024. As part of a GÖG (Gesundheit Österreich GmbH)⁵³⁰ working group, experts from the Expert Group on psychosocial care for refugees prepared a paper entitled 'Recommendations for action to improve the initial and ongoing psychosocial care of people seeking protection. Psychosocial aspects in the area of conflict between the interfaces between initial care and basic care in the federal states of refugees'.⁵³¹ Specifically, in addition to the proposal by Diakonie & Caritas (with the involvement of experts from the Red Cross, Samariterbund and Volkshilfe) for a dedicated health screening centres in the initial reception process,⁵³² the paper is a further professional recommendation for action to identify vulnerabilities for the initial and further care of refugees.

The province of Vienna offers many more reception places than those foreseen by the quota system (see Types of Accommodation), while all other provinces have failed to provide enough places for several years. This discrepancy leads to negotiations between the responsible departments of the federal provinces, while the malfunctioning of the dispersal system overall raises public reactions. During the first months of operation of the BBU GmbH as federal basic care provider, the communication between the actors has improved. However, following increasing numbers of applicants in 2022, this positive trend stopped and resulted in overcrowded federal reception centres in 2022 and 2023. In 2023 and 2024, some federal facilities were closed and decommissioned due to a decline in asylum applications - overcrowded federal facilities were not an issue in 2024.

NGOs in the federal provinces reported several communication problems with the Basic Care Department of BBU GmbH. These concerned issues relating to the transition of people from reception centres to basic care facilities in the provinces, as there was a general lack of information about people with special needs and/or mental health issues. There was thus no transfer to specialised and dedicated facilities and, instead, vulnerable groups are sometimes transferred to regular facilities, which overburdened the relevant staff and increased logistical difficulties due to a lack of adequate equipment and infrastructure, incl. inadequate transport means (often occurring in the middle of the night and thus with no available staff upon arrival). In some cases, individuals were assigned to federal states without proper identification (i.e. the white card granted to asylum applicants upon registration). As regards the clothing allowance (€ 150/per person and year); most of it is spent quickly by the BBU agency, which hindered asylum applicants from receiving additional support from NGOs and led to frustration as they did not understand the functioning of the system. NGOs tried to secure clothes by way of donations, but the resources remain limited, and the agency is not officially allowed to accept donations. The specific issue of clothing was flagged to the agency which is trying to find a solution.⁵³³

⁵³³ asylkoordination österreich, NGO exchange meeting December 2024, unpublished.

Asylum applicants who are assigned to a province after admission to the asylum procedure are usually not transferred to other federal provinces, even if they wish to do so. Within the same province, asylum applicants may be placed in other reception centres for different reasons, for instance if another reception centre is better equipped to address the needs of the asylum applicant.

Many people who have lost their basic care benefits move on to Vienna with the hope to access basic care in the capital. A major point of contact for them is the Caritas asylum centre, which encourages readmissions in federal states and tries to ensure at least access to health insurance. In practice, only two reasons are accepted for a change of federal state: either because there are family members in another federal state or due to medical reasons. In addition, LGBTIQ persons are usually transferred to Vienna, where the NGO Queer Base⁵³⁴ in Vienna provides specialised support.⁵³⁵

People who move on their own to another federal province without asking for permission are likely to lose their basic care benefits in their former federal province. In some federal states like Lower Austria and Salzburg people get 'Quartier unstat' Status in the GVS BIS System, which means that they are still health insured but have no access to accommodation or other benefits. As a result, it is hard to receive basic care again and applicants must prove that they still need assistance. This also applies to LGBTIQ cases or people with relevant health or mental issues.⁵³⁶

Asylum applicants often do not have enough money for travelling, as the monthly allowance for those living in reception centres is only € 40. If they stay away from their designated place (reception facility) without permission for more than three days, Basic Care will be withdrawn (see Reduction or Withdrawal of Material Reception Conditions). As discussed above, it is almost impossible to receive Basic Care in a province other than the designated province.

If grounds for detention of asylum applicants arise, an alternative to detention should be prioritised if there is no risk of absconding. Due to reporting duties – often imposed every day – and exclusion from pocket money allowance, however, asylum applicants subjected to alternatives to detention are in practice not able to make use of their freedom of movement.

At the end of 2022, 27 federal facilities with a maximum capacity of 8,000 were in use. During the reception crisis from October until December 2022, the BBU GmbH built up tents in 4 locations to house asylum applicants.⁵³⁷ The crisis was a result of a lack of cooperation of the provinces that failed to take over asylum applicants after their admissibility procedure was completed. This led to a backlog of over 8,500 asylum applicants in federal accommodation facilities. The inadequate reception conditions in the tents caused a public uproar.⁵³⁸ As mentioned above, in 2024, some federal facilities were closed and decommissioned due to a decline in asylum applications - overcrowded federal facilities were not an issue in 2024.

With the exception of the total number of places in private accommodation, all figures above refer strictly to the federal centres (if not explicitly stated otherwise), as it is not possible to provide figures on the number of apartments and houses used at provincial level to accommodate asylum applicants. Asylum applicants are accommodated in facilities of different size and capacity. A quota system requires the federal provinces to provide places according to their population (see Dispersal across Federal provinces).⁵³⁹

Each of the 9 federal provinces has a department in the regional government responsible for administering Basic Care. These departments search suitable accommodation places, and conclude contracts with NGOs or landlords, owners of hotels or inns, to provide a certain number of places and Basic Care provisions. Regular meetings of the heads of the provincial departments and the Ministry of Interior take place to evaluate the functioning of the Basic Care system and the level of financial compensation for the federal provinces. According to the Basic Care agreement between the State and the federal provinces, the latter must cover 40% of the expenditures, while the Federal Ministry has to pay 60% of the costs. This share of the Ministry of Interior could rise to 100% if an asylum application is not processed within due time. After 12 months, 100% of the accommodation costs of the provinces are covered by the Ministry.⁵⁴⁰

After the admission phase of the asylum procedure is finished, the responsibility to house asylum applicants during their asylum procedure shifts to the provinces. Throughout 2022, 17,286 asylum applicants were transferred from the EAST to the provinces.⁵⁴¹ There is not data for 2023 at the time of writing. In 2024, 11,604 asylum applicants were transferred to the provinces.⁵⁴²

In case of larger numbers of arrivals and difficulties in transferring asylum applicants to reception facilities in the federal provinces, the Federal State may host asylum applicants even after their asylum application is admitted to the regular asylum procedure (this usually occurs within a maximum of 20 days)⁵⁴⁷ for a maximum period of 14 days.⁵⁴⁸

In June 2022, the Ministry of Interior and BBU GmbH asked the provinces to fulfil their obligations to take over asylum applicants as agreed in the Basic Care agreement and warned of a possible collapse of the federal reception centres in case of non-cooperation. This lack of accommodation in the provinces has many reasons. First, the basic care system is chronically underfinanced which consequently leads to the fact that costs can barely be covered for the accommodation providers. Second, while financial resources were raised for the provinces in June 2022, implementation in some provinces took almost another half year. During this time, the high cost of living due to high inflation rates already raised the real costs more than the raise of the financial resources would cover. Third, after the start of the Russian aggression around 50,000 Ukrainians had to be accommodated in the basic care system. However, most of the Ukrainians are accommodated in private housing. In 2024, in two provinces there were elections which led to a lack of cooperation in the takeover of asylum applicants due to public debate. As already mentioned above, the number of asylum applications fell significantly in 2024. Therefore, there were no issue in the reception capacity of federal facilities. Nevertheless, federal states only partially increased their accommodation capacities. In terms of quota fulfilment, only Vienna has met their quota for years and is over 200%, followed by Vorarlberg, Burgenland and Styria (see Dispersal of beneficiaries of basic care). The increase in daily rates for UAM, increased care needs and care places in 2024 should improve the situation so that these vulnerable groups do not have to stay in federal facilities for long periods of time.

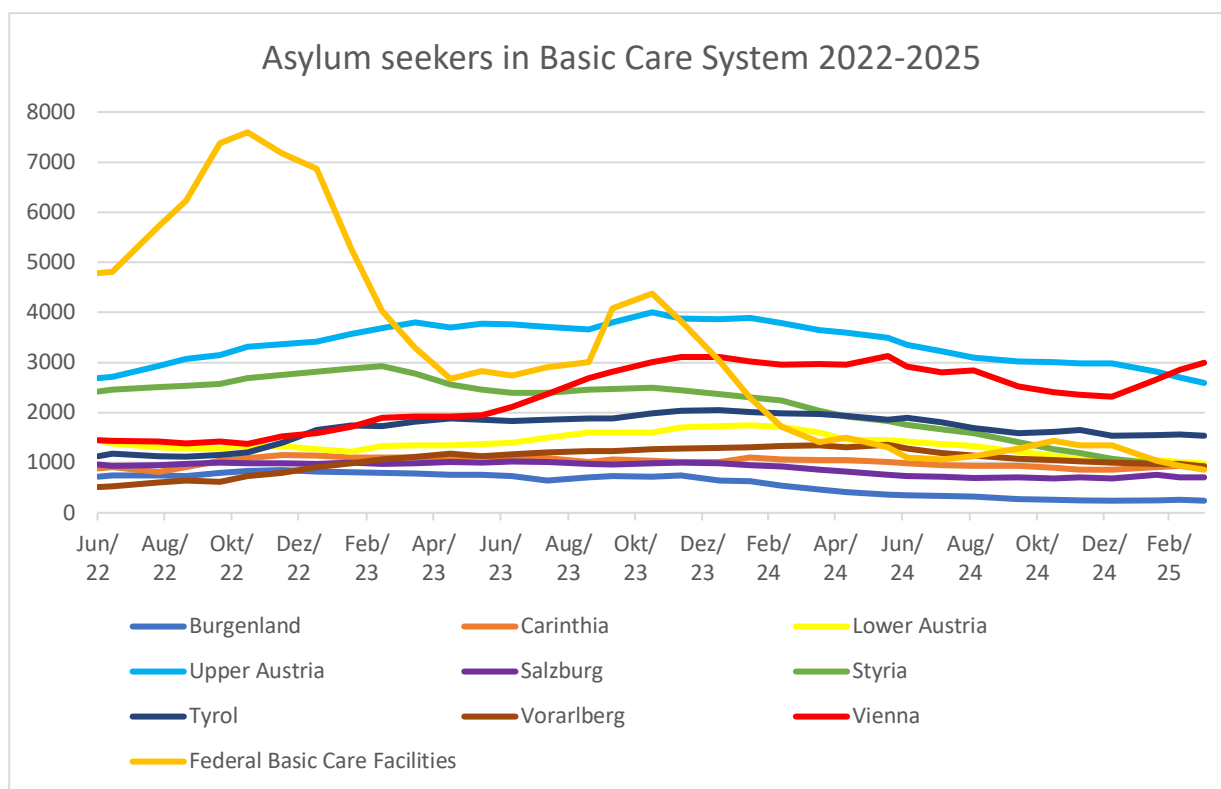

The province of Burgenland fell short of fulfilling the quota after the Head of the province, Hans-Peter Doskozil, announced in February that Burgenland would not take more than approx. 300 asylum applicants in province basic care in 2024.⁵⁴⁹ Indeed, in practice, the province took very few asylum applicants in 2024.⁵⁵⁰

The light orange line represents accommodation of asylum applicants in the federal reception centres (January 2023: 7,000 to April 2025: 932). The other lines represent the development of the accommodation figures of asylum applicants accommodated in the provinces.

In 2023, there were almost 60,000 asylum applications of which half of the applicants continued to travel on to other countries and their procedures were discontinued. In the same time, the provinces Tirol, Vorarlberg and Upper Austria increased their accommodation places in the basic care system by a couple hundred places maximum per province while the other provinces have not reacted or even reduced accommodation capacity. This has not led to another collapse of the federal reception centres like in October 2022, when the CEO of the BBU GmbH announced that asylum applicants would have to be accommodated in tents on the grounds of the federal reception centres, due to the high number of onward travels.⁵⁵¹ In 2024, the number of federal reception centres were reduced to 9 (2023: 32) due to the decrease in the number of applicants.

1.2. Reception capacity at provincial level

In practice, most federal provinces do not provide the number of places required under their quota, which is partly due to the fact that provinces such as Vienna exceed their quota (almost double of the quota agreed). At the end of 2024, the entire Austrian reception system hosted a total of 68,161⁵⁵² persons (including beneficiaries of temporary protection, international protection and rejected asylum applicants), out of which 13,173 were asylum applicants in 2024.

Information on distribution across the federal provinces is provided in the section on Freedom of Movement. While Vienna continues to exceed its relative reception share, other federal provinces only reached 50-60% of the quota agreed. Due to the high number of Ukrainians entering Austria after 24 February 2022, the basic care system in the provinces had to accommodate a large number of refugees in a dysfunctional basic care system. Around 78% of the Ukrainian refugees were accommodated privately at the start. This share had gone down to 56.49%⁵⁵³ at the end of 2024. Refugees from Ukraine are the responsibility of the basic care systems of the provinces as there is no admissibility phase (during which the basic care system in the federal centres would be responsible). For further information, please see the annex on temporary protection.

NGOs or owners of hostels and inns, who run reception centres under the responsibility of the federal provinces, have contracts with the governmental department of the respective federal provinces. While in most federal provinces almost all asylum applicants are placed in reception centres (e.g. 72% of asylum applicants in Styria and 80.8% in Burgenland), private accommodation is more often used in other states such as Vienna, where 83% of applicants lived in private accommodation in 2024.⁵⁵⁴

2. Conditions in reception facilities

Indicators: Conditions in Reception Facilities

1. Are there instances of asylum applicants not having access to reception accommodation because of a shortage of places? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. What is the average length of stay of asylum applicants in the reception centres? 80 days⁵⁵⁵
3. Are unaccompanied children ever accommodated with adults in practice? ☒ Yes ☐ No
4. Are single women and men accommodated separately? ☒ Yes ☐ No

The Ministry of Interior, which is responsible for Basic Care during the admissibility procedure, outsourced their day-to-day management to a state-owned agency, BBU GmbH, while remaining the responsible authority. The BBU GmbH took over in December 2020 from a private company that used to be subcontracted by the Ministry.

Conditions in the reception centres of the federal provinces vary, but they had constantly improved along with the decrease of persons staying in the centres. When the BBU GmbH was funded to take over in December 2020, a decrease of reception capacity at federal state level was expected. The federal reception capacity reached its limits in October 2022, mainly because of the lack of cooperation of the provinces and the high number of arrivals from Ukrainian refugees. There was public uproar when the BBU GmbH only provided tents for some asylum applicants due to the lack of facilities and the lack of cooperation of the provinces in fall 2022. Due to the high number of arrivals in the province of Burgenland the police was not able to start off the asylum procedures for all the applicants entering the country (see Access to the territory and Procedures).

In December 2022, the NGO Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst represented an asylum seeker from Belarus who was denied entry at a so-called waiting zone and thus grew homeless. An application for an interim measure was brought in at the ECtHR. The authorities reacted immediately and offered accommodation and modified the process of the waiting zones. As a consequence, and due to the decrease in arrivals, at the start of 2023 there were no more reports of cases of homeless applicants. The situation calmed down further over 2023 and 2024 (see chart above).

The registration process reverted back to the old system without distributing asylum applicants to all provinces for their first interview, as the numbers of asylum applicants decreased substantially in 2023 and further in 2024. At the start of 2024, the numbers continued to decrease even further: while the police apprehended 1,400 persons with the intention to seek asylum in April 2023 in the province of Burgenland, in April 2024 only 40 persons were apprehended.⁵⁵⁶ From January to September 2024, there were 1,894 apprehensions in Burgenland.⁵⁵⁷

Systematic research on the standards in the basic care system of the federal provinces has not been carried out in recent years. At the end of 2021, however, asylkoordination österreich carried out a nationwide survey where the concerned NGOs working in basic care, were interviewed. The findings of this research have been incorporated throughout this Chapter. Since 2021, the data has been updated annually in cooperation with asylkoordination österreich and NGOs. Unfortunately, there have been no actual improvement; if so, this is specifically mentioned in the report.

As regards the minimum standard, the regional refugee counsellors agreed on a common recommendation on a minimum standard of 8m² for each person and 4m² for each additional person in ⁵⁵⁵ 80 days is the average duration a person stays in federal basic care. There is no separate data provided for asylum applicants only. Ministry of Interior, Answer to parliamentary request 9123/AB XXVII. GP, 14 March 2022, available in German here.

September 2014.⁵⁵⁸ According to the findings of the survey, the minimum standard is met in all states. In Lower Austria, a better standard is being applied (9m²+5m²+6m²). However, due to the increase in asylum applications in 2021 and 2022, the authority reduced the standard within the framework of the 'Emergency Ordinance' to 8m²+4m²+4m², which in reality means that more people can be accommodated in one room. The minimum standards also define a maximum occupancy of 5 persons per room. This is complied with in most places, and some NGOs try to advocate for a 2-bed occupancy where possible. In Burgenland, Lower Austria, Styria and Tyrol, single adults are also partly placed in 6-8 bedrooms.⁵⁵⁹

Depending on the infrastructure, asylum applicants may live in an apartment and have their own kitchen and sanitary facilities, which is sometimes the case in former guesthouses. Usually, single persons share the room with other people. Housing in flats offers more privacy and the possibility of retreat and enables more independent living. This form of housing is also particularly suitable for vulnerable groups such as victims of violence or LGBTIQ people.

Basic care facilities in Austria vary widely in terms of size, equipment and infrastructure. There are facilities with up to 260/600 places (Tyrol, Vienna) but also facilities with 20, 50, 80, 90, 120-150 places. In addition, asylum applicants are also accommodated in private flats rented by NGOs, coordinated on a mobile basis via care teams. This form of housing is also 'called mobile assisted living'. In the provinces as well as in Vienna, some asylum applicants are also accommodated in flats. The city of Vienna has announced that it would like to move away from large-scale reception models and invest in smaller accommodation units or flats. In the federal states, there are mainly smaller facilities with capacity ranging from 5 to 40 places. Larger facilities are rather rare and usually located in the cities or near a city (e.g. in Linz in Upper Austria, Eisenstadt in Burgenland, Innsbruck in Tyrol). In Vienna, most facilities are supervised 24h due to a higher amount of care capacity and accommodation of person with increased need of care.

Organisations providing care for asylum applicants receive a fixed sum per person and per day, which is aimed to cover all relevant costs. The last increase in the daily rates took place in 2022, before in 2016. This means that although staffing costs, rent and operating and material costs increase annually, refugee aid organisations always have to cope with the same budget. There are no other compensations from the state that could compensate for these costs. Yet, raising the daily rates and an annual valorisation are essential to ensure quality care and services for asylum applicants. NGOs argue that the amount of the daily rates must be oriented towards the needs of asylum applicants, so that care can take place "with respect for human dignity", as stated in the minimum standards of basic care.⁵⁶⁰

On 2 December 2021, a first meeting took place between the federal government and the federal states (without the participation of NGOs) to discuss the increase in daily rates, standards in care, and the distribution of asylum applicants.⁵⁶¹ In 2022, for the first time since 2016, the rates for organised housing in the federal provinces were raised from € 21 to € 25 per person/day (accommodation and eating included). See Forms and levels of material reception conditions and annex on temporary protection. As mentioned above (see short overview of the reception system), the transparent real cost model between the federal government and Vienna was also to be introduced concerning daily rates for adults and families in Vienna in 2024 (retroactive start from 1 January 2023 for unaccompanied minors, vulnerable and care places). As of March 2025, an initial evaluation is still pending and is currently being carried out; no public information is currently available.

In almost all reception centres in the federal states, asylum applicants are responsible for keeping their rooms and the common areas clean, and in some cases, this can be remunerated (from € 2.5 to € 5 per hour – this refers to the so-called “remuneration for auxiliary and cleaning activities in accommodation facilities”; i.e. “Remu-work” in short). Regarding the allowed free amount for income, the same guidelines apply in almost all federal states. Remu-work has a monthly allowance of € 110 in all federal states except Tyrol where it is € 240. In all federal states there is an additional allowance of € 80 for each family member.⁵⁶²

As mentioned under Reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions, community service is mandatory in federal facilities since June 2024. This applies to cleaning activities in the facility itself or assistance in the communities, such as gardening or winter clearing services and so on. The community service activities can also be carried out in the provinces in the communities. In Vienna the Volkshilfe counselling centre *akompano*⁵⁶³ supports the placement in community service activities.

There is a tendency of allowing asylum applicants to cook themselves as it contributes to their well-being and reduces tensions. In the federal reception centres, cooking or taking food into the living room or bedroom is not allowed. In Vienna, Vorarlberg, Tyrol and Upper Austria, all facilities allow self-sufficiency. All other provinces have facilities both with self-sufficiency and no self-sufficiency. In Styria, as explained above, all facilities run by Caritas Styria have partial self-sufficiency, which means that part of the food is provided, and part is paid out. People receive € 150⁵⁶⁴ per month and pocket money. All other facilities in Styria are self-catering facilities where people receive € 195/month food allowance and pocket money. In Tyrol adult asylum applicants are given € 245 per month to organise meals by themselves. In Vienna, the amount of the food allowance was increased to € 6.50 per person in 2022. Some organisations are tax-exempt, for example Caritas, and others are not. Depending on this, the daily rate provided can be used gross for net or 10% VAT must be deducted.⁵⁶⁵

Re. the controversies around the introduction of payment cards for the allowances, see Forms and levels of material reception conditions.

A monthly amount of € 10 is foreseen in the Basic Care agreement for leisure activities, events, celebrations and community activities. Vienna is the only province that pays € 10 leisure moneys directly to residents. The requirement for the payment of leisure money is the presentation of a movie ticket, theatre, museum and also a part of the monthly ticket for public transport can be paid through the leisure money. The processing of the leisure money runs either directly through the accommodation providers or through the organisation that offers counselling in the facilities in the federal states.

Hotels and inns usually do not have staff trained to adequately welcome asylum applicants. These reception centres are, however, visited by social workers (e.g. NGO staff) on a regular basis (every week or every second week). Reception centres of NGOs have offices in the centres. The law foresees that there should be 1 social worker for 140 clients, which is not sufficient, especially when social workers have to travel to facilities located in remote areas or need the assistance of an interpreter.⁵⁶⁶ NGOs work with trained staff. Some landlords have been hosting asylum applicants for many years, but as opposed to NGO staff they have not received any specific training. In Vienna, the system is different: in nearly all basic care facilities is care staff available 24/7 who are responsible for counselling, information, and basic care. In these care facilities the care ratio is 1:55, this is mostly the same in all federal states in basic care facilities, except Tyrol where it is 1:70. In fact, most NGOs try to have a better care key than 1:55, E.g. in Vienna and Upper Austria it differs between 1:38 to 1:55. Care staff is responsible for providing food allowance, pocket money, hygiene material, social counselling and crisis support. In Vienna, additional counselling services may be provided by specialised NGOs (e.g. specific counselling for women, men, work, education, health, youth and young adults, housing, LGBTIQ) for people in basic care.⁵⁶⁷

The system of dispersal of asylum applicants to all federal provinces and within the federal provinces to all districts results in reception centres being located in remote areas. One of these centres is located in the mountains of Tyrol, as part of a former military camp. It cannot be reached by public transport and a shuttle bus brings the asylum applicants to the next village only twice a day. The walking distance to the next village is about two and a half hours. Access to internet is provided in the centre.⁵⁶⁸ The centre was closed by the Tyrolian government but was reopened by the Ministry of Interior to operate as a reception centre for rejected asylum applicants.⁵⁶⁹ In June 2019, several persons accommodated in this federal centre in Tyrol entered in a hunger strike which caused public uproar. The Ministry of Interior subsequently conducted a human rights assessment in cooperation with UNHCR concerning the reception conditions of the centres in Tyrol and Schwechat, which mainly host rejected asylum applicants who cannot be deported. In these centres, the persons receive regular counselling concerning voluntary return.

Following the assessment, the Ministry of Interior published recommendations and several objectives. This includes no longer accommodating children in these two centres and introducing more frequent shuttle services to the village.⁵⁷⁰ The system of isolating rejected asylum applicants in this centre was criticised heavily and had proven to be inefficient as only 18 persons have left the country out of the total of 65 persons accommodated in the first half of 2019.⁵⁷¹ According to officials of the BFA, these recommendations are considered as non-binding. As of 1st January 2025, 59 persons were accommodated in this centre in Tyrol.⁵⁷²

An important issue that still receives too little attention in the field of accommodation in basic care is the participation of asylum applicants and refugees in reception, for example spokespersons who could represent the others.⁵⁷³

Affordable mobility

A major problem is the lack of affordable mobility for people in the basic care system. Vorarlberg⁵⁷⁴ has created an affordable ticket that can be purchased by both welfare recipients and people in basic care. In all other federal states, there are only urban solutions, if at all, and not for rural areas. The tickets for parents who accompany their children to school are not covered, as well as costs to go grocery shopping. The assumption of costs within the framework of basic care is limited to the following:

- ❖ Transfers between federal care centres and those of the federal states;
- ❖ Transport costs for attending interviews and other appointments related to the asylum procedure;
- ❖ Transport costs for medical appointments;
- ❖ Transport costs required for school attendance;
- ❖ Transport costs for participation in German courses (not uniform nationwide, paid by the federal states themselves, with the exception of ÖIF courses).

Affordable mobility: In the context of a meeting of the Ukraine Refugee Coordination Unit, the process for the creation of a (uniform) affordable regional social ticket for people seeking protection was started in 2023. The starting point of the discussion was that beneficiaries of temporary protection from Ukraine could use public transport for free until the end of 2022. The end of the free use was partly linked to discussions about the fact that it created an unjust situation for applicants in the regular asylum system. The option of opening up the group of eligible persons to other groups was dismissed. A discussion regarding access to already existing reduced ticket options (such as Mobilpass in Vienna, SozialCard Graz) for people in basic care, similar to the model in Vorarlberg, was started at a political level but reached no results, as the transport systems are organised mostly on a province level. Border regions in the federal provinces in particular should be taken into account here; a cross-border ticket would be needed here to guarantee local supplies, as in some cases it is closer to go food shopping in another federal province than in one's own province if, for example, it would be necessary to travel 1 hour to the nearest local supplier.⁵⁷⁵ According to refugee coordinator Andreas Achainer, talks have been continued at a political level and with the mobility associations in 2024. Unfortunately, there has been no concrete result so far, but the refugee coordinator remains on the issue and will take the matter to the relevant federal government departments.⁵⁷⁶

C. Employment and education

1. Access to the labour market

Indicators: Access to the Labour Market

1. Does the law allow for access to the labour market for asylum applicants? ☒ Yes ☐ No
❖ If yes, when do asylum applicants have access the labour market? 3 months
2. Does the law allow access to employment only following a labour market test? ☒ Yes ☐ No
3. Does the law only allow asylum applicants to work in specific sectors? ☐ Yes ☒ No
❖ If yes, specify which sectors:
4. Does the law limit asylum applicants' employment to a maximum working time? ☐ Yes ☒ No
❖ If yes, specify the number of days per year
5. Are there restrictions to accessing employment in practice? ☒ Yes ☐ No

The Aliens Employment Act (AuslBG) states that an employer can obtain an employment permit for an asylum applicant 3 months after the asylum application is admitted to the regular procedure, provided that no final decision in the asylum procedure has been taken prior to that date.⁵⁷⁷

The possibility of obtaining access to the labour market is restricted by a labour market test (Ersatzkraftverfahren), which requires proof that the respective vacancy cannot be filled by an Austrian citizen, a citizen of the EU or a legally residing third-country national with access to the labour market (long-time resident status holder, family member etc.).⁵⁷⁸

Applications for an employment permit must be submitted by the employer to the regional Labour Market Service (AMS) office in the area of the district where the envisaged place of employment is located. Decisions are taken by the competent regional AMS office. In the procedure, representatives of the social partners have to be involved in a regional advisory board. The regional advisory board must recommend such an employment permit unanimously. Appeals must be made to the Federal State AMS office that must decide on appeals against decisions of the regional AMS office. There is no further right of appeal.⁵⁷⁹ The decision must be made within 6 weeks; in case of appeal proceedings, the same time limit must be applied.

In 2021, the Supreme Administrative Court struck down the decrees that limited the right to work of asylum applicants to specific work areas and to a specific time limit during the year.⁵⁸⁰

A further problem for asylum applicants working is the regulation in the Basic Care Acts of the state and the federal provinces that requires a contribution to Basic Care, if asylum applicants have an income. In practice, there is only an allowance of € 110 plus € 80 for each family member left to asylum applicants in most of the federal provinces, while the rest of the money earned contributes to the cost of reception.⁵⁸¹ Moreover, if they have been receiving an income for more than 3 months, Basic Care support is no longer provided. If the asylum applicant asks for readmission into Basic Care after they have finished the employment, cash contributions to the provision of Basic Care are demanded. In fact, it is assumed by the authorities that only about € 550 (1.5 times the basic provision amount) per month have been spent by the asylum applicant on subsistence and accommodation during the period of employment. Income exceeding this amount is deducted from the allowance received under Basic Care from that time onwards until repaid. As mentioned above, Tyrol has an allowance of € 240 per person, all other federal states € 110 per person.⁵⁸²

Moreover, asylum applicants are not registered at the Public Employment Service as unemployed persons. Therefore, they are not entitled to vocational trainings provided or financed by the Public Employment Service. As they are not registered as persons searching for work at the Public Employment Service, access to the labour market largely depends on their own initiative and pro-activity in job hunting. Their lack of resources can also be an additional obstacle in securing in job; e.g. when it comes to travel costs for job interviews.

Since 1 April 2018, asylum applicants admitted to the regular procedure for 3 months or more can also be employed through service vouchers in private households (e.g. for gardening, cleaning or child care etc.). Vouchers can be bought at the post office or online.⁵⁸³ However, in practice, the necessary registration is complicated, and this possibility is not very known nor used. The Ministry of Social Affairs decided in 2018 that asylum applicants have no longer access to vocational training. Since then, the possibility of working through vouchers is one of the only possibilities to work for asylum applicants.

Non-profit work, voluntary work and internships

Asylum applicants can carry out non-profit activities and receive an acknowledgment of their contributions. Asylum applicants are allowed to earn up to € 110 per month.⁵⁸⁴ These non-profit jobs include administrative and/or office assistance, translation services, support for parks and sports facilities, playgrounds, elderly care, assistance in nursery schools, school attendance services, assistance in animal shelters, or support for minor resettlements in the municipality.⁵⁸⁵ Since April 2018, the Minister of Interior has the power to regulate which NGOs will be able to enlist asylum applicants on a voluntary basis for charitable activities and to set the maximum amount for such work.⁵⁸⁶

At the conferences of provincial councillors for refugees in September and December 2023, a discussion on mandatory work for asylum applicants was opened up. Specifically, the proposal focused on mandatory community service for asylum applicants. If they do not comply, it would be possible to cut basic care benefits. This proposal is controversial and was rejected above all in the NGO sector, migration researchers and workers organisations (Arbeiterkammer). Researchers highlight that there is no need for compulsory charitable work, as people want to work anyway. Conversely, it would be important to assess whether there enough 'jobs' positions would be available in case work for asylum applicants became mandatory.⁵⁸⁷ The ordinance on the utilisation of asylum seekers and certain other foreigners for charitable aid activities came into force on 15 July 2024.⁵⁸⁸ It extends the scope of activities considered for charitable work, which is welcomed in principle by NGOs. Asylum applicants are not only able to carry out charitable aid work in municipalities,⁵⁸⁹ but also in other non-profit organisations (e.g. NGOs, nursing homes, etc.). In the exchange meetings, representatives of the NGOs reported that the payment for non-profit work varies. In federal organisations it is € 1.60 / hour, in the federal states it varies between € 3-5 Euros. In federal reception centres, the extension of the regulation was linked to an obligation to carry out these activities, at least 10 hours per month, with limited exceptions. All asylum applicants who do not fulfil this obligation will only receive half of the pocket money (see Reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions).

On 25 January 2017, the Ministry of Social Affairs submitted a decree to the Labour Market Service (AMS). The Decree clarifies that:⁵⁹⁰

- a. Asylum applicants are allowed to complete practical experience and internships within the framework of their training in vocational schools or secondary schools;
- b. Adult asylum applicants are also allowed to do unpaid voluntary work for certain companies. An asylum applicant may take 3 months in a one-year period with several companies.

Companies have to register asylum applicants for internships at the AMS no later than 14 days before the start of the internship. Interns are also entitled to reasonable remuneration.⁵⁹¹

Statistical information

In 2021, the Constitutional Court ruled that the internal decrees denying the access to the labour market for asylum applicants (Barteinstein-Erlass) and access to apprenticeship for asylum applicants (Hartinger-Klein-Erlass) violated the fundamental rights of asylum applicants. As a result, asylum applicants can start an apprenticeship if certain conditions are met.

In 2024, 40 asylum applicants were working as an apprentice, 3,240 work permits were issued, and as of December 2024 1,938 asylum applicants had a valid working permit.⁵⁹² Beneficiaries of TPD have easier access to the labour market: Since April 2023, displaced persons from Ukraine no longer have to apply for a work permit. As of 16 February 2025, 20,574 were employed. For further information, see annex on temporary protection.

2. Access to education

Indicators: Access to Education

1. Does the law provide for access to education for asylum-seeking children? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Are children able to access education in practice? ☒ Yes ☐ No

Children aged 5 or 6 must be enrolled in kindergarten 1 year before school enrolment. Attendance must be at least 16-20 hours per week on at least 4 days and is free of charge. Fees are charged for excursions and meals. Exceptions to compulsory kindergarten attendance are e.g. medical reasons, children with disabilities.⁵⁹³

School attendance is mandatory for all children living permanently in Austria until they have finished 9 study cycles, which are usually completed at the age of 15. Asylum seeking children attend primary and secondary school after their asylum application has been admitted to the regular procedure. As long as they reside in the initial reception centre of the state, school attendance in public schools is not provided, however. Preparatory classes are usually set up where many children have a poor knowledge of the German language. Schools often register pupils without sufficient knowledge of the German language as extraordinary pupils for a maximum period of 12 months.

Access to education for asylum applicants older than 15 may become difficult, however, as schooling is not compulsory after the age of 15 for asylum applicants. Moreover, children who did not attend the mandatory school years in Austria have difficulties in continuing their education. For those unaccompanied children, who have not successfully finished the last mandatory school year, special courses are available free of charge. For children accompanied by their family, this possibility is often not available for free. In 2024, the labour market service launched the youth college together with the city of Vienna. This is an educational opportunity for young people and young adults aged 15-25 and is primarily intended to support those who are no longer subject to compulsory schooling. It also has the effect that this educational measure provides a daily structure and gives prospects for future jobs or studies.⁵⁹⁴

According to a law that entered into force on 1 August 2017, young people under the age of 18 who have completed the 9-year schooling and who are permanent residents in Austria are obliged to pursue education or training.⁵⁹⁵ However, this law is not applied to asylum applicants, despite criticism from NGOs and the Chamber of Employment for failing to address a problematic aspect of integration and education policy.⁵⁹⁶ In October 2019, the Federal Youth Association (Bundesjugendvertretung) called for the inclusion of underage asylum applicants as target group of the law.⁵⁹⁷ Nevertheless, they can benefit from a wide range of language and literacy courses. In Vienna,⁵⁹⁸ the educational hub arranges course places for literacy courses, German courses, and basic education. There are also special courses available for women and mothers. At a few high schools, transitional courses are organised to prepare for regular classes. Free language courses are further offered in refugee homes and by NGOs. However, these courses are not always sufficient in terms of time and quality. Language courses are only accessible to asylum applicants when the government has sufficient financial resources.⁵⁹⁹

In the fall of 2023 and continuing in early 2024, the high number of family reunifications in Austria led to schools being overwhelmed. Vienna, in particular, as the capital city, was severely affected. Many schools and teachers describe that it is difficult to integrate school-age children into regular school life. Many children have often been in refugee camps for months or years and had no chance to attend regular schools, and must first be slowly introduced to the institution of school. Many children are not literate in their first language and sometimes bring with them multiple traumas and have problems concentrating.⁶⁰⁰ Above all, there is a lack of additional staff for children who do not have German as their first language. Additionally, the overall shortage of teachers in the country - as many teachers will be retiring in the next few years – negatively impact on the quality of educational services offered.⁶⁰¹ In 2024, Viennese city councillor (responsible for education, among other things) Christoph Wiederkehr repeatedly called for compulsory residence for recognised refugees in the federal states, so that Vienna is not overburdened. However, this has been rejected by the responsible federal integration officers, as well as the political party ÖVP.⁶⁰² In May 2024, the Ministry of the Interior⁶⁰³ interrupted family reunifications that were already underway and postulated that they should be checked more strictly to prevent abuse. Visas resumed in August/September but with much lower numbers compared to early 2024 (see Family reunification). In practice, it became apparent that the responsible ministries, such as the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Education and Social Affairs, had not been sufficiently in dialogue with each other. This would have been essential for future-oriented planning for all ministries in order to prevent the overload that unfortunately happened.

D. Health care

Indicators: Health Care

1. Is access to emergency healthcare for asylum applicants guaranteed in national legislation?
☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Do asylum applicants have adequate access to health care in practice?
☐ Yes ☒ Limited ☐ No
3. Is specialised treatment for victims of torture or traumatised asylum applicants available in practice?
☐ Yes ☒ Limited ☐ No
4. If material conditions are reduced or withdrawn, are asylum applicants still given access to health care?
☐ Yes ☒ Limited ☐ No

The initial medical examination of asylum applicants after their initial admission to a reception centre (EAST or VQ) is usually conducted within 24 hours. A general examination is conducted through a physical examination including vital signs, skin lesion, injuries, including Tuberculosis (TBC) X-ray and questions on their state of health by means of a standardised medical history. If, within the scope of the medical examination, circumstances indicate that further investigations are required, asylum applicants are transferred to specialist doctors or a hospital.⁶⁰⁴ After the asylum applicant has submitted the asylum application, they must undergo a mandatory medical examination, including a tuberculosis examination. The Ministry of the Interior has commissioned the BBU GmbH to carry out the medical examination, which is part of the admission procedure. The company has contracts with general practitioners and nurses to provide health care in the federal reception centres.

Every asylum applicant who receives Basic Care has health insurance. Treatment that is not covered by health insurance may be paid, upon request, by the federal provinces' departments for Basic Care or the Ministry of Interior. If Basic Care is withdrawn, asylum applicants are still entitled to emergency care and essential treatment.⁶⁰⁵

In practice, this provision is not always easy to apply, however. If an asylum applicant has lost basic care due to violent behaviour or absence from the EAST for more than three days, they will not receive medical assistance, because it is assumed that they have had the opportunity to visit the medical station in the EAST. However, as those asylum applicants are no longer registered in the EAST, they will not be allowed to enter and receive medical treatment there. Without health insurance or access to the medical station of the EAST, asylum applicants may face severe difficulties in receiving necessary medical treatment. Some of them come to the NGO-run health project AMBER MED with doctors providing treatment on a voluntary basis.⁶⁰⁶

In Vienna and partly in Upper Austria, asylum applicants receive an insurance card in the same way as other insured persons and can thus access health care with their insurance contracts without complications. In all other provinces, asylum applicants do not receive an ecard, instead of the ecard they receive a replacement document (c-card Ersatzbeleg), except Tyrol where people in basic care have their insurance number written on the back side of their white ID card, which is working well when going to a doctor's office. Caritas Salzburg reports that it is also working without replacement document, and doctor's appointments could also be made this way because of the plug-in card system, it is only necessary to tell the insurance number.⁶⁰⁷

Asylum applicants are obliged to submit medical findings and expert opinions, if those help to assess the presence of a mental disorder or other special needs (§ 2 Abs. 1 GVG-B).⁶⁰⁸ (See Use of medical reports).

⁶⁰⁸ Article 15 (1)3 Asylum Law.

Since September 2018, hospitals have the obligation to inform the BFA of the upcoming release of a foreigner against whom a deportation procedure is pending. This is not mandatory but happens upon requests of the BFA. However, once such a request has been issued, hospitals are obliged to keep the BFA updated of relevant developments (e.g. if there a change in the release date for example). The police may further also be informed on the matter by the BFA upon explicit request.⁶⁰⁹ In practice, there are no reports by hospitals that the police or BFA have issued such information requests.

Specialised treatment

In each federal province, one NGO part of the Network for Intercultural Psychotherapy and Extreme Trauma provides treatment to victims of torture and traumatised asylum applicants. This is partly covered by AMIF funding, partly by the Ministry of Interior and regional medical insurance. However, the capacity of these services is not sufficient, still in 2024. Victims often have to wait for more than 6 months in Vienna, Styria and Tyrol for psychotherapy, while in other federal states they wait approximately 3 months.⁶¹⁰

The Basic Care system – and thus the health care provided – varies from one federal province to another and is regulated in many different laws on state level. In some federal provinces, asylum applicants will be provided care in regular special care facilities (see Special Reception Needs). “Increased care” for special needs must however be requested by the social worker. A prerequisite for receiving additional care is the submission of up-to-date specialist medical findings and assessments demonstrating a need for care, as well as social reports not older than 3 months. These requirements contribute to the asylum applicant’s obligation to cooperate throughout the procedure. Reports from NGOs are also considered when examining the additional need for care.⁶¹¹

E. Special reception needs of vulnerable groups

Indicators: Special Reception Needs

1. Is there an assessment of special reception needs of vulnerable persons in practice?
☒ Yes ☐ No

The legislation relating to the reception of asylum applicants does not foresee a mechanism for identifying vulnerable persons with special needs. Article 2(1) GVG-B states that attention should be paid to special needs when the asylum applicant is registered in the Basic Care System. As already mentioned, asylum applicants must undergo a mandatory health examination after having submitted the asylum application. In principle, all asylum applicants should have health insurance and they may be transferred to a hospital for necessary medical treatments.

The Basic Care laws of Lower Austria, Salzburg, Tyrol and Vorarlberg, Burgenland, Carinthia, Upper Austria mention special needs of vulnerable persons. Elderly persons, handicapped persons, pregnant women, single parents, children, victims of torture, trafficking, rape, or other forms of severe psychological, physical, or sexual violence are considered as vulnerable persons. In the laws of the federal province of Vienna, vulnerable asylum applicants are not mentioned. Nevertheless, the federal provinces must respect national and international law, including the recast Reception Conditions Directive. A special monitoring mechanism was not in place as of 2024. It is the responsibility of the asylum applicant, social worker, social pedagogue, or the landlord to ask for adequate reception conditions from the relevant authority and service provider. Strategic litigation on the matter is very difficult due to the complexity of the legal situation. As mentioned above (see Dispersal across federal provinces) the problem of the lack of adequate screening during initial reception and the insufficient passing on of information during the further distribution of asylum applicants to the federal states is well known. The introduction of screening centres is called for in order to identify vulnerabilities from the outset and, on this basis, to suitable accommodation as well as medical and psychosocial support.⁶¹²

The monthly amount of € 2,480 for nursing care in specialised facilities is included in the Basic Care Agreement between the State and the federal provinces, which describes the material reception conditions. As mentioned under short overview of the reception system, the cost rate for increased care needs was increased to € 3,360 per month in 2024.⁶¹³

Not all federal provinces have special care centres for vulnerable groups besides unaccompanied children. Special care needs are often determined only after an asylum applicant has been placed into a reception centre in one of the provinces. In this regard, the Burgenland Court of Auditors stated that the allocation to a specific centre was the responsibility of the social department and should be based on a departmental list of criteria, which include inter alia marital status, gender, nationality, religion, and age.⁶¹⁴

1. Reception of unaccompanied children

There are several facilities for unaccompanied asylum-seeking children. On the federal level, BBU GmbH had two facilities for UAM at the end of 2024. Children aged less than 14 years are provided care in socio-pedagogic institutions of the federal provinces.⁶¹⁵

In 2022, 13,276 UAM applied for asylum in Austria. In 11,659 cases the authority discontinued the case as the UAM absconded and had left Austria. Nevertheless, the number of UAM in federal reception centres grew up to 1,200 as the provinces were reluctant to take over UAM in their basic care systems. As of December 2022, 1,169 UAM were accommodated in inadequate federal reception centres for an average time of 133 days. The BBU GmbH opened up new facilities: At the end of 2022, there were 5 facilities operating on a federal level accommodating UAM.⁶¹⁶ At the end of 2023, 530 UAM received basic care in federal basic care, for an average time of maximum 381 days.⁶¹⁷ As of 1st January 2025 147 UAM received basic care in federal basic care. In 2024 UAM stayed in federal basic care for an average time of maximum 37 days. The longest stay of an UAM was 355 days.⁶¹⁸

1.1. Federal centres

As mentioned above (see Types of accommodation), some federal facilities were closed in 2024. There are currently still 2 facilities for UAM: EAST Traiskirchen and Finkenstein in Carinthia, managed by the Federal Agency BBU GmbH, out of which one is a separate facility for unaccompanied children in the Federal Reception Centre EAST in Traiskirchen.⁶¹⁹

As of 21 January 2021, there were 200 unaccompanied children accommodated in the federal reception centres.⁶²⁰ The situation deteriorated in 2021 resulting in 700 unaccompanied minors being placed in inadequate housing in federal reception facilities due to the reluctance of provinces to take over these children into basic care. This was largely motivated by the fact that the Ministry refused to increase funding for housing in the provinces. The situation continued in 2022 with 1,200 UAM accommodated in inadequate federal reception centres due to the reluctance of the provinces to take over the minors, as their accommodation cost are even higher than other asylum applicants. Per 2 January 2024 147 UAM⁶²¹ were accommodated in federal reception centres.

The NGO asylkoordination counted around 350 missing children between January and September 2020,⁶²² whereas 228 missing children with non-EU-citizenship were registered in the SIS II, of whom 61 were under 14 years old.⁶²³ The situation deteriorated in 2021: 4,489 minors went missing after applying for asylum in Austria. This represents 78 % of all applications of minors in 2021. The Ministry of Interior stated that these minors went on to other European countries but did not present further proof.⁶²⁴ In 2022 and 2023, this worsened: around 95% (2022: 88.5%) of the UAM who applied for asylum absconded.⁶²⁵ In April 2025, asylkoordination Österreich published a comprehensive report on child refugees in Austria. It recorded the number of missing children (UAM) for the year 2024 at 477 children.⁶²⁶

1.2. Reception of unaccompanied children at federal province level

The Child and Youth Agency is responsible for providing adequate guidance and care to these children. BBU GmbH is responsible in providing legal counselling and representation of the minors in their asylum procedure. However, it is unclear who is responsible for their guardianship during the admissibility procedure or during their stay in the reception centre, or for any other legal issue that may rise. It can be either a legal adviser acting as legal representative in the initial reception centre, or the Child and Youth Agency, which becomes responsible after the child is allocated to a federal province. An answer to a parliamentary request in December 2019 showed that half of the unaccompanied children disappeared after lodging an asylum application during the admissibility procedure.⁶²⁷ Media reports raised important attention to the fact that no authority is appointed as legal guardian for unaccompanied minors during the admissibility procedure.⁶²⁸ The government programme issued in January 2020 includes a plan to better ensure the protection of unaccompanied minors in the admissibility procedure,⁶²⁹ but this was still not implemented as of March 2023 and is not likely to happen before the next general elections in 2024. Due to the implementation of the CEAS, the issue of “custody from day 1” for UAM has resurfaced. At the time of writing (June 2025), negotiations within the Ministry of Justice and the Ministry of Interior are ongoing. In addition, the new federal government of Austria has included the clarification of custody starting from the time of the asylum application for UAMs in its government programme.⁶³⁰

Basic Care provision for unaccompanied asylum-seeking children reflect the need of care with regard to accommodation and psychosocial care. Unaccompanied asylum-seeking children must be hosted according to their need for guidance and care. The daily fee for NGOs hosting unaccompanied asylum-seeking children ranges from € 40 to € 112,00 or € 130,00 depending on the services provided. As mentioned under short overview of the reception system, maximum cost rates for unaccompanied minors were raised from € 95,- to € 112,-/day, or up to € 130 / day for unaccompanied minors and children in youth welfare facilities. Additional support may be provided by the Child and Youth Agency of the federal province. Unaccompanied asylum-seeking children are placed in three different groups depending on their needs. Accordingly, a social worker will be in charge of groups varying from maximum 10, 15 or 20 children depending on their needs (the higher the needs, the smaller the group).

In some cases, the transfer of an unaccompanied asylum-seeking child from the initial reception centre to Basic Care facilities of the federal provinces takes place randomly, without knowing what the specific needs of the child are.⁶³²

Numerous facilities set up after 2015 have been phased out after the number of unaccompanied children arriving in Austria dropped. This decrease was also noted in 2019 and facilities have been closed accordingly. In 2020, facilities of the NGO Volkshilfe in Upper Austria have closed leaving few specialised accommodations. The type of facilities available in the different provinces varies from one province to another.⁶³³

Carinthia, Tyrol and Burgenland only offer accommodation in residential groups.

Lower Austria and Upper Austria generally offer accommodation in residential groups, subject to a few exceptions. The daily rate of € 112,00 for unaccompanied minors' residential groups applies in Upper Austria only for groups of up to 20 people.⁶³⁴ This amount should also cover the legal representation of the minors.

Salzburg: Children over the age of 14 are first housed in residential groups but may be assigned to other types of accommodation if deemed necessary by the care provider.

Vienna: Since 2015, only residential groups have been opened. There are places for unaccompanied children aged 17+ with a lower level of care.

Styria: Styria has no residential groups for unaccompanied children. All children over the age of 14 are accommodated in dormitories or in assisted living. The situation in Styria is criticised by the Ombudsman, who recommends the establishment of residential groups in the future.

Some of the Basic care laws of certain federal provinces provide that social educational and psychological care for unaccompanied asylum-seeking children should stabilise their psychic condition and create trust.⁶³⁵ Furthermore daily-organised activities (e.g. education, sport, group activities, and homework) and psychosocial support are foreseen, taking into account the age, identity, origin and residence of family members, perspective for the future and integration measures.

A report on the situation of accompanied children in Austria published in 2019 by asylkoordination and UNICEF showed that accompanied children face – to a large extent – the same problems as those faced by unaccompanied minors. Moreover, some specific problematic issues have been identified; such as inadequate housing situations (due to often small accommodation places for large families) or role that children play as translators for their parents in certain situations etc.⁶³⁶ In April 2025, Asylkoordination Österreich published a comprehensive report on the situation of unaccompanied and accompanied child refugees in Austria. With regard to accompanied child refugees, the report emphasises that the living conditions in private homes are often cramped and the hygienic conditions are not adequate. It also mentions that the children themselves and their needs are not always covered or handled adequately. The frequent lack of daily structure for parents or mothers/fathers due to their status as asylum seekers and the associated psychological stress also place a heavy burden on the children.⁶³⁷

The report further criticises the lack of staff in many institutions and the lack of qualified staff, especially regarding pedagogical care that is needed to deal with an emerging risk of radicalisation and to deal with persons with psychic issues. Also, the Ombudsman described a shared apartment that it had visited as being incompatible with pedagogical standards and qualified it as a humiliating treatment. The shared flat was closed shortly after the Commission's visit and the young persons living there were transferred. In that regard, other basic care facilities were visited by the commissions and considered as impersonal, empty and/or cramped. Dorm rooms were sometimes so small that no retreat or visit opportunities existed and the environment was not adequate for learning. Therefore, minors were sometimes found in a neglected state. As follow-up visits demonstrated, many issues were corrected after the NPM's intervention. It was noted that a new system called 'New authority' - "Neue Autorität" – was being implemented: "Neue Autorität" is a systemic approach that strengthens managers, educators and parents. It enhances a respectful culture of relationships and encourages development processes. This also led to a better integration of the children into local communities.⁶³⁸

Regarding the access to education, the report indicates that – apart from the minors that are enrolled in schools and attend lessons – young persons do not receive adequate training or further education everywhere. German courses are offered in some regions only once or twice a week and language remains an important barrier.

Aged-out children

A few places are available for children who have reached the age of 18 and who need higher care compared to adults. This possibility corresponds to youth welfare regulations, stating that under special circumstances the Child and Youth Agency will take responsibility for young adults up to the age of 21.⁶³⁹

The Ombudsman observed that the situation of children aged more than 18 years old can be particularly precarious if they have to leave the unaccompanied minors' homes although they are not sufficiently prepared to an independent life.⁶⁴⁰ This remains an issue as of 2024.⁶⁴¹

Some NGOs in Vienna (Don Bosco Sozialwerk, SOS Kinderdorf, Caritas) and Lower Austria (e.g. NGO tralalobe) offer so-called 'after-care places' for children asylum applicants who have come of age during their stay in facilities, in so-called mobile supervised flats where social workers come 1-3 times a week to provide counselling and support. However, aftercare for young adults in basic care is funded at the same daily rate as for adults, even if young adults require more care in most cases. In Upper Austria, the NGO Volkshilfe has tried several times to point out the needs of young adults and has also presented concepts, but they have always been rejected by the authorities.⁶⁴²

Children with special needs

Information gathered by asylkoordination in the fall of 2016, demonstrated that 10.6% of accommodated children needed medication ordered by a psychiatrist. It indicated that some suffered from depression, suicidal thoughts and mental disorders. A further 9% were suspected to be suffering from a mental illness, although there was no diagnostic yet as most of them refused to undergo an investigation - out of fear of being stigmatised or due to delays in the assessments. Another 5% were in therapy and were not taking medication. According to the caregivers, about 15% were in urgent need of therapy. 8% were further moved to another facility due to their behaviour (threats, violence against staff or other residents), but in one third of the cases the behavioural problems did not improve.⁶⁴³

The Ombudsman has criticised Lower Austria for not providing additional funding for children with mental illness. The federal province responded that the higher daily rate of €95 paid for Basic Care since July 2016 should cover any additional costs. Following criticism from the Ombudsman, the province of Styria has introduced a supplementary package of € 18 from July 2018 onwards for unaccompanied children with special care needs. This brings the daily rate in Styria to € 95.⁶⁴⁴ NGOs from Styria reported that families with severely ill children were not placed in reception facilities for persons with special needs, on the grounds that their parents should have enough resources to take care for them.

2. Reception of women and families

Special facilities exist in some of the federal provinces to welcome single women and mothers. In the initial reception centre of Traiskirchen, for example, single women are accommodated in a separate building. The minimum standards (chapters 6 and 7) for the accommodation of asylum applicants stipulate that women with children must be accommodated in separate rooms and bathrooms and toilets must be physically separated for men and women.⁶⁴⁵

Some specialised reception facilities for single women are run by NGOs.⁶⁴⁶ In bigger facilities, separated rooms or floors are reserved for single women or families. The protection of family life for core family members is laid down in the law of the federal provinces.⁶⁴⁷ As regards family members who arrived through a Family Reunification scheme and receive Basic Care as asylum applicants, there is no satisfactory solution in practice in case with the holder of the refugee status does not have a suitable private flat. The family may be separated until the status is granted, because recognised refugees can no longer live in the Basic Care centre.

There are only a few reception facilities with more than 80 or 100 places, while most of the other larger facilities are run by NGOs in Vienna. In Tyrol, there is one facility with up to 600 places. Hostels and inns have between 20 and 40 places. Consequently, single women are not always separated from single men, e.g. separate floor, but the rooms are separate and there are separate toilets and showers. Vienna also has centres for victims of trafficking and LGBTIQ persons. Similarly, Tyrol, Lower Austria and Salzburg also has a reception centre for single women and single parents.

3. Reception of persons with disabilities and seriously ill persons

3.1. Federal centres

Some places in facilities of the state or run by NGOs are reserved for traumatised or ill asylum applicants (“Erhöhter Betreuungsbedarf” - EBB or “Sonderbetreuungsbedarf - SBB”). In the last years (2022-2024), the number of places for asylum applicants with disabilities or other special needs of care increased. This is mainly due to the high number of vulnerable displaced persons from Ukraine. There is one special care centre for people in need of special medical care at the federal level, located in Graz Andritz which has a maximum capacity of 150 people.

In addition, where necessary, persons with special needs are accommodated in separate rooms or houses in the Federal Reception Centre in Traiskirchen during the admissibility procedure.⁶⁴⁸ Special care centres for 25 persons in a barrier-free building (house 1) are provided in Traiskirchen.

The placement of a person in need of special care in one of the special care centres is determined on a case-by-case basis depending on the individual's health situation.

The special care centre of Graz Andritz has a maximum capacity of about 150 places, and offers among regular places, places with quality medical care for patients in need of both regular and special care (per 14 January 2025, 22 persons were registered under Sonderbetreuungsbedarf)⁶⁴⁹, e.g. persons with cancer, cardiovascular diseases, epileptics, diabetics, patients in rehab etc. This is due to the optimal accessibility of the Graz Country Hospital. It has a specially equipped doctor's station. In addition to medical staff, the care provider BBU GmbH is responsible for the care of the asylum applicants.⁶⁵⁰

3.2. Centres at provincial level

The criteria taken into consideration by all federal states to provide special care (Erhöhter Betreuungsbedarf – EBB) include:⁶⁵¹

- ❖ severe psychiatric illness;
- ❖ at least moderate physical infirmities (e.g. paralysis);
- ❖ sensory impairments (e.g. blindness, deaf-blindness);
- ❖ intellectual disabilities (below average cognitive abilities);
- ❖ chronic diseases (e.g., cancer, TB, dialysis);
- ❖ incurable epidemiological diseases (e. g. HIV, hepatitis C);
- ❖ short-term dangerous diseases (e.g. multi-resistant TB, epidemics), as long as there is no danger for the residents and the care staff;

⁶⁵⁰ NGO exchange meeting asylkoordination österreich, December 2024, unpublished.

⁶⁵¹ These criteria are based on the so-called KOORAT resolution 74-2008, which is not publicly available.

- ❖ pathological dependence on psychoactive substances (except alcohol and nicotine) - substitution programme.

Persons suffering from addiction can only be assigned to an increased need for care place if the secondary illness justifies said assignment. Even a diagnosis of post-traumatic stress disorder alone is not accepted by the Federal Ministry of the Interior as a prerequisite for increased need for care.⁶⁵²

When applying for special care, NGOs/landlords must submit following documents:

- ❖ Specialist medical report (not older than 3 months);
- ❖ Nursing or situation report in case of insufficient findings;
- ❖ (In Vienna, a declaration of consent of person concerned must be signed)

In all federal states, the authority decides on the granting of an increased need of care, usually this is granted for one year and then it must be applied for it again before expiration.

Moreover, the following documents must be submitted to renew applications (especially in Vienna):

- ❖ a specialised medical report (not older than 3 months);
- ❖ 2 social reports in total, submitted 6 months apart;
- ❖ A confirmation of treatment from doctors.

Federal province	Financial funding	Care ratio ⁶⁵³
Vienna	Real cost accounting	1,25:10 1:1-3 Psychologists, nurses
Lower Austria	€ 40.50 - € 60	care key and specifications unclear
Upper Austria	€ 25 plus surcharge by three sub categories: A + € 8, B + € 13 C + € 19.09/21	category A: 1-3h care hours category B: 3h care hours category C: 6h or more hours
Burgenland	€ 25 surcharge possible, between + € 10 to € 20, max. € 60	No defined care ratio

The daily rate of increased care varies in the federal provinces. Organisations providing reception receive a maximum € 60 according to the number of hours of care provided per week. In Vienna, there are also so-called 'stabilisation places' within the framework of accommodation for increased care needs, which are dedicated to individuals who already have an increased need for care and are in an acute severe crisis such as a suicidal state; and for people who obviously have severe psychiatric problems, but cannot show any evidence because they do not perceive themselves as mentally ill or sick. The latter are often those who are repeatedly discharged from facilities because they exceed the care resources and are not compatible for multi-bed occupancy. Currently, three NGOs have around 40 stabilisation places available. Diakonie also has a small residential group for people with increased care needs with 1:1 care.⁶⁵⁴

In some federal states (e.g. Vienna, Tyrol), there are cooperative agreements with pharmacies that provide important medication for persons with increased care needs. The prescriptions issued by the doctors or psychiatrists are sent in advance to the pharmacy. In the facilities themselves, making the dispensing of medication much easier, also for the people concerned.⁶⁵⁵

The needs of ill, handicapped asylum applicants, as well as asylum applicants with nursing care, are not sufficiently met in practice. There is no allowance to cover extra costs if nursing care is provided by relatives or friends. NGOs must employ professionals if they offer places for asylum applicants with special – mainly medical – needs.⁶⁵⁶

In all federal states except Vienna and Lower Austria, people with special care are accommodated in regular basic care facilities due to the lack of specialised accommodation facilities. As a result, the level of care, financial costs and type of care differs significantly across the federal states. In Vienna five NGOs (Caritas Vienna, Diakonie, Integrationshaus, Samariterbund Vienna and Volkshilfe Vienna) are specialised in increased care accommodation and offer places in their basic care facilities. All involved NGOs try to provide single rooms for persons with increased special care and for stabilisation places. The care teams include psychologists, social workers, health, and medical nurses. In addition, a psychiatric consultation service and interpreting costs are covered.

The facilities also try to create smaller projects (often funded by donations or smaller subsidies from various governmental funds) that can contribute to a tailored and more supportive daily structure for the people concerned. The projects include, for example, joint cooking courses, relaxation exercises, gardening together. Daily structure is an important element of social care, not only for those with an increased need for care, but for all people in ongoing asylum procedures. Due to the long duration of the asylum procedure and the prolonged state of limbo, mental illnesses, traumas, and stress may increase for asylum applicants.⁶⁵⁷

In Lower Austria the NGO 'tralalobe' has set up a facility for women and female unaccompanied minors only, where the daily rate for increased care needs for adults is paid (for care and accommodation for minors there is another daily rate). Additionally, there are 6-8 places for traumatised unaccompanied children in another facility run by the NGO Tralalobe.⁶⁵⁸ There is also another facility run by another private basic care provider (the SLC Eder in the city of Baden) for people with increased care needs, but according to reports from NGOs in Lower Austria in 2024, the facility is not well run due to shortage in professional staff– but there is limited information available. In Lower Austria, the findings must be sent on a 10-month interval, and reasons must be given as to why people in the family cannot take responsibility for providing care.

Tyrol: The Basic Care system does not offer special care places. The concerned persons are looked after by a Case & Care team in various accommodation facilities. The most common criteria for support from the Case & Care team are psychiatric, mental, and physical conditions or disabilities.

In Styria, the care ratio and specialisation of care staff is not defined. Depending on the number of persons with increased care, services can be additionally purchased. Caritas Styria provides support to people with increased care in psycho-psychiatric area and no longer its own special care accommodation facilities. Another private basic care provider who runs a former hostel (Wisniewski) is more specialised in physical diseases and high maintenance care.

In Upper Austria, people who do not need special accommodation but have an increased need for care (e.g. dialysis patients) are accommodated exclusively in basic care facilities of NGOs like Caritas and Volkshilfe. Although there is no specification of the professional groups, psychologists and nurses work at both NGOs.

In Burgenland Caritas has around 60 places for people with increased special care, but here again there is no staff specialised in working with individuals in need of special care. The authority allows monthly compensation contribution of max. € 700 for the purchase of external care services for which NGOs have to apply. NGOs reported that they were not made aware for several years of the possibility to accommodate individuals with special needs in Burgenland.⁶⁵⁹

In Salzburg people with increased special care are accommodated in regular basic care facilities, but here as well there is no specialised staff as of 2024.

Vorarlberg: there is no information available on increased care as of 2024.

In Carinthia, the availability of places with need of increased care is not clearly communicated and there are no guidelines for care personnel. Diakonie de la Tour is the only institution which provides care for people with increased care on a case-by-case basis. Applications for increased care places are submitted in writing, where increased need must be justified. In practice, it is difficult to be granted an increased care (even for children or for suicidal individuals), and authorities have reportedly stated that trauma-related illness, "everyone has it anyway".⁶⁶⁰

Diakonie has a telephone hotline called AMIKE for people under stress, which is available in several languages such as Dari/Farsi, Arabic, English, Turkish, Kurdish, etc.⁶⁶¹

In Vienna, there are mobile teams of psychologists (Caritas MIT Team⁶⁶², Fem Süd, NEDA⁶⁶³) who offer counselling for people in basic care facilities. Both are valuable services that offer support, especially considering the limitations in terms of resources and funding in this area.

- ❖ Caritas MIT Team offers clinical-psychological counselling with a focus on relief, psychoeducation, resource activation, clarification and, if necessary, professional referral to other counselling centres.
- ❖ FEM Süd NEDA offers gender and culturally sensitive services for people in primary care with mental health problems. In the NEDA project, clinical-psychological or psychotherapeutic counselling, as well as psychoeducation workshops for women and men with refugee experience in primary care are offered in the respective first languages. These services are provided at the three locations of the health centres FEM, FEM South and MEN,⁶⁶⁴ as well as on an outreach basis in facilities in the asylum sector. The aim is to provide initial psychological care, stabilisation and relief for people seeking asylum.

However, still in 2024, all federal states suffer from a lack of capacity in psychiatric hospitals, leading to people needing an inpatient admission being sent back to their respective facility after a few hours.

Additional barriers include the lack of interpreters, which makes it particularly difficult for doctors to communicate with persons in acute crisis. This has been reported as a serious problem and no solution has been found so far. Asylum applicants in crises (i.e. suicide risk) or people with acute paranoid schizophrenic episodes often do not receive the adequate care.⁶⁶⁵

F. Information for asylum seekers and access to reception centres

1. Provision of information on reception

The information leaflets in the initial reception centre provide brief information on rights and obligations regarding reception conditions, e.g. the possibility and obligation to visit a doctor, the possibility to contact UNHCR, the obligation to declare resources or sources of income, the restricted movement and the meaning of the different documents (such as the green card). Information leaflets are available in most of the languages spoken by asylum applicants. As mentioned above (see Reduction or withdrawal of reception conditions) mandatory basic rules-courses were introduced for asylum applicants in federal accommodation centres. These basic rules-courses (Grundregelkurse) consist of 5 modules and include content on democracy, the rule of law and freedoms, equal rights, culture and manners, rights and duties as well as sensitisation to forms of antisemitism. Anyone who refuses to take part in these courses will only receive half of the € 40 pocket money instead. The obligation to attend the courses was received negatively, as asylum applicants crave information anyway. However, Austrian conservative politicians (ÖVP) have sought to show this obligation to the general public as a measure to tighten up the situation of refugees.

The residence restriction applicable since 1 November 2017 is notified in writing in all federal provinces. Asylum applicants are required to sign the notice (see Freedom of Movement). NGOs and private operators have produced information sheets in a wide range of languages. There have been several cases where asylum applicants have been sanctioned for violating their residence restrictions, including in cases where the concerned person was visiting friends in Vienna and did not change their residence. Apart from Vienna and Lower Austria, the residence restriction is of little relevance.

In the reception centres, asylum applicants are provided information about the house rules, as well as on their duties and the possible subsequent sanctions.⁶⁶⁶ The house rules in the reception centres of Styria, for example, are available at the digital federal legal information system RIS (Rechtsinformationssystem).⁶⁶⁷ Information is either posted in the most common languages (e.g. English, Russian, French, Arabic, Farsi, Urdu, Serbian) or a paper containing brief written instructions has to be signed by the asylum applicant. In the states of Lower Austria,⁶⁶⁸ and Salzburg,⁶⁶⁹ a brochure, which is also available on the internet, describes the Basic Care system, although information is not up to date. In other provinces like Vienna, the information brochure contains the issues of the Basic Care system and contact details of NGOs providing information and advice.⁶⁷⁰ Advice from social workers is included in the reception provisions laid down by law. Social advisers visiting reception centres on a regular basis, also have to fulfil at the same time administrative tasks such as handing over the monthly pocket money or the vouchers for clothes and school material. Organisations providing social advice usually also have departments for legal advice to asylum applicants.

Asylum applicants living in rented flats must go to the offices of the social advice organisations. The current system of provision of information is not satisfactory, as there is only one social worker responsible for 140 asylum applicants meaning that the quality of the services provided by social workers is low in practice. Furthermore, there are considerable differences from one federal province to another: one social worker is responsible for 50 asylum applicants in Vienna and for 70 asylum applicants in Tyrol. Moreover, reception centres located in remote areas cannot be visited very often by social workers due to insufficient funding.

Consequently, many volunteers and communities help asylum applicants by, for example sharing information via social networks.⁶⁷¹ Although their numbers have reduced in recent years, volunteers are still active in 2024 and assist asylum applicants in various aspects. This includes providing German language lessons and conversation, explaining asylum applicants' obligations and rights, helping with the family reunification procedure, or with access housing or employment upon termination of the asylum procedure. Some initiatives organise petitions and press reports against deportations to Afghanistan and other countries.⁶⁷²

2. Access to reception centres by third parties

Indicators: Access to Reception Centres

1. Do family members, legal advisers, UNHCR and/or NGOs have access to reception centres?
☐ Yes ☒ With limitations ☐ No

UNHCR has unrestricted access to all reception centres. In the initial reception centres, access of legal advisers and NGOs to the reception buildings is not allowed, based on the argument that it would disrupt the private life of other asylum applicants. This restriction is laid down in a regulation introduced by the Minister of Interior ("Betreuungseinrichtung-Betreuungsverordnung") intending to secure order and preventing assaults to life, health or freedom and protecting the facility.⁶⁷³ UNHCR has the right to be present in any interview and oral hearings and is allowed to get in contact with the applicants at any time. UNHCR has also access to airport facilities in the border procedures where the authorities have to ask for UNHCR's consent for rejecting decisions.⁶⁷⁴ In 2024 there were five unannounced visits from UNHCR to federal basic care facilities as well as two evaluations (inspection visit) by the Ombudsperson's office at the federal facility BBE Steyregg and BBE Klingenbach.⁶⁷⁵

The restriction of access to the facilities does not apply to lawyers or legal representatives. Family members may meet their relatives in the visitors' room, and legal advisers and NGOs in the premises of the BFA. In the federal provinces, NGOs with a contract for providing advice in social matters have access to the reception centres, while other NGOs must ask for permission, sometimes on a case-by-case basis.

Asylum applicants living in reception centres located in remote areas usually have difficulties contacting NGOs, as having pay for public transportation on their own (their pocket money amounts to € 40 per month). Travel costs for meetings with the appointed legal adviser are only paid by BBU GmbH if it is necessary i.e. in preparation for a court session.

G. Differential treatment of specific nationalities in reception

Basic Care is provided until the final decision is made, and if the decision is negative until the departure or deportation. Authorities in Lower Austria request asylum applicants who have received a final negative decision but have not left the country and lived in private accommodation to move to a state organised asylum accommodation, without the possibility to legally challenge this request. If they refuse to do so, their social benefits are cut. The official press release of the responsible provincial member of parliament of the Freedom Party in April 2018 stated that the aim of this measure was to ensure a "noticeable break in living conditions" caused by non-participation in the return.⁶⁷⁶ This is still being applied in practice as of February 2025.

Asylum applicants who have not complied voluntarily within the 14-day deadline receive an order from the BFA to go to a return centre. Currently, there is a centre at the airport in Vienna / Schwechat as well as in Tyrol / Fieberbrunn and both centres are run by the Ministry of the Interior. Increased return counselling is carried out in these centres.

For asylum applicants whose application has been rejected and for whom the appeal has no suspensive effect, the right to basic care is removed during the appeal proceedings (see Criteria and Restrictions to Access Reception Conditions). Asylum applicants from safe countries of origin are particularly affected by this restriction. If an asylum applicant participates to the voluntary return, the entitlement to the Basic Care will be granted until the departure.

NGOs report that there is an imbalance between Syrians and other refugees, as Syrians have access to a German course through the Austrian Integration Fund (ÖIF) during the asylum procedure, while others do not. This has created frustration but also confusion, including among the support teams.⁶⁷⁷ Syrians belong/or belonged to the group of asylum applicants with a 'high probability of staying', which is why they already have access to free German courses during the asylum procedure.

Detention of Asylum Seekers

A. General

Indicators: General Information on Detention

2. Total number of persons detained in 2024:	3,591
3. Number of persons in detention as of 1 January 2025: ⁶⁷⁸	245
4. Number of detention centres:	15
5. Total capacity of detention centres:	1,280 ⁶⁷⁹

A total of 3,591 (2023: 3,998; 2022: 3,700, 2021: 4,023) people were detained on immigration-related grounds throughout 2024 but there is no public data available on how many of them are asylum seekers or how many persons applied for asylum during detention.⁶⁸⁰ During 2024, 4 unaccompanied minors were held in detention.⁶⁸¹

The average time of detention of minors was 18.5 days. However, in most cases, rejected asylum applicants are arrested 48 hours prior to deportation. This is not counted as formal detention prior to deportation, and data on arrests prior to detention without detention order is not available.

There are 3 large detention centres currently operating in Austria: Vordernberg, Styria; Police Apprehension Centres (PAZ) Vienna Hernalser Gürtel, PAZ Vienna Rossauer Lände.

There are 12 smaller Detention Centres (PAZ) under the responsibility of the police – Bludenz, Eisenstadt, Graz, Innsbruck, Klagenfurt, Linz, Salzburg, St Pölten, Villach, Wels, Family apprehension centre Zinnergasse/Vienna and Wiener Neustadt – that are used for short term arrests. In most cases, detainees are transferred to the main centres after an average of 7 days.

The answer to a parliamentary request demonstrated that it is not possible to assess the total capacity of detention centres, as most of them are used for different measures (e.g. administrative and penal detention). Only the detention centre (Anhaltezentrum – AHZ) Vordernberg in Styria and PAZ Hernalser Gürtel and PAZ Rosbauer Lände are designated for the sole purpose of pre-removal detention. The maximum total capacity of these three centres amounts to 667.⁶⁸²

In practice, asylum applicants are subject to detention mainly under Dublin procedures as well as de facto detention in the airport procedure. Persons who submit a subsequent asylum application are often detained as well. If a person applies for asylum while in detention, they may be detained during the admissibility procedure.

When asylum applicants are detained, the personal interview examining their application is held in the detention centre. Interpreters are present and legal representatives are summoned to the interview. The BFA may also order to bring the asylum applicant to the BFA for the interview. A trusted person has the right to be present at the interview of an asylum applicant. If the asylum application is processed as an inadmissible application a legal advisor counsels the asylum applicant before the interview and has to be present at the interview.

B. Legal framework of detention

1. Grounds for detention

Indicators: Grounds for Detention

1. In practice, are most asylum seekers detained
 - ❖ on the territory: ☒ Yes ☐ No
 - ❖ at the border: ☐ Yes ☒ No
2. Are asylum applicants detained in practice during the Dublin procedure? ☒ Frequently ☐ Rarely ☐ Never
3. Are asylum applicants detained during a regular procedure in practice? ☐ Frequently ☒ Rarely ☐ Never

Asylum seekers who apply for international protection at the police may be detained for up to 48 hours, without a detention order for safeguarding the first steps of the procedure and a security check.⁶⁸³ This detention period reaches up to 1 week in the context of the border procedure, as asylum seekers are de facto detained in the airport facility.⁶⁸⁴

With the exception of the border procedure, which is not formally recognised as detention in law, the detention of asylum seekers is regulated by the Aliens Police Act (FPG), which has been amended several times to specify the grounds for detention. The last amendment entered into force on 1 September 2018. Detention may be ordered by the BFA to secure a return procedure, for example if a “risk of absconding” exists and detention is proportionate. Furthermore, the FPG allows detention according to the Dublin III Regulation.

Since September 2018 asylum seekers can further be detained if they are considered as a threat to the public order or security. The recast Article 76 (2) FPG states: “Detention may only be ordered to enable the issuing of a measure terminating residence, provided that detention is appropriate, and that the foreigner’s stay endangers public order or security in accordance with Article 67, and that there is a risk of absconding.”

Article 76 FPG defines the “risk of absconding” based on a number of wide-ranging criteria, namely whether:⁶⁸⁵

1. The person has avoided or hampered a deportation order;
 - 1a. The person has not complied with the obligation to obtain a travel document for their removal;⁶⁸⁶
2. The person has violated a travel ban;
3. An enforceable expulsion order exists and the person has absconded during the asylum procedure or during the removal procedure;
4. The person makes a subsequent application without right to remain;
5. The person is in pre-deportation detention at the time they lodge the application;
6. It is likely that another country is responsible under the Dublin Regulation, namely as the person has lodged multiple applications, tried to travel to another member state, or it can be assumed that, based on past behaviour they intends to travel on to another member state;
7. The person does not comply with alternatives to detention;
8. The person does not comply with residence restrictions, reporting duties and designated accommodation or similar instructions;⁶⁸⁷
9. There is a sufficient link with Austria such as family relations, sufficient resources or secured residence.

The FPG does not refer to a “serious” risk of absconding in line with Article 28(2) of the Dublin III Regulation. However, the long list of criteria in Article 76(3) is non-exhaustive, thereby unduly granting the authorities the discretion to identify a “risk of absconding” and to proceed to detention.

The law foresees three different grounds for detention: While § 76 Abs 1 and 2 FPG are applied in cases where detention is deemed necessary to secure the asylum and return decision proceedings in cases of threats to public security (Abs 1) or to secure return decision proceedings or deportation (Abs 2), § 76 Abs 3 foresees detention in Dublin cases when the conditions of Art 28 (1) and (2) of the Dublin directive are met.

According to Article 76 FPG, the principle of necessity must be taken into account by the BFA when issuing detention orders and detention must necessary to reach one of the stated objectives.⁶⁹⁰ When examining the proportionality of detention, criminal offences committed by the applicant are taken into account to assess whether the public interest is affected by the seriousness of the offences. Similarly, the authorities must assess whether the public interest in speedy deportation overrides the personal liberty of the individual.⁶⁹¹ Proportionality means to weight or balance the interests between the public interest of securing the procedure (i.e. mainly in the context of deportations) and the right to liberty of the individual.

The BFA must review the proportionality of detention every 4 weeks.⁶⁹² Proportionality is also a constitutional principle applicable to all administrative procedures and therefore also to asylum and return proceedings. This has been confirmed by the jurisprudence of the VwGH⁶⁹³ and the Constitutional Court (VfGH).⁶⁹⁴

In airport procedures, entry to the territory is denied and applicants are ordered to stay in a specific area of the airport designated as EAST. The entry to the territory must be allowed as soon as a rejection of the application does not seem probable anymore. If a rejection seems probable the authorities can secure the rejection of the application by not letting the applicant access the territory for a maximum of six weeks.⁶⁹⁵ The applicant can leave from to Austria to another country at any time, however, in which case the asylum procedure is suspended.

Alternative measures to detention must be applied as much as possible. An individualised examination is foreseen by the FPG, but in practice less coercive measures are often regarded by the authorities as not sufficient to secure the return procedure or expulsion.

Article 77(3) FPG enumerates three alternatives to detention: (a) reporting obligations; (b) the obligation to take up residence in a certain place and (c) the deposit of a financial guarantee. Details about the deposit and amount of the financial guarantee are regulated by the Ordinance Implementing the Aliens Police Act (FPG-DV). This amount must be determined in each individual case and must be proportionate.⁶⁹⁶ The law specifies a maximum of € 1,717.46 for financial guarantees (2 x €858,73). The measure is not usually applied in practice, however.⁶⁹⁷ Recent observations confirmed that this was still the case in 2020-2024 due to a lack of financial resources.

Alternatives to detention are applied in open centres, in regular reception facilities, in facilities rented by the police or property of NGOs, as well as in private accommodations of the person to be deported. They are not applied in other facilities such as de facto detention facilities at the border in the context of the airport procedure. If an alternative to detention is ordered, asylum applicants have reporting duties. This includes presenting themselves to the police offices of the Federal Police Directorates every day or every second day. If reporting obligations or the obligation to take up residence in a certain accommodation facility are violated, the person can be detained.⁶⁹⁸

The duration of alternative measures is limited. Asylum applicants benefiting from an alternative to detention are not entitled to Basic Care, although necessary medical treatment(s) must always be guaranteed. These costs may be paid by the BFA, however, there is no general access to medical care insurance while in detention. Asylum applicants may receive free emergency medical treatment in hospitals.

However, in practice, alternatives to detention are very rarely used. In 2021, the application of alternatives to detentions further increased to 804 cases.⁶⁹⁹ In 2024, in 295 (whole of 2022: 634; no data for 2023) cases alternatives to detention were applied, in 32 (whole of 2022: 19) cases the persons concerned were minors.⁷⁰⁰

In Vienna Zinnergasse, alternatives to detention are provided for vulnerable persons, especially for families. However, families are detained 72 hours prior to their removal and other vulnerable persons (e.g. people with mental illnesses) are detained in regular detention facilities, unless a psychiatrist certifies that this is not appropriate. In 2024, 5 persons were apprehended and accommodated in this facility.⁷⁰¹

Children under the age of 14 cannot be detained. Therefore, families with young children are confined / apprehended (see above, Grounds for detention) for 72 hours prior to their forced return. In general, children over the age of 14 should not be detained and alternatives to detention should apply for minors over the age of 14.⁷⁰² In 2024, four unaccompanied minors were detained for an average time of 18.5 days (2023: 9.8; 2022: 11.6).⁷⁰³

Unaccompanied or separated children who are awaiting or undergoing age assessment are not detained but accommodated at the UAM reception centres of the BBU.

4. Duration of detention

Indicators: Duration of Detention

1. What is the maximum detention period set in the law (incl. extensions): 18 months
2. In practice, how long in average are asylum applicants detained? Not available

Detention should be as short as possible,⁷⁰⁴ and cannot exceed 6 months for adults,⁷⁰⁵ and 3 months for children over the age of 14.⁷⁰⁶ There is also a possibility to exceptionally extend these periods for up to 18 months, e.g. when the identity or citizenship cannot be verified or when the foreigner resisted against police force in the context of deportation.⁷⁰⁷ As regards asylum applicants, detention should generally not last longer than 4 weeks following the final decision on the application.⁷⁰⁸

Figures on the average duration of detention of asylum applicants in general are not available. As of 2024, the average time overall was 22 days (2023: 29 days; 2022: 32.8 days), while specific data on the average detention time of asylum applicants is not available.⁷⁰⁹

As regards, asylum applicants falling under the Dublin procedure, they are often detained immediately after lodging their application and may be kept in detention until they are transferred to the responsible Member State. In Dublin cases, detention may last for some weeks, as suspensive effect of the appeal is hardly ever granted and the transfer can be affected while their appeal is still pending.⁷¹⁰

As of December 2024, applicants with the prospect of being returned to Italy via Dublin directive were kept in detention as the BFA assumed that Italy would change its policy of not taking back Dublin returnees. In 2024, like in 2023, possible Dublin returnees to Italy were released after a short time as Italy has not changed its policy in 2024.⁷¹¹ There were no Dublin returns to Italy in 2024.⁷¹²

The detention centre in Vordernberg, established in January 2014, allows detainees to stay outside their cell during the day. The facility is run by a private security company called G4S. Concerns about the division of tasks and accountability between the public security service and this private company have been raised.⁷¹³ The Minister of Interior explained in response to a parliamentary request that G4S's task is to assist the police.⁷¹⁴ According to a report of "Der Standard", a series of trainings, including 36 hours dedicated to human rights, have been organised for the staff of the centre.⁷¹⁵

Women or unaccompanied children aged more than 14 years old are detained in separate cells in practice. Moreover, some detention centres are particularly adapted to vulnerable persons. This is the case of the detention centres in Vienna, Roßauer Lände, which has a playground within the building. Similarly, the detention centre in Vienna Zinnergasse is equipped for families with children and unaccompanied children. There are further twelve family apartments in which families are detained for a maximum of 48 hours after having been informed of their deportation date. Moreover, one floor of the same building is used for less coercive measures and has 17 housing units, one of which is adapted to disabled persons. Detainees are allowed to leave the centre during the day.⁷¹⁶

Airport (de facto) detention facility

At the Vienna Schwechat Airport, the initial reception centre is under the responsibility of the border police. Caritas Vienna had a contract to provide care for asylum applicants waiting for transfer to Traiskirchen or for the final decision on their application. The contract was not prolonged in 2017 and ORS, the company contracted by the Ministry of Interior to provide care to asylum applicants, provided care at the airport up until December 2020.⁷¹⁷ Since December 2020, the Federal Agency BBU GmbH is in charge of providing basic care at the airport. The capacity of the airport facility is 28 persons. In 2021, a total of 256 persons were de facto detained at the airport facility in 2021.⁷¹⁸ Data for 2022, 2023 and 2024 is not available.

There were still important differences between the different detention facilities in 2023. In the Viennese detention facilities the condition of the buildings are of particular concern: people are still being detained in cells during the day, instead of open areas. There are very few allegations on mistreatment but serious and well-founded complaints about the bad material conditions in the Viennese detention facilities. In its report presented in 2023 following a visit in 2021, the CPT stated that the accommodation and communal areas were "in an appalling state of repair with corridors, cells and their sanitary annexes dilapidated and dirty.” The atmosphere is described as “very carceral and oppressive” and as “not suitable for holding foreign nationals in Schubhaft for prolonged periods.”⁷¹⁹ As of the end of 2023, there was still no mechanism to identify vulnerable people in detention centres, which is a serious issue that was also highlighted by the mission report of the OHCHR in October 2018.⁷²⁰

The Detention Centre in Vordernberg, Styria was built between in 2011-13 in a modern style in a remote area. There are no problems reported concerning the condition of the building but due to its remote location the centre is difficult to access for visitors, legal advisors, and civil society actors, effectively cutting off detainees from the outside world. Moreover, it has come under scrutiny following a detailed report by Push-Back Alarm Austria and Deserteurs- und Flüchtlingsberatung in 2024. The report documented testimonies of people detained there in recent years. Although established as a response to criticism of Austria’s immigration detention practices, the report documents allegations concerning isolation, arbitrariness, and systemic abuse. The report describes daily life in the facility as defined by legal uncertainty, psychological degradation, and violence. Detainees report solitary confinement, verbal and physical abuse, racist and discriminatory treatment by police and other security personnel, and punitive responses to minor or unintended rule violation inside the facility. The study characterises the overall environment as one that meets the UN definition of a “torturing environment.”

Interviewees reported systemic deficiencies in legal counselling, particularly with the state-mandated provider (BBU GmbH), citing a lack of information about rights and limited assistance with legal appeals. Medical care inside the facility is widely described as inadequate, with several reports by detainees of untreated suicide attempts and the excessive use of sedatives.⁷²¹

The allegations were rejected by the Ministry of Interior but led to criminal proceedings.⁷²² The result of the criminal proceedings is not known by the time of writing (June 2025).

Although social counselling is not foreseen in practice, the information leaflet provided to detainees mentions that activities take place in the centre such as “social counselling”. BBU GmbH does offer legal counselling for detainees who also have to undergo return counselling by another department of the BBU GmbH. NGOs receive no funding and are not regularly present in detention centres. UNHCR is not regularly present in detention centres.⁷²³

The Austrian Ombudsman Board (AOB) has been responsible for protecting and promoting human rights in the Republic of Austria since 1 July 2012 and is the institution designed to promote the Austrian National Preventive Mechanism (NPM). The commission of the AOB can visit detention centres at any time. After the lockdown, they resumed their visits to police detention centres and identified challenges regarding visiting modalities, staffing level, solitary confinement and access to the yard.⁷²⁴

Medical treatment is provided in all detention centres by medical staff. Special treatment may be organised by transferring detainees to hospitals. In the detention centres in Vienna, psychiatric treatment is provided. In Vienna, detainees on hunger strike may be transferred to the medical station of the prison, but forced feeding is not allowed. In case there is a high probability of a health risk due to hunger strike, asylum applicants are usually released from detention. Detainees on hunger strike should only be placed in isolation if the necessary medical treatment cannot be provided at the open detention centre. In Vordernberg, there are two types of doctors: doctors who work alongside police authorities and help determining whether detention can be continued or not, and regular doctors who only provide care to the detainees. The system of having different doctors should be extended to other detention facilities, but is not applied in practice yet.⁷²⁵ The AOB (NPM) has further criticised the fact that medical treatment is not provided immediately in cases of mental illness or suicide risk.⁷²⁶

In its 2017 Annual Report that was published in 2018, the AOB formulated a list of recommendations necessary for the improvement of the detention facilities, which include inter alia the necessity of establishing single cells, providing adequate access to medical care, ensuring adequate detention conditions (e.g. natural light, ventilation, hygienic measures, visits etc.)⁷²⁷ These recommendations had not been implemented as of 2023. There are no signs that any reform in the area of detention of foreigners is planned in the new future.

UNHCR has access to asylum applicants without restrictions, while lawyers can visit their clients during working hours in a special visitor room. NGOs have access if they have obtained authorisation to act as legal representative of the detainee, which is obtained without delay in practice.

Other visitors such as relatives or friends have restricted possibilities to visit. Visits have to be allowed by the police for at least 30 minutes per week. In addition, restrictions may be imposed to detainees who are separated from other detainees and are put in security cells due to their behaviour, such as suicide attempts, hunger strike or violence. Visiting hours are limited to the weekend and early evening hours, and direct contact is not possible as the visit takes place in a room where the asylum applicant is separated from the visitor by a glass window. In the centre of Vordernberg, direct contact is made possible because of the presence of video cameras. Visits of media or politicians are usually not permitted. This centre has been presented to the public as an example of improvement of Austria's return policy.

Representatives of the churches have agreements with the police to visit detainees on a regular basis.⁷²⁸ decision of detention and the information on the right to appeal, have to be in a language the asylum applicant is able to understand. In each case, the detained asylum applicant is appointed a legal adviser provided by the state.

An appeal against detention in the context of the border procedure is not possible as asylum applicants are de facto detained and therefore do not obtain a detention order that can be appealed.

Detention is ordered by the BFA. The BFA must review the lawfulness of detention every 4 weeks.⁷³¹ After 4 months, the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) must review the lawfulness of detention ex officio.⁷³²

There is further a possibility to submit an appeal to the BVwG against a detention order, which is not subject to any time limits. The BVwG decides on the lawfulness of the detention order on the basis of the appeal of the asylum applicant and determines whether reasons for continuation of detention existed at the time of the decision.⁷³³

The Court rules within 7 calendar days in cases where a person is still detained, and within 6 months in cases where the person is no longer detained (which is the general time limit for decisions in administrative procedures).⁷³⁴

If the detention or its duration are recognised as unlawful, the asylum applicant is entitled to a financial compensation of € 100 for each unlawful day in detention.⁷³⁵ In case the appeal is rejected, there is a possibility to submit an appeal to the VfGH and to the VfzGH. However, if the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) rules on an appeal and finds that the detention order was lawful and that, at the time of the decision of the court, there is still the need to continue detention, the detained person lacks any possibility to contest this decision as unlawful.⁷³⁶ In 2022, the Republic of Austria acknowledged 79 (2021: 75) compensation claims and paid a total compensation of € 185,819 (2021: € 132,287) for unlawful detention.⁷³⁷ As of September 2023, in 50 cases compensations claims amounting to a total compensation of € 121,219 were accepted.⁷³⁸

Since the implementation of the Return Directive, legal safeguards for persons in detention have improved. The state led agency BBU GmbH has taken over counselling in detention centres since 31 December 2020. The contracts between the Ministry of Interior and NGOs have not been prolonged, leading to a blackbox-situation with no civil society oversight in detention centres. There has been an exchange between NGOs offering free legal counselling and BBU GmbH in 2021 on general matters. There are no reports that the counselling service by BBU GmbH has deteriorated yet. In 2022, several NGOs reported that there is an obvious need for social counselling in the deportation centres as the BBU GmbH has a very limited scope of counselling by law.

Indicators: Legal Assistance for Review of Detention

1. Does the law provide for access to free legal assistance for the review of detention?
☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Do asylum applicants have effective access to free legal assistance in practice?
☒ Yes ☐ No

The detained asylum applicant is appointed a legal adviser provided by the BBU GmbH (see Legal assistance).

The law contains only the obligation for the legal adviser to take part in hearings and to represent the asylum applicant, if the person so requests.⁷³⁹ This was also underlined in a ruling of the Supreme Administrative Court, which concluded that the legal provision according to which lawyers have to attend the oral proceedings at the request of the foreigner "can only be understood as meaning that the lawyer's participation in the hearing must be" on behalf of the applicant ", and thus has to act as a representative.⁷⁴⁰

A legal adviser shall be appointed according to Articles 51-52 BFA-VG in return procedures, detention and apprehension orders.⁷⁴¹ However, the right to receive legal advice for people benefiting from alternatives to imprisonment was abolished on 1 January 2014.

Legal advisers can meet their clients in the visitors' room during office hours. Appointed legal advisers have to arrange for an interpreter.

The High Administrative Court ruled in 2023 that in ex officio detention review court sessions the detainee has a right to be represented by BBU GmbH and therefore the legal representation has to be summoned by court.⁷⁴²

A. Status and residence

1. Residence permit

Indicators: Residence Permit

1. What is the duration of residence permits granted to beneficiaries of protection?
 - ❖ Refugee status 3 years
 - ❖ Subsidiary protection 1 year, renewable by 2 years
 - ❖ Humanitarian protection 1 year

Persons who are recognised as refugees in Austria obtain a residence permit valid for three years.⁷⁴³ If the situation in the country of origin has not changed and the protection status remains thus necessary, it is prolonged to an unlimited residence permit ex officio. If the country-of-origin information (COI) indicates that the refugee may return safely, the Cessation procedure may start.⁷⁴⁴

Persons with subsidiary protection status get a residence permit valid for one year.⁷⁴⁵ Renewal of the residence permit has to be applied for before the BFA. If protection needs continue to exist, the residence permit is prolonged for two additional years.⁷⁴⁶

A residence permit extension request must be made prior to the expiration of the current residence permit (at most three months before). Until the decision on the extension application is made, the stay in Austria remains legal if the extension request was made prior to expiration, even if the previous residence permit has already expired.⁷⁴⁷

If a beneficiary of subsidiary protection files the request for an extension after the current residence permit has expired, there is no consequence for the validity of the status of subsidiary protection. However, it interrupts the period of legal residence which is a precondition e.g. to acquire the status of EU-Daueraufenthalt (EU permanent status).

The renewal of residence permits can take time, but the right to remain exists until the BFA decides on an application for renewal. Subsidiary protection status used to be prolonged without conducting an interview, but this practice changed in 2018. As the BFA is now paying particular attention to withdrawal procedures, renewal proceedings are lengthy and might result in a negative decision in first instance (see Cessation and review of protection status). The lack of valid documentation pending renewal further has a negative impact on access to housing and the labour market as counselling organisations such as Diakonie Flüchtlingsdienst or Deserteurs- und Flüchtlingsberatung report. Applicants should apply for a renewal before for the right to remain expires but not more than three months before that date. If the application is not submitted in time, the stay becomes illegal. This may result in a longer waiting period for the long-term residence permit.

2. Civil registration

Registration of childbirth takes place at the district administrative or municipal authority. This is done directly by state hospitals as soon as a child is born. If the parents of the new-born are not married, or if the husband is not the father, an affidavit is required from the biological father to recognise paternity. Both parents are given joint custody of the child if they are married; if not, custody is granted to the mother unless the parents decide on joint custody.

⁷⁴³ Article 3(4) AsylG.

⁷⁴⁵ Article 8(4) AsylG.

⁷⁴⁷ Article 8 (4) AsylG.

As regards marriage registration, the Register must determine the capacity of the future spouses to enter into marriage during a hearing, on the basis of the documents submitted. These include: an official identification document with a photograph; a document equivalent to a copy of the birth certificate; and proof of citizenship. An affidavit may be given if the person cannot provide these documents. Practice varies between local Registers, with some demanding all the aforementioned documents while others are more flexible.

Civil registration in Austria is necessary for people to have access to health insurance, child and family allowances and other social rights. In addition, the family allowance is granted only after asylum has been granted to the baby. This procedure may take several months.⁷⁴⁸

3. Long-term residence

Indicators: Long-Term Residence

1. Number of long-term residence permits issued to beneficiaries in 2024 (for the first time – “Erstbewilligungen”):⁷⁴⁹ 1,773

Long-term resident status for third-country nationals is called “Daueraufenthalt EU”. The right to permanent residence in Austria and unrestricted access to the job market is granted by the residence title “Daueraufenthalt EU”.

To obtain it, a beneficiary of international protection must fulfil the following conditions:⁷⁵⁰

- ❖ Lawful residence in Austria for the last 5 years preceding the application for long term residency. Half of the period between the application for international protection and the awarding of refugee status or subsidiary protection is counted towards the five-year period. When the duration of the asylum procedure was longer than 18 months, the whole period is counted.⁷⁵¹
- ❖ Successful completion of “Module 2” of the so-called agreement on integration (“Integrationsvereinbarung”), entailing knowledge of German at B1 level.
- ❖ General requirements for obtaining a residence permit, namely:
 - A regular income per month of € 1,273.99 or more depends of the amount of rent for a single person as of 1 January 2025; for every child extra € 196,57;⁷⁵²
 - Sufficient health insurance;
 - Suitable accommodation; and
 - The person must not present a security risk.

The filing of additional papers may be required in some circumstances.

There is no difference between refugee status holders and subsidiary protection status holders.

In practice the responsible authority is usually the district council (Bezirkshauptmannschaft). There are exceptions for some cities such as Vienna where the responsible authority is MA 35, whereas in Graz it is the Styrian Land government. Once all costs have been paid, the applicant may be eligible to acquire the residence permit. The costs for the procedure amount to about € 210 for persons over 6 years old, and € 195 for persons under 6 years old.

1,773 beneficiaries of international and subsidiary protection obtained a long-term resident status in 2024, compared to 1,746 in 2023 and 1,360 in 2022.⁷⁵³ The sharp increase since 2018 (498) is likely to be the result of the focus of the BFA on withdrawal procedures of protection statuses. In cases where the international protection has been granted more than five years ago, a withdrawal procedure can only be started after a long-term residence status is granted by the responsible settlement authorities.

4. Naturalisation

Indicators: Naturalisation

- | | |
|--|-------------------------|
| 1. What is the waiting period for obtaining citizenship? | |
| ❖ Refugees | 10 years ⁷⁵⁴ |
| ❖ Subsidiary protection beneficiaries | 15 years |
| 2. Number of citizenship grants in 2024: | 4,155 |

Refugees are entitled to naturalisation after 10 years of lawful and uninterrupted residence in Austria, which includes the period of stay during the asylum procedure.⁷⁵⁵ The length of the legal stay, and thus the waiting period for obtaining citizenship, was extended from 6 to 10 years in September 2018.⁷⁵⁶ UNHCR and NGOs criticised this prolongation, because the prospect of rapid naturalisation promotes a successful integration process and is desirable for strengthening the cohesion of society as a whole.⁷⁵⁷ Citizenship must be granted to a person entitled to asylum after 10 years of residence if the BFA, upon request, notifies that no cessation procedure under the Asylum Act 2005 has been initiated and the conditions for initiating such a procedure do not currently exist. For beneficiaries of subsidiary protection, the waiting period is 15 years.

In order to be naturalised, a beneficiary of protection must also demonstrate:

- ❖ Sufficient income during the last 3 years;
- ❖ Proof of knowledge (B1) of the German language;
- ❖ Successful completion of integration course (Wertekurs);
- ❖ Absence of a criminal record (Unbescholtenheit).

Refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection may have faster access to naturalisation in less than 15 years of residence under certain conditions. They may shorten their waiting period if: (a) they have acquired B2-level knowledge of German; or (b) have acquired B1-level knowledge and can prove efforts of personal integration. The at least three-year voluntary work or activity in the social field must serve the common well-being and represent an integration-relevant added value in Austria. If they fulfil these criteria and the general conditions, the waiting period for obtaining citizenship may be reduced to 6 years. In any other case, it is easier for beneficiaries of subsidiary protection to obtain naturalisation by obtaining long-term resident status after 5 years (Long-Term Residence); then, they may be naturalised after 10 years.

5. Cessation and review of protection status

1. Is a personal interview of the beneficiary in most cases conducted in practice in the cessation procedure? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Does the law provide for an appeal against the first instance decision in the cessation procedure? ☒ Yes ☐ No
3. Do beneficiaries have access to free legal assistance at first instance in practice? ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No

The Asylum Act contains the provisions on cessation and withdrawal of international protection in a single provision: Article 7 for refugees and Article 9 for beneficiaries of the subsidiary protection.

Refugee status can be ceased if the conditions in Article 1C of the Refugee Convention are met, or if refugee status has been granted in another country.⁷⁵⁸ Subsidiary protection can be ceased where the conditions upon which status was granted no longer exist, where the person obtains subsidiary protection status in another country or obtains the nationality of another country and return thereto would not violate the principle of non-refoulement.⁷⁵⁹

Procedure

Every asylum applicant that comes to Austria is entitled to the free legal aid, when needed. In Austria, free legal counselling within the cessation and review of protection status procedures is provided by a state-based organisation BBU (Bundesagentur für Betreuungs- und Unterstützungsleistungen). BBU has been offering legal counsel and representation before the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum (BFA) in accordance with Section 49 BFA-VG Federal Law Gazette I No. 87/2012 and before the Federal Administrative Court (BVwG) in accordance with Section 52 BFA-VG Federal Law Gazette I No. 87/2012 as amended since January 1, 2021.

BBU offers free legal counsel to those facing criminal charges, both at the initial hearing and during an appeal. However, the counselling provided by the organisation during the first-instance procedure is not needs based, but rather available only within specific hours established by the organisation.

Where the BFA considers that the conditions in the country of origin have changed, thus questioning whether the fear of persecution is still valid, it informs the person ex officio of the initiation of a cessation procedure – irrespective of whether the person has a permanent or temporary residence permit.⁷⁶⁰

The authorities must assess whether return would be contrary to Articles 2, 3 or 8 ECHR and, in such a case, issue a residence permit. Where return would amount to refoulement, or in case of practical obstacles, the BFA is responsible for issuing a tolerated status card (Duldungskarte). In 2022, 325 tolerated status cards were issued,⁷⁶¹ compared to 265 in 2021 and 194 in 2020. As of September 2023, 213 tolerated status cards were issued.⁷⁶² In 2024 318 tolerated status cards were issued.⁷⁶³

If a person has held refugee status for 5 years, refugee status may be terminated only after the person has received a residence permit under a different immigration status.

Cessation procedures for beneficiaries of the subsidiary protection are often initiated by the BFA when they apply for a prolongation of their residence permit. Persons originating from Russia, Syria and Afghanistan are particularly concerned by these procedures. The Administrative Court has stated that a subsidiary protection status that was granted because of the minority of a person can be withdrawn once the minor becomes an adult and commits a crime.⁷⁶⁴

A cessation procedure is further initiated when entering the country of origin or applying for a passport from the country of origin. The entry of persons entitled to protection in Austria with a Convention or Foreigner passport is reported by the border police to the BFA. As of today, it is not clear yet if every case of entry from third countries is reported.

After the fall of the Assad regime in December, the ministry of Interior announced that it would start planning return and deportation programs, which sparked fear among BIPs.⁷⁶⁵ Until the end of 2024, more than 500 withdrawal procedures were initiated because of alleged improvement of the situation in Syria. By end of March 2025, there were more than 6,000 withdrawal procedures pending at first instance, most of them concerning Syrian nationals.⁷⁶⁶

Statistics on the number of initiated cessation/withdrawal procedures by the BFA at first instance re. asylum statuses

Statistics made available by the Ministry of Interior do not distinguish between cessation and withdrawal procedures. The number of initiated cessation or withdrawal procedures of the asylum status has consistently remained between 5,500 and 6,000 cases since 2018.

As of December 2024, 3,425 cessation and withdrawal procedures of the asylum status had been initiated on the following grounds:

It should be noted that the above figures only represent the number of protection status ceased/withdrawn by the BFA at first instance. In 2021, the BVwG decided on 409 appeals concerning withdrawal of asylum status and on 720 appeals concerning withdrawal of subsidiary protection.⁷⁷⁵ Data for 2022, 2023 and 2024 is not available at the time of writing. Concerning the high number of withdrawal and cessation decisions regarding nationals of the Russian federation it has to be noted that the persons received a residence permit. The authority focused on cases that have been beneficiaries since the start of the 2000s, in those cases a status can only be withdrawn if a residence permit is granted. A withdrawal of status is only possible within 5 years of granting the status with the exception of persons who have received a criminal sentence. In those cases, a withdrawal is possible because of altered circumstances even after the five years have passed.⁷⁷⁶

6. Withdrawal of protection status

Indicators: Withdrawal

1. Is a personal interview of the beneficiary in most cases conducted in practice in the withdrawal procedure? ☒ Yes ☐ No
2. Does the law provide for an appeal against the withdrawal decision? ☒ Yes ☐ No
3. Do beneficiaries have access to free legal assistance at first instance in practice? ☐ Yes ☒ With difficulty ☐ No

Refugee status is withdrawn where the refugee should have been excluded under the exclusion clauses,⁷⁷⁷ or is convicted of a criminal offence.⁷⁷⁸ Subsidiary protection is withdrawn if the exclusion clauses in Article 1F Geneva Convention apply, or the beneficiary poses a threat to public order or national security, or has been convicted of a serious crime.⁷⁷⁹ A withdrawal procedure shall be initiated by the BFA where a beneficiary of the subsidiary protection is under prosecution for a serious crime, and the provisions on withdrawals are likely to be applied.⁷⁸⁰ To that end, the BFA as well as the BVwG receive information on the prosecution from the Prosecutor's Office and the Court.

An appeal challenging a withdrawal decision has suspensive effect. The Court has to decide upon the appeal within 3 months.⁷⁸¹

Article 7(2) AsylG, as amended by the alien law reform (FrÄG 2017), further allows that withdrawal proceedings are initiated where the beneficiary is suspected of having committed a criminal offence.⁷⁸²

As mentioned in Cessation, there is no systematic distinction between the two procedures. When initiating a withdrawal procedure following a conviction, the BFA must weigh the individual situation of the beneficiary upon return against the implications of their continued residence for public order and security. The same procedural guarantees are applied as for the Regular Procedure for granting protection. Since 1 September 2018, young offenders are no longer protected from losing their protection status.

The VwGH referred a preliminary ruling to the CJEU regarding the interpretation of Article 19(1) of Directive 2011/95 on the possibility of revocation of subsidiary protection status without a change in the relevant factual circumstances, but rather only where the knowledge of the authority has changed, and the person concerned cannot be accused of having misled the Member State. The CJEU found that where the Member State has new information which establishes that, contrary to its initial assessment based on incorrect information, that person never faced a risk of serious harm, within the meaning of Article 15 of that Directive, that Member State must conclude that the circumstances underlying the granting of subsidiary protection status have changed in such a way that retention of that status is no longer justified. That this error was not attributable to the applicant does not alter the fact that the applicant is not eligible for subsidiary protection.⁷⁸³

B. Family reunification

1. Criteria and conditions

Indicators: Family Reunification

1. Is there a waiting period before a beneficiary can apply for family reunification?
 - ❖ Refugee status ☐ Yes ☒ No
 - ❖ Subsidiary protection ☒ Yes ☐ No3 years
2. Does the law set a maximum time limit for submitting a family reunification application?
For refugees be exempt from material conditions ☒ Yes ☐ No
 - ❖ If yes, what is the time limit? 3 months
3. Does the law set a minimum income requirement?
 - ❖ Refugee status ☐ Yes ☒ No
 - ❖ Subsidiary protection ☒ Yes ☐ No

1.1. Eligible family members

Family members eligible for family reunification include:⁷⁸⁴

- ❖ Parents of a minor child for family reunification of unaccompanied minors;
- ❖ Spouses and registered partners, where the marriage / partnership existed before fleeing the country of origin. In case concluded in another country, the marriage / partnership must be legally valid in the country of origin;
- ❖ Children who are minors at the time of the application;

According to the VwGH, siblings in themselves are not considered a family member eligible for reunification.⁷⁸⁵ However, underaged siblings will be allowed to reunite as well when an unaccompanied minor beneficiary of international protection reunites with their parents.⁷⁸⁶

Essentially, the same rules apply for same sex spouses in theory. As the precondition requires an equivalent to the formally registered partnership in Austria which does not exist in many countries of origin same sex couples are barred from family reunification in practice.⁷⁸⁷

Beneficiaries of international protection who get married after having arrived in Austria cannot reunite with their spouses under the AsylG. They will have to go through the regular family reunification procedure as opposed to the one specific to the asylum law. In such a case, in addition to the material conditions set out below, spouses must also pass a German exam before entering Austria. They are also subject to the annual quota on family reunification.⁷⁸⁸

Regarding family on the territory during the asylum procedure, all underage, unmarried child of an asylum applicant who resides in federal territory is considered to have received protection when an application for international protection was lodged by the asylum applicant now beneficiary of international protection. Indeed, if one family member qualifies for international protection, the other members must also enjoy the same level of protection.

Three years after receiving subsidiary protection, family members of those individuals may apply for entry permits via family reunification. They must also show proof of suitable housing, health insurance, and sufficient income.

Date of assessment of age for the purposes of family reunification

On 12 April 2018, the CJEU ruled in case A. and S. on the right to family reunification of unaccompanied children who reach the age of majority after lodging an asylum application. The CJEU concluded that an asylum applicant who is below the age of 18 at the time of their entry into the territory of a Member State and of the introduction of their asylum application in that State, but who, in the course of the asylum procedure, attains the age of majority and is thereafter granted refugee status, must still be regarded as a “minor” for the purposes of that provision.⁷⁸⁹ This judgement of the CJEU was taken into consideration by the VwGH in its decision of 3 May 2018.⁷⁹⁰ However, the VwGH saw no basis for changing its previous decision-making practice. If an unaccompanied minor attains the age of majority during the asylum procedure, the family status of the parents and thus the conditions for joining an asylum-entitled child who is an adult at the time of the decision, cease to apply.

In order to clarify open questions arising from the ECJ's judgment C-550/16, the Vienna Administrative Court itself submitted a reference for a preliminary ruling, numbered C-560/20: is it necessary that the parents of the third-country national comply with the period for submitting an application for family reunification referred to in the judgment of the CJEU of 12 April 2018, C-550/16, A and S, paragraph 61, namely ‘in principle within a period of three months of the date on which the “minor” concerned was declared to have refugee status’?

Alternatives to family reunification

The refusal to grant an entry title in the context of family reunification refers to proceedings that are regulated under the Settlement and Residence Act (Niederlassungs- und Aufenthaltsgesetz – NAG). The NAG further regulates the legal route for third-country nationals seeking to obtain a residence permit in Austria. This legal way via NAG is often the only way for family reunification in cases where the application for legal entry was not lodged within three months of the date when the asylum status was granted to the anchor family member in Austria. Family members that do not fall under the restrictive definition of “family member” in the asylum law also have to apply for family reunification via NAG. Family members of persons entitled to asylum may be granted, under certain conditions, a residence permit called “Red-White-Red-Card-Plus” in accordance with Article 46 NAG. This card grants access to the labour market, is valid for one year and can be prolonged to 3 years.

In the case of family members of holders of a residence title “Red-White-Red – Card”, the period of validity of the title shall be determined by the period of validity of the residence title of the sponsor. The residence title “Red-White-Red – Card plus” issued to family members of holders of a residence title “Red-White-Red – Card plus” shall be issued for a period of two years.

Proof of family ties

Costs of DNA tests for the purpose of proving family links are reimbursed where these are ordered by the BFA. These tests are ordered systemically by the authority.

The Administrative High Court has emphasised that an application for family reunification cannot be dismissed on the ground that there are doubts on the family ties, without having informed the concerned persons about the possibility to undertake a DNA test.⁷⁹¹ Also, there have been cases pending before the Administrative Court on the question of whether an application for family reunification can also be filed within the EU.

In case of rejection of an application for family reunification, the applicants can file an appeal against the decision of the embassy before the BVwG.⁷⁹² The complaint has to be in German language. The Court does not have to conduct an oral hearing. As the Court is bound to all facts already brought in into the procedure and does not accept any new proofs, the appeal procedure is not often started in practice. In reality, the applicants rather put forward a new application.⁷⁹³

In order to benefit from family reunification, family members of persons entitled to asylum or subsidiary protection make an application at the Austrian embassy. In that regard, the BFA conducts a probability diagnostic for the grant of family reunification, during which the family ties are particularly examined. In 2018, the BFA conducted a total of 3,068 of these probability evaluations.

1.2. Waiting periods and material conditions

Family members of refugees can apply for an entry visa immediately after status recognition of the sponsor. However, several restrictions have been put in place as of 1 June 2016. If the application is submitted to an Austrian representation within 3 months, no further requirements are imposed.⁷⁹⁴ If it is submitted after the 3-month time limit has lapsed, a number of conditions are imposed: (a) sufficient income; (b) health insurance; and (c) stable accommodation.⁷⁹⁵ These are material requirements set in line with requirements for other third-country nationals. However, contrary to other third country nationals, no language knowledge is required for asylum law family reunification, nor is there a quota.

Subsidiary protection beneficiaries' family members can only submit an application after at least 3 years from the sponsor's recognition.⁷⁹⁶ The aforementioned requirements – sufficient income, health insurance and accommodation – in force since 1 June 2016 are always applicable to beneficiaries of the subsidiary protection,⁷⁹⁷ with the exception of family members of unaccompanied children.⁷⁹⁸

The fact that a beneficiary of subsidiary protection must wait three years before initiating a family reunification procedure has been ruled as non-discriminatory by the Constitutional Court.⁷⁹⁹ The case concerned a 13-years-old unaccompanied minor from Syria who had received subsidiary protection in July 2016 and who had therefore to wait for 3 years to benefit from family reunification instead of 1 year (the previous waiting time imposed). In its ruling, the Constitutional Court considered that differentiating between persons entitled to asylum and persons entitled to subsidiary protection did not pose a risk of unequal treatment, as they are evident differences between these two groups (e.g. with regards to the temporary right of residence). Following the judgement by the ECtHR in the case M.A. against Denmark which found the 3-year waiting period to be in conflict with art 8 ECHR, beneficiaries of subsidiary protection applied for family reunification before the 3-year-limit had passed. In one case, the Constitutional Court dismissed the appeal and did not put the regulation in question.⁸⁰⁰

The law provides that the authorities have to decide on family reunification requests within 6 months.⁸⁰¹

NGOs have expressed concerns in relation to the time limit for applying for family reunification, given that applications must be submitted personally to an Austrian embassy. In the past, waiting times have been an issue of concern, and the situation deteriorated in 2021 due to the takeover of the Taliban in Afghanistan: the responsible embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan, scheduled appointments with several months of waiting time. The situation worsened in 2022: due to the high number of applications and lack of resources at the Austrian Embassy in Syria, which is located in Beirut, the waiting time for the registration appointment at the Embassy is more than 12 months, increasing the length of procedure to at least 2 to 3 years according to reports from the Austrian Red Cross.

Regarding specific difficulties, the Austrian Red Cross (ÖRK) established that the Taliban takeover in Afghanistan made it increasingly difficult for Afghan families to obtain the necessary documents (especially passports) for family reunification. Moreover, the large number of cases has dramatically extended the waiting periods and the duration of procedures at Austrian embassies.

In 2023/24, as the Ministry of External Affairs outsourced certain registration steps to an external service provider, the waiting periods improved and the average length of procedure decreased substantially: Indeed, the average procedural length decreased from up to two years to 6.5 months as of January 2024, between the visa application via family reunification at the embassy and entry in Austria.

The reduction of the procedural length in connection with relatively high numbers of visa applications led to a high number of arrivals in the course of 2023/24. In 2024, 7,652 family members of beneficiaries arrived in Austria through family reunification. Almost 1/3 of all international protection applications in 2024 came through family reunification. The Ministry of Interior announced in spring 2024 that it would scale up DNA tests and that all entry visas would be revoked and re-checked. This led to a sharp decrease in people entering the country through family reunification and increased the average procedural time massively. In 2025, the average time between application for visa at the embassy and actual entry into Austria was more than 16 months.

In 2022, 5,830 applications for an entry visa via family reunification were lodged of which 4,871 came from Syrian nationals, 490 from Afghan nationals and 254 from Somali nationals. In 3,335 cases of Syrian nationals the forecast decision taken by the BFA was positive, in 169 cases were negative.⁸⁰²

2023 saw a sharp rise in family reunification cases: more than 14,000 applications were lodged before the embassies. In more than 10,000 cases an entry authorisation was issued. In 9,180 cases, an asylum application was lodged upon arriving via entry authorisation. 8,193 were lodged by Syrian nationals (89%), 356 by Afghan nationals (4%). 6,390 were children which amounts to 70% of all asylum applications via family reunification.⁸⁰³

The increase led to public debate, because most beneficiaries of family reunification move to Vienna. Vienna experienced pressure in the school system as around 90% of all beneficiaries of international protection that receive basic care or social subsidies in Austria live in Vienna. With approx. 5,000 additional students from Ukraine, the school system could not easily adapt to another 2,000 students without German language skills. Some politicians have suggested introducing an obligation for beneficiaries to reside in other provinces after receiving their status, while other parties have suggested restricting access to family reunification.⁸⁰⁴

In January 2024 the number of applications for family reunification peaked with more than 700 applications per week. In May 2024, the Ministry of the Interior⁸⁰⁵ interrupted family reunifications that were already underway and stated that they should be checked more strictly to prevent abuse, notably through more frequent use of DNA tests. Family reunifications that had already been approved were cancelled and were re-examined. Many families were affected, including some where the flight tickets had already been purchased. Granting of visas for family reunification resumed from August/September 2024. However, the number of people arriving each month has fallen compared to the beginning of 2024. While there were around 250-300 people per month at the beginning of the year, in September there were around 100-150 people per month.⁸⁰⁶ Upon request the Ministry could not present data as to how many cases led to a different result in re-examination than the original examination.

The uptake in applications was also due to management of asylum applications in 2022 and 2023: as Austria saw a large number of applications in 2022 (more than 100,000), at which point the authorities focused on cases in which there was a low probability of recognition (applications from nationals from Tunisia, India etc). This resulted in a backlog of cases from Syrian applicants that were then decided in 2023. With higher numbers of positive decisions, family members then applied for family reunification at the embassies in a rush as there is a strict 3 months limit to be able to enter Austria without having to fulfil conditions regarding level of income.

By the end of 2023, the authorities and the BVwG had already changed their jurisprudence regarding Syria: in most cases, only subsidiary protection is being granted, leading to less family reunification cases as of early 2024. As mentioned above the situation calmed down in May 2024 due to the visa stop in the context of family reunification. At the beginning of September, the number of arrivals in Austria rose slightly, to around 100-150 people per month.⁸⁰⁷

While the change of jurisprudence concerning Syrian nationals already led to a sharp decrease, the fall of the Assad regime had an even bigger effect on family reunifications in December 2024, as visas that had already been issued were revoked by the authorities and all cases of family reunification re-examined yet again. The BFA started to initiate withdrawal procedures for BIPs in Austria, without issuing decisions on the merits of these procedures yet. The only legal consequence of the start of a withdrawal procedure is that visa applications of family members are all rejected. This led to a significant decrease of applications for asylum originating from family reunification.

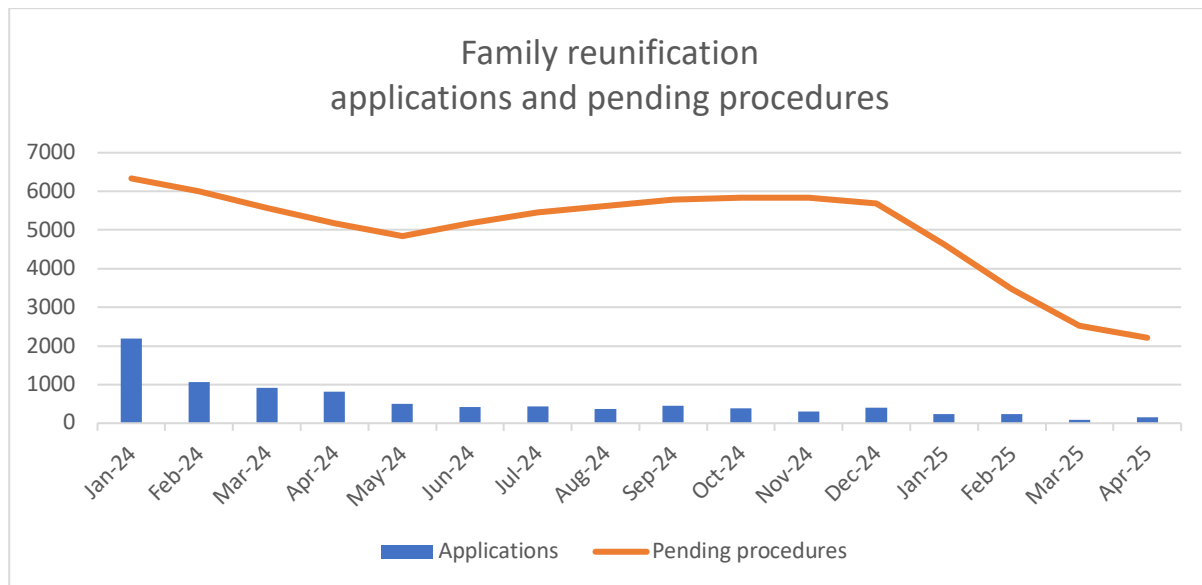

In the first 4 months of 2024 (January to April), more than 4,000 persons entered Austria through family reunification. They represented 44% of asylum applications. In the same time period in 2025, the number of people entering via family reunifications was only 538 (9% of all applications in this timeframe).⁸⁰⁸

⁸⁰⁸ Ministry of Interior, Annual asylum statistics 2024, available in German <https://shorturl.at/gUCqA>.

The high number of rejections of visa applications resulted in a decrease of pending procedures. As of December 2024, around 6,000 cases were pending. At the end of April 2025, only 2,200 cases (among which approx. 1,000 cases of Syrian nationals) were pending.

In April 2025, the Austrian legislature amended the relevant provision to allow the government to issue a directive suspending all family reunifications whenever public order or national security is deemed to be at risk.⁸⁰⁹ In May, the government presented a draft of such a directive, accompanied by a written justification outlining why these measures are – in its view – necessary.⁸¹⁰ Several NGOs, including asylkoordination, criticised this move as unlawful under EU law, counterproductive to integration efforts, and a clear violation of the rights of refugees and displaced persons to reunite with their families, particularly under the EU Family Reunification Directive.⁸¹¹

2. Status and rights of family members

Family members are entitled to at least the same status as the sponsor. However, upon arrival in Austria, they submit an application to the police to obtain such protection, and an assessment is carried out to inquire whether they may have their own reasons for seeking international protection.

In a ruling of November 2017, the VwGH stated that the principles of the Family Reunification Directive need not be complied with in the family procedure set out in Article 35 AsylG and that the BFA was not obliged to grant the family members international protection in the particular case, since Article 35 AsylG offers more favourable standards to the Directive.⁸¹²

C. Movement and mobility

1. Freedom of movement

Persons who are granted international protection are free to move and settle throughout the Austrian territory. The restriction of residence that used to apply to beneficiaries of subsidiary protection who were awaiting an appeal was deleted by the 2018 amendment to Article 15b AsylG.⁸¹³ This 2018 reform was mainly aimed at implementing actions under aliens' law that were outlined by the federal government in the Government Program 2017-2022 ("Together. Government Program 2017-2022 for Austria"). At the start of 2024, there was a broad public debate followed by a resolution by the Viennese regional parliament asking the Federal government to introduce a residence restriction for beneficiaries of international protection that receive social subsidies.⁸¹⁴ This initiative was instantly rejected by the governing coalition in the Federal government and by the Heads of some provinces.⁸¹⁵

2. Travel documents

Since 2015, travel documents for beneficiaries of international protection are issued for a period of up to 5 years,⁸¹⁶ unless other conditions apply.

Refugees obtain a Convention travel document ('Konventionsreisepass') without further conditions, unless there are compelling reasons in terms of national security and public order against the issuance of a document.⁸¹⁷

In the past, beneficiaries of subsidiary protection had to establish that they are unable to obtain a travel document from their country of origin.⁸¹⁸ This partly changed in 2023 as the Constitutional Court ruled that beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have the right to get an aliens' passport. The law foresees that the issuance must be in the "interest of the republic". The Constitutional Court ruled that it is to be viewed to be in the "interest of the republic" that a person can effectively exercise its right to leave a country granted by Article 2 (2) of the 4. Additional Protocol to the ECHR.⁸¹⁹ Aliens whose presence on federal territory is tolerated are to be issued a permit for tolerated persons. As a general rule, it is valid for one year and can be extended for another year provided certain conditions are met. A geographical limitation further applies to beneficiaries of protection, who are not allowed to travel to their country of origin with these documents. If they do so, they may lose their protection status: proceedings will be initiated to revoke their asylum status.

Article 94(2) FPG allows persons recognised as refugees in another country to apply for a Convention travel document in Austria.

Aliens who applied for international protection on or after November 15, 2015 and were awarded asylum status on or after June 1, 2016 are eligible to apply for the card for those entitled to asylum. In 2022, 45,484 (2021: 44,516) Convention travel documents were issued to refugees and 7,464 (2021: 5,016) Fremdenpässe (travel documents for foreigners) were issued.⁸²⁰ In 2024, 36,584 Convention travel documents were issued to refugees and 11,021 Fremdenpässe were issued.⁸²¹ However, there is no data as to how many of those were issued to beneficiaries of subsidiary protection.

D. Housing

Indicators: Housing

1. For how long are beneficiaries entitled to receive basic care?
 - ❖ Refugee status 4 months
 - ❖ Subsidiary protection No time limit (in case of unemployment)
2. Number of beneficiaries receiving basic care as of 2 January 2025: 15,449

Refugees are entitled to Basic Care during the first 4 months after recognition of their status.⁸²² After this period, they have access to the general welfare system and can obtain basic care and social assistance similarly to any other Austrian citizen. There are in general no longer stay options or other specialised accommodation for vulnerable groups or young people who have recently turned 18. Beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have no temporal limit on receiving Basic Care but are excluded from the general welfare system. No preconditions for receiving Basic Care are applied.

Basic Care consists of organised accommodation in inns, boarding houses, reception centres of NGOs or of the respective federal province, or a rent subsidy when an asylum applicant rents a flat themselves. The prevailing form of Basic Care is organised accommodation, except for Vienna where private accommodation prevails (see Reception Conditions: Forms and Levels).

As of 2nd January 2025, 13,173 asylum applicants, 2,324 people with refugee status and 13,125 beneficiaries of subsidiary protection were receiving basic benefits (in addition to Ukrainians):

Support after the end of Basic Care is insufficient. Although there are some consultation services which provide advice on finding a flat and concluding a rental contract, there are no financial resources available to actively help beneficiaries to find accommodation. This is particularly concerning given that prices on the real estate market have significantly risen. Recipients of Basic Care, which includes beneficiaries of subsidiary protection in several provinces, cannot find adequate accommodation with a subsidy of € 165 per month for renting a flat. Families in Basic Care receive € 330. Financial support for refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection is a slightly higher amount as in this regime the size of a family is considered, and it is possible to either completely subsidise the rent (as is the case in Tyrol) or receive subsidies for the rent.

A study was published focusing on the housing situation of persons entitled to asylum in Austria. It concludes that persons entitled to asylum move more often than, for example, displaced persons from Ukraine. Frequent relocation does not contribute to stability and housing situations are usually inadequate, some live on the edge of poverty. According to the study, men move more often than women.⁸²³

In Lower Austria, the authorities regularly send letters to beneficiaries of subsidiary protection asking them to move out of basic care, leading to significant pressure put on people with subsidiary protection. The care teams intervene and send social reports to the authorities explaining why the beneficiaries of protection should not lose basic care benefits, especially families with school-age children or families with sick people who benefit from staying in a basic care facility. On the other hand, there is a trend of people with subsidiary protection moving to Vienna because the community is bigger there, there are greater chances of finding a job and there is entitlement to social benefits.⁸²⁴

In Vorarlberg, refugees who receive a minimum income do not receive a housing compensation but are transferred to landlords directly through the social department. Single refugees receive the minimum income only if they live in shared flats. If a person entitled to asylum decides to live in their own apartment, the compensation will amount only to the costs of a shared room. Single persons receive up to € 503 for their rent. This is significantly higher compared to other federal states, where only € 210 are granted.⁸²⁵ In Tyrol, housing costs are capped and are awarded as a contribution in kind. The benefits are based on the real estate price table. In Vorarlberg, there have been cuts in the allowances of people residing in shared apartments: they now receive € 473 instead of the previous € 633.

Moreover, refusing a flat assigned by the country's social department may result in the loss of housing benefits. This measure should also help the city of Innsbruck, which is often preferred by refugees as a place of residence after Vienna.

Refugees can also apply for social housing when they are at risk of becoming homeless. Nevertheless, the waiting lists are long and an emergency flat is rarely available. Certain conditions (e.g. proof of residence of 2 years at the same address) applicable to the city of Vienna make it more difficult to get a cheaper community flat. In many regions of Austria, there are no social housing schemes available. Refugees are usually excluded from the second possibility of cheap accommodations, co-operative flats, because they have to contribute to the construction cost, and they lack the necessary resources.⁸²⁶

In Styria, Caritas has developed a project to finance housing costs.⁸²⁷ A major hurdle is the deposit that refugees cannot afford when they are forced to move out of the basic care 4 months after their protection has been granted. Caritas Styria offers persons benefitting from a protection status or holding a humanitarian residence permit interest-free loans guarantees. This is granted, however, only after verification of the financial situation and must be repaid in individually agreed rates.

Experience shows that persons benefitting from a protection status often change their flat in the first year(s) after recognition and the costs for rent are much higher than those prescribed by law. The introduction of a time limited Residence Permit of 3 years for refugees has also been criticised by NGOs and experts as it makes it more difficult to rent a flat without perspective to stay.

As a result of the Basic Social Welfare Act, this allowance was increased to around EUR 7,254.06 in 2024 and is available to every beneficiary. Additionally, only after a continuous three-year benefit period can residential assets be safeguarded in the land register.

A study conducted by the Technical University of Vienna found that, due to several obstacles, refugees are extensively excluded from the benefit of municipal accommodations in practice and beneficiaries of the subsidiary protection do not have access to municipal housing at all. Cases of exploitation and discrimination in the private sector have also been reported. A worrying informal sub-market has emerged, offering housing at inflated prices, such as sleeping places – that are not even real rooms – that cost about € 200 to € 350 per month.⁸²⁸ Facilities for homeless persons are also sometimes visited by refugees.

When demonstrating the eligibility criteria, refugees from Ukraine might get Municipal Housing (Gemeindewohnung) or Cooperative Flats (Genossenschaftswohnung). Different laws apply in different parts of Austria as to the qualifying requirements for cooperative apartments, subsidised housing, and municipal housing.

In order to submit housing benefits, a refugee has to submit an application to receive it.

E. Employment and education

1. Access to the labour market

Between collecting minimum income support and finding a job, there is no freedom of choice. Social support or minimum security for those who are able to work is dependent on their desire to use their own labour force. Benefits obtained by an employee who refuses appropriate labour may be diminished or, in rare circumstances, even completely revoked. The same holds true for refusing to take part in activities like German classes or other course requirements, as well as for breaking integration agreements.

Starting with the recognition of their protection status, refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have free access to the labour market. However, several difficulties such as language barriers, lack of qualifications and/or lack of proof have to be overcome before successfully integrating into the labour market. The public budget for language courses has been increased significantly and, in most federal provinces, language courses are already offered during the asylum procedures, albeit in limited capacity.⁸²⁹

The integration sector in 2022 was marked by a sharp increase in the number of asylum applicants and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection, as well as a large number of Ukrainian displaced persons seeking protection in Austria: the Austrian Integration Fund (ÖIF) responded to the changed framework conditions with appropriate offers. In 2023, the ÖIF's integration centres reported over 230,000 (2022: 265,000) counselling contacts throughout Austria, with around 12,000 (2022: 11,000) individuals taking part in the values and orientation courses. Furthermore, in 2023, more than 67,500 German course spots were available throughout Austria.⁸³⁰

According to current evaluations of the Austrian Integrationsfonds, the level of education of those having been granted protection in 2022 has fallen significantly compared to the years before: 7 out of 10 persons entitled to asylum and subsidiary protection who received asylum in the last 12 months and a German course according to the Integration Act visit have a need for literacy. In the last three years, this value has increased by half (2019: 48%), and by as much as 80% for men (41% vs. 73%). According to ÖIF 'the declining level of education and the high need for literacy among refugees in recent years continue to pose a key challenge: Two out of three persons granted asylum and subsidiary protection in 2024 had literacy needs, 43% of them also in their own language of origin'.⁸³¹

However, there has been some public debate on the definition of literacy. Experts believe that 7 out of 10 is an exaggerated number and the challenge is being unintentionally "inflated". Second language learners are not illiterate as they come to Austria. They are only supposed to learn a new and different writing system, which is not their native one.

There have been some improvements through targeted assessment of qualifications and facilitated recognition of work experience. The Act on Recognition and Evaluation entered into force on 12 July 2016 and accelerates the procedure for the recognition of education and professional qualifications obtained outside Austria.⁸³² This decision aims at facilitating access to the labour market for refugees. Refugees or asylum applicants could also apply for recognition of their academic and professional qualifications, even if they cannot provide the documents as proof.

A study conducted in 2016-2017 involving 1,200 beneficiaries of international protection found group-specific differences in the integration to the labour market. Despite the shortage of skilled workers in Austria, former technicians seem to have had very little chances of finding work. The mismatch between qualifications and employment is high: more than 75% of respondents worked in a field which did not or only partially fit their academic background. 25% of respondents had participated in a competence check by the AMS, but participation in the check and value courses had no direct impact on the integration of their previous work experience; the potential effects of these recent measures are only expected to be made visible in the medium term.⁸³³

Austria has set up a number of counselling and contact points, as well as an information portal (AST). In Vienna, however, all beneficiaries now undergo a competency evaluation. Where recognised beforehand, highly qualified persons in regulated profession e.g. doctors are sent to "Check In Plus" immediately to receive assistance in the recognition process.

Beneficiaries have to consult the Austrian Integration Fund (ÖIF) after they have received protection status. The ÖIF places these persons to language courses and courses on Austrian values. They have to register with the job centre and can then take part in job-related assistance measures, if their language proficiency is sufficient, or in language-related assistance measures. Surveys of the job centres found that 10% of persons with protection status can be integrated into the labour market within the first year.

On the other hand, since September 2017, beneficiaries of international protection who are able to work but cannot secure employment are required to complete a one-year standardised integration programme focusing on language acquisition, career orientation and vocational qualification (see Social Welfare).

Concerning labour forces, the imbalanced distribution of supply and demand within Austria also presents a challenge to integration into the labour market. Many persons with protection status relocate into urban centres, especially Vienna, where the unemployment rate is also higher than in the western federal provinces. There is a great demand for workers in the tourism regions of the West. In the public debate, the tense situation of the Austrian labour market is one area which is used to argue in favour of the closing of borders.

In 2024, a total of 373,376 persons were listed as unemployed in Austria, of which 75,525 participated in training courses. The unemployment quota was 7.00% in total.⁸³⁴ Regarding beneficiaries of international protection, 33,060 persons were listed as unemployed (of which 12,414 were in training). 9,644 beneficiaries of subsidiary protection were listed as unemployed of which 3,883 people were participating in training courses.⁸³⁵

2. Access to education

Access to education is the same for beneficiaries as for asylum applicants (see Reception Conditions: Education). However, there is no restriction with regard to apprenticeships for beneficiaries. Refugees can receive a public grant, including support for public transport, in order to study, which is not available for asylum applicants. As of January 2023, all minors, including refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection, are under the duty to attend either a higher school, to do an apprenticeship or to prepare for an apprenticeship through other courses (Ausbildungspflicht).⁸³⁶ The violation of mandatory training is punishable since 18 January, 2023 by a fine ranging from 100 to 1,000 euros in repeated cases.

Although awareness on the difficulties that refugee children experience has increased and more resources are made available, these are not sufficient to support the children in regular schools until they obtain sufficient language proficiency.

In 2023 and ongoing in 2024, the City of Vienna introduced another programme called “Jugendcollege”. It offers education and training programmes especially focused on persons coming from other EU member states and third country nationals. The focus group is people between 15 and 25 years old, and it is accessible for people that have completed 8 years of school and live in Vienna. It promotes language skills in German and English to prepare the persons for a training process upon completion.⁸³⁷

In Upper Austria, the Regional government promoted special formation courses for asylum applicants from Syria already during their asylum procedure. In three projects, asylum applicants should already get German classes and training offered directly by companies that are in need of labour force.⁸³⁸

F. Social welfare

1. Forms and levels of social benefits

1.1. Needs-based minimum benefit

Access to social benefits is not the same for refugees and subsidiary protection beneficiaries. Holders of subsidiary protection have the right to Basic Care, which is significantly lower than the needs-based minimum benefit (bedarfsorientierte Mindestsicherung, BMS) to which refugees are entitled. Eligibility for the needs-based minimum benefit is derived directly from Article 29 of the recast Qualification Directive for subsidiary protection beneficiaries who do not receive Basic Care but reside in a rented flat. Currently, however, some federal provinces (Burgenland, Lower Austria, Salzburg and Styria) do not provide needs-based minimum benefits to beneficiaries of subsidiary protection at all, but only provide so-called “core benefits” under their Basic Care legislation.⁸³⁹

Beneficiaries of subsidiary protection represent the largest group of the Basic Care beneficiaries after displaced persons from Ukraine. As a rule, they can remain in the Basic Care system after being granted protection status. However, as long as they live in an organised accommodation, they will only receive the basic care provided for these types of accommodation (food, pocket money, clothing, school fees), except in Tyrol and Vienna.

The Constitutional Court has dismissed a complaint from a beneficiary of subsidiary protection against this differentiation in Lower Austria, on the ground that subsidiary protection is more provisional a status than refugee status, thereby justifying differential treatment in social benefits.⁸⁴⁰

Existing assets must be used before claiming social assistance or basic security. However, certain assets (such as motor vehicles or valuable household goods) must be excluded from realisation if doing so could cause an emergency, exacerbate it, or jeopardise its resolution. Asset allowances are included in the minimum security provisions of state legislation (around € 7,254.06 in 2025).

There were several attempts by regional governments to discriminate against beneficiaries of international protection in the area of Sozialhilfe and needs-based minimum benefit. All relevant legislative attempts were annulled by the Constitutional Court. In the new coalition program 2025-2029, the governing parties agreed to introduce a waiting period for beneficiaries of international protection before they are eligible to receive the same social benefits as Austrian nationals. This plan is formulated in a very vague manner and opens up a lot of questions. It is not clear whether this should only include beneficiaries of subsidiary protection or if the benefits in the waiting phase would differ from the amounts Austrian nationals receive.⁸⁴¹

Lower Austria: Since 2016, refugees receive lower amounts of needs-based benefits than nationals. Nationals receive € 889.84, while refugees receive € 522.50, including a bonus of € 155 granted when they take part in integration measures such as language courses. The Administrative Court (LVwG) of Lower Austria has challenged the maximum amounts introduced by the reform before the Constitutional Court. The regulation was annulled by the Constitutional Court as it constituted an infringement of the principle of equality.⁸⁴²

The fact that Burgenland decided to cap minimum benefits per household, by limiting it at € 1,500 per household regardless of its size and the number of persons concerned has been considered as unconstitutional by the Constitutional court. The Court considered that, even if the cost of living per person may decrease depending on the size of the household, additional expenses are still required for each additional person.⁸⁴³

In Burgenland, just as in Lower Austria, a waiting period for obtaining social benefits had been envisaged: those who had not been in Austria for at least five years within the last six years received less social benefits. The Constitutional Court ruled that this waiting period constitutes a different treatment of Austrian citizens and aliens. Regarding persons entitled to asylum, the scheme was considered particularly unjustified as they had to leave their country of origin and cannot return there. They must therefore not be assimilated to other strangers (EU citizens and third-country nationals) who are free to return to their country of origin. The length of stay in Austria should not lead to a differentiation in the amount of benefits granted and does not allow for assumptions as to the willingness to work of a person.⁸⁴⁴

Upper Austria: The general level of needs-based benefits is € 921,30 per month, including for refugees with a permanent Residence Permit. Refugees with a temporary residence permit granted from 1 July 2016 onwards and subsidiary protection holders only receive core benefits of € 405 per month, as well as an additional amount of € 155 (integration bonus) per month subject to compliance with integration measures. The total amount of benefits granted per month is € 560. The regulation was annulled by the Constitutional Court as it constituted an infringement of the principle of equality.⁸⁴⁵

The Administrative Court (LVwG) of Upper Austria made a preliminary reference to the CJEU to ask whether Article 29 of the recast Qualification Directive is directly applicable; and whether it is possible to differentiate the level of benefits granted on the basis of the duration of the right of residence.⁸⁴⁶ On 21 November 2018, the CJEU concluded that EU law precludes national legislation which provides that refugees with a temporary right of residence in a Member State are to be granted social security benefits which are less than those received by nationals of that Member State and refugees who have a permanent right of residence in that Member State.⁸⁴⁷

For all minimum income beneficiaries, there is a maximum amount of € 1,512 granted per household, a regulation that was not contested by the Constitutional Court. For larger families, the minimum standards of all persons of a household community will be reduced evenly in percentage terms. In addition, in assessing whether a sufficient amount is available to avoid social distress, minor dependent persons may also take into account the basic amount of the family allowance and the child deduction amount. These services serve to secure livelihoods, the Constitutional Court decided.⁸⁴⁸

Vorarlberg: Restrictions have been introduced as of 1 January 2017 for refugees and subsidiary beneficiaries. Cash benefits may be replaced by benefits in kind if it better suits the purpose of the guaranteed minimum income. Different minimum personal security rates are introduced depending on the type of accommodation, single or in shared flats, because in shared apartments “regular cost savings, especially in the area of household effects, heating and electricity” are assumed. The maximum flat rate for housing needs for six people is € 772 per month. The changes were contested by the Ombudsman of Vorarlberg as unconstitutional before the Constitutional Court, as these maximum rates for rent are too low in view of the situation on the Vorarlberg housing market. The Constitutional Court upheld most restrictions and only found the retroactive application of the measure to be unconstitutional.⁸⁴⁹

In November 2018, the Ministry of Social Affairs presented a draft law on social benefits.⁸⁵⁰ The proposal sets a maximum amount of benefits that federal provinces are obliged to grant and drastically reduces subsidies for households with several children. It also promotes compensation in kind rather than in cash. The draft law further sets certain conditions to receive the full amount of social benefits, which includes knowledge of German (level B1) or alternatively of English (C1). Refusing to integrate the labour market will also lead to cuts of about € 300 for single persons. While Austrian citizens will hardly be concerned by these new measures, refugees will be strongly affected. As regards beneficiaries of subsidiary protection, they will be excluded from the new social benefits law, which is contrary to Article 29 (2) of the recast Qualification Directive and the obligation to treat aliens equally with nationals.

The law was passed under heavy criticism by NGOs in May 2019 and immediately brought to the Constitutional Court by the opposition party SPÖ.⁸⁵¹ In December 2019, the Court declared several parts of the law unconstitutional. This includes the provision which foresaw that language skills are a precondition for receiving the full amount of social benefits; as well as the provision foreseeing a reduction of social benefits depending on the number of children (i.e. 25% for the first child; 15% for the second child and 5% for every remaining child).⁸⁵² The law as a whole was not abandoned, however, and the ruled out provisions were not replaced.

1.2. Other social benefits

Beneficiaries of subsidiary protection are also treated differentially with regard to family and childcare allowances, to which they are only entitled if they do not receive Basic Care. An additional condition for the childcare allowance for these persons is to earn an income.

A particular difficulty emerges when delays occur in the extension of the right of residence of beneficiaries of subsidiary protection. In fact, the family allowance for children will no longer be granted if the right to residence is not extended in due time, i.e. before its expiry. This practice of the tax offices was unsuccessfully criticised by the Ombudsman Board,⁸⁵³ and the relevant case law has not been complied with yet.

2. Conditions for social benefits

The main condition for the needs-based minimum benefit is the need for assistance, which also applies to nationals.

Additional requirements have further been introduced in some federal provinces in the last years. These include an integration contract and participation to integration measures. Since September 2017, beneficiaries of international protection who are able to work and have not secured employment must complete a standardised integration programme of one year. This obligation applies to refugees and subsidiary protection holders who were granted status after 31 December 2014. As of April 2018, asylum applicants that have a high recognition rate are also be able to participate to the integration programme.⁸⁵⁴ According to information provided by the Austrian Integration Fund (ÖIF), this applies only to Syrians. As the situation in Syria is unclear, the issuing of decisions in asylum procedures of Syrian nationals has been suspended since December. This had an effect on the recognition rates: while in 2024, 67% of all decisions concerning Syrian nationals ended with the granting of the asylum status, from January to April 2025 this rate dropped to 7%.⁸⁵⁵

In Styria, benefits can be cut up to 25% already for small misdemeanours, e.g. missing an appointment. In Lower Austria, where German language courses are mandatory for persons in the needs-based minimum benefit system, the allowance can be reduced by up to 50% if the person refuses to attend. In Vorarlberg, where beneficiaries are obliged to sign an integration agreement since January 2016, benefits can be reduced or withdrawn when refugees do not adhere to the integration agreement which they have to enter, e.g. by refusing to attend a language course.

Social assistance is distributed by the Social Department of the federal province. The Tax Office is responsible for the family allowance, while health insurance is responsible for the child-care allowance. The needs-based minimum benefit is granted in the respective federal province where the beneficiary resides. Beneficiaries may transfer their residence to another federal province, however. In one case, Upper Austria reduced benefits by 15% due to the beneficiary's relocation to Tyrol. The Administrative Court of Tyrol found the reduction unlawful, as it was necessary for the person to move to Tyrol in order to find employment.⁸⁵⁶

Lower Austria also introduced a 5-year residence requirement, which was appealed by the LVwG before the Constitutional Court. This precondition was violating constitutional rights (see decision above).

G. Health care

Asylum applicants and persons entitled to subsidiary protection who are in Vienna's basic health care system are automatically insured with the Austrian Health Insurance Fund \(ÖGK\) if free co-insurance with relatives is not possible. Persons entitled to asylum are insured through the needs-based minimum income scheme (BMS) or through their employer.

As beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have no maximum time limit on basic care, they always enjoy health insurance similar to asylum applicants (see Reception Conditions: Health Care). Meanwhile, refugees enjoy basic care for 4 months after recognition of their status. When participating in courses of the job centres, they are also covered by health insurance. As soon as they start to work more than a few hours, the mandatory health insurance takes effect. When refugees are without resources and receive needs-oriented minimum basic benefits, they also have health insurance.

Access to psychological therapy for traumatised refugees and torture survivors is possible as a transitional measure within AMIF projects when the therapy had already begun during the asylum procedure. Although such projects exist in every federal province, their capacities barely cover the demand. Starting in 2021, a new project called RESET funded by the Ministry of Social Affairs was introduced. It provides extra funding for organisations offering psychotherapy to refugees.⁸⁵⁷ It continued in 2024. Other costs of psychological therapy are only partly covered by health insurances.

Asylum applicants are not eligible for childcare subsidies. The allowance is reduced from the minimal income for persons who qualify for asylum. Only those who have previously been employed are eligible for childcare assistance under subsidiary protection.

Childcare allowance must be applied for at the Insurance Fund \(ÖGK\). It is important that the application is submitted in good time - if necessary, before the family allowance notice is received. Because the childcare allowance is only paid out retrospectively for 6 months and a full compliance with all mandatory mother-child passport examinations is required. The confirmation of this must be submitted to the health insurance company by the 15th month of the child's life, or the childcare allowance will be reduced.
